Russia's Invasion of Ukraine in Perspective

by: Scott Ritter TheAltWorld.
substack.com

After decades of ignoring Russia's national security concerns, the West is confronted with a military invasion of Ukraine which serves as a precursor for a new Cold War that will define Russia's relationship with the West for years to come.

Let there be no mistake, on Feb. 24, the world awoke to a new reality. Prior to this date, Russia was treated by the West as an annoyance, belittled by economic and even military elites as little more than a "giant gas station masquerading as a nation," to quote John McCain, the now-deceased senator from Arizona.

Russian President Vladimir Putin had been subjected to a series of sophomoric psychological profiles that trivialized Russian national concerns as little more than the psychotic whim of a troubled individual. The caricatures that emerged of the Russian state and its leadership colored the analysis of Russia's oft-stated concerns over what it viewed as its legitimate national security.

This blinded the West to the reality of what was transpiring. Because no one took Russia seriously, no one could imagine a large-scale ground war in Europe. So everyone was taken by surprise when such a conflict broke out.

How We Got Here

Ever since Nato had opened the door to membership for Ukraine and Georgia during the 2008 Bucharest summit, Russia has been making its vehement opposition known.

William Burns, the former US Ambassador to Russia and now director of the CIA, captured the Russian sentiment in a February 2009 memorandum: "Nyet means nyet: Russia's Nato enlargement red lines." Russia, Burns noted, viewed "farther eastward expansion as a potential military threat," giving rise to Russian fears that "the issue could potentially split the country [Ukraine] in two, leading to violence or even, some claim, civil war, which would force Russia to decide whether to intervene."

One need only to look at what has transpired in Donetsk and Luhansk, and Russia's current military operation in Ukraine, to understand how prescient Burns' cable was.

Burns, however, was ignored. So, too, was Putin, who had been lecturing the West ever since his landmark speech at the 2007 Munich Security Conference, where he famously called out the US for having "overstepped its national borders in every way." Putin declared, "This is visible in the economic, political, cultural and educational policies it imposes on other nations. Well, who likes this? Who is happy about this?" He was greeted by silence.

"I am convinced," Putin told the assembled leadership of the Western world, "that we have reached that decisive moment when we must seriously think about the architecture of global security. And we must proceed by searching for a reasonable balance between the interests of all participants in the international dialogue."

At Munich, the Russian president warned that Western polices "stimulate an arms race." He repeatedly warned the US and Nato that President George W. Bush's precipitous decision to withdraw

About us

In early May of 2021, several Patriots were discussing how censorious the mainstream media (MSM) had gotten. One thing led to another, they challenged me to get a local, thought provoking paper off the ground...from scratch... so with a dedicated team of volunteers we got it done! Thank you all.

Unfortunately, due to unforeseen life circumstances and time constraints the rest of the original team left the paper solely to Leesa to undertake. I am grateful for Cheryl Reid stepping up from the already overwhelming amount of work she is doing as accounts manager and distribution to help even more. We are very excited to have a news outlet that is an all woman owned and operated company.

Our desire for this paper is to provide counter arguments and stories not covered by the MSM. We will be giving voice to dissenting opinions that you may or may not agree with. That will be for you to decide. Obviously, none of us will ever agree completely with anyone. However, when we set aside our petty differences, AMAZING things can result! THAT is why we do this!

Volunteers needed

Currently everyone on the staff is an unpaid volunteer. Our readership is growing rapidly and we need some outstanding volunteers to help us to continue to publish this paper.

Parker Arizona now has...wait for it...an Indoor Farmer's Market!

Tucked away in the corner of the California Shoppes in Parker, AZ is a small business that is working hard to do big things. Hannah Parker took the small thrift store over in February of 2021, and has been on a mission ever since to re-interpret the look and feel of the place. The store, now called "The Ark", has gone through a lot of changes and as the repeat customers like to say "is always changing".

The idea behind all the transformation it has undergone, is in an effort to present a clean and organized store with a chill vibe that brings customers used items in "great condition" at a decent (fair) price. Hannah says, "With all the social media hype of 'thrifting', a lot of thrift stores are price gouging people for used items. I'm resisting that fad and sticking to the true idea of what a thrift store is: recycling and reasonable prices."

The small store offers a little bit of everything and takes in donations from people looking to re-home their clothes, kitchenware, home items and some furniture. They are not a non-profit (501c3), so there are no tax benefits for donors, but the network of donations keeps this small store teeming with new treasures for shoppers and a location for people to drop off their unwanted items instead of tossing them in the trash.

After a year of being open, changes are still happening. A second store suite will open on March 7th, which will display the furniture and collector-type items that the store has for sale. A small, private, outdoor patio will be set up for people to bring lunch or hang out to read a book or just pause for a few minutes. The original suite is being sectioned off to incorporate...wait for it...an Indoor Farmer's Market!

Hannah says that the farmer's market, which is currently set up to sell fresh produce, herbs and plant starts, fits right in with the store. Why? It's a "simple life market" - reduce waste, eat healthy and give back. She says "There are different forms of wellness a person needs, and one of the most important is how we take care of our physical bodies. Without our health, we really have no need for much else."

Offering fresh vegetables, fruits and herbs will be a major part of the store. New future additions are in the making, like an indoor herb wall for customers to buy fresh herb clippings, canned preserves, microgreens and much more!

The idea of offering customers a local produce and herb section is much more than another grocery option in Parker. Farmer's markets provide varieties of produce that is not offered in chain grocers and keeps food local. Beside that, the market will promote families to start gardens and grow food and educate consumers on organic choices. Hannah says, "Community farmer's markets are all about keeping food local and supporting small farms. It's important to keep food local because it's picked when it's nutritionally ready. Farmer's markets reject the idea of wasting food that is not aesthetically appealing, and they give back to the local economy." The Ark market is looking for local gardens to become market sellers and will buy their surplus harvest items.

Hannah believes that a business should always be improving and innovative to offer the community services they need, especially in a rural community area, such as La Paz County. Good, healthy options belong everywhere, not just the big city. So as long as The Ark is around, they will always be having fun changing things up just a bit!

Take a drive to say hi and enjoy the little gem in the desert at 820 S. California Avenue, Suite 105 Parker, AZ 85344. ## Building a Brighter Future

Wanttoknow.info/brighterfuture

All the darkness of the world cannot put out the light of a single candle.

The Current Situation

Together, we can and will build a brighter future. Yet in order to give meaningful suggestions to further support this, we first need to speak candidly about what's happening in the world at present. It appears that there are factions within the world's power elite which still desire to exert as much control as possible over the world.

Their primary means for establishing control are through promoting fear, secrecy, and polarization, and through distracting people from their deeper purpose in life. When these factions gain greater power and control, our freedoms and liberties are increasingly taken away, sometimes without our even realizing it.

Fear is used as a powerful tool of control by these factions of the global elite. "The terrorists want to kill us all. Your job, savings, and retirement are no longer secure. You are either for us or against us. We might be attacked at any time." All of these messages push us towards fear. And by encouraging us to focus blame on others such as terrorists and "evil" leaders, the global power brokers push us away from feeling in control of our lives and towards the role of powerless victims, so that we look to them for protection. The more we slip into fear and being victims, the easier it is for us to be manipulated.

Secrecy leads to control through preventing the exposure of hidden agendas, and through breeding distrust, suspicion, and paranoia in the world. In the name of "national security," we have been told ever more frequently that we should not know what is happening behind closed doors in government. We are encouraged to keep vigilant watch over our neighbors, over those who question the government, and over those who look or act different from us, as they could secretly be terrorists in sheep's clothing. Rampant suspicion and secrecy cause us to lose touch with the common humanity we share with all around us.

Polarization leads to "us vs. them" ways of thinking. Divide and conquer is a tactic that has been used successfully by the power elite of the world for centuries. As long as people focus on blaming and attacking "the enemy," they are not likely to look for the deeper causes of their problems. Controlling factions of the power elite work to keep public and media attention focused on issues which divide us into two polarized camps, so that their greatest concerns of power and control go unnoticed. The power brokers then control both sides of the divided public by assuring that corporate ownership of the media and key candidates from all political parties support their deeper power and polarization agendas, which often involve war profiteering.

A final subtle, yet powerful method of gaining control is to distract people from their purpose in life. Consider that television, radio, and movies have been filled with ever more greed, violence, and empty sex. Our educational system has increasingly prioritized passing tests over developing intelligence and creativity. Excessive corporate control of the media has limited what news we receive, and often shaped our decisions and the way we think. Our attention has been subtly diverted from our deeper purpose in life to the more superficial attractions of sex, consumerism, and money.

When we succumb to fear, secrecy, out in the world – and to inspire others to do the same – we are changing our collective direction and building a solid foundation for a brighter future. Several actions can help us to take firm steps in that direction.

Develop purpose and intentions for your life. To live rich, full lives in today's complex world, it's vitally important to give your life clear direction by exploring what is deepest and most meaningful to you, and by developing a life purpose and life intentions based on this. Then choose to live your intentions and follow your purpose to the best of your ability every day. By choosing to live with clear direction and focus, life becomes deeper and more meaningful. This then weakens the seduction of consumerism and media hype which distract us from our purpose, and allows us to more effectively focus on building a brighter future.

Choose to transform fear into acceptance and love. When we notice ourselves feeling fear, we can trace the roots of that fear, so that we are able to identify our core challenges and deal more consciously with them. We can open to guidance from friends, teachers, and spiritual sources in helping us to move from fear to acceptance and understanding. We can also transform our fears through welcoming the ever-present love of our divine creator, and the love that lies always deep within our own hearts, and in the hearts of those around us. In doing this, we begin to recognize fear as an invitation to growth.

Building a Brighter Future

Become aware of when you are playing the role of victim, and choose instead to take personal responsibility for building a brighter future. In blaming others for our problems, we often avoid taking responsibility for how much we are involved in creating these problems through the choices we make. Whenever we catch ourselves playing the role of victim by blaming others (including the power elite) for everything that's wrong in our lives, we can choose to take a look inside ourselves, and to explore and take responsibility for our role in what's happening. By focusing less on blaming others, and more on improving ourselves, every one of us can make a difference both in our lives and in our world.

Avoid secrecy and encourage openness and transparency. An important way we can do this is to work together to inform friends and colleagues about the major cover-ups being hidden from the public. Then in our personal lives, when we notice ourselves keeping information from others, we can examine our motives for this secrecy. Are we withholding information out of our own self-interest, or because this is really what's best for all involved? And on a deeper level, where are we avoiding being honest with ourselves?

Move beyond polarization and the focus on "good vs. evil" and "us vs. them." Every person in the world has a heart. And each of us has a place in our heart that wants only to love and be loved. Consider the possibility that all of us are doing what we believe to be right based upon our beliefs, circumstances, and upbringing. As we focus less on blaming and judging "them" and more on supporting the highest motive in all people – including members of the power elite – we increasingly come to see that we are all one human family, and that we can choose to transform our world by working together for the good of all.

And finally, come together in groups and communities to support each other in making these positive changes. In these groups and communities, we support each other in transforming fear into acceptance and love. We exchange information about all that is being hidden from us and explore ways to move beyond polarization. We take responsibility for our lives and to be the best that we can be. When we gather in community to support each other in these intentions, we join in building a growing network of inspiration and empowerment around the planet.

These suggestions emphasize changing the collective consciousness of the world by transforming both our own personal lives and the world around us. Let us do all that we can to stop destructive behaviors of the global power elite. Yet let us not overly focus on changing the outside world without first having a solid internal foundation, lest we fall into blaming others, and into the polarizing "us vs. them" ways which only further divide us. By reminding ourselves that the most powerful change starts inside each one of us, we can develop more balance and strength to then work towards positive change out into the world.

As we change ourselves from the inside out, we send ripples of inspiration and healing out into the world. By joining together in groups and communities to support each other in this, those ripples become waves which are powerfully helping to build a brighter future for all of us.

also share our life purpose and intentions and encourage each other to live these as fully as we can. And we inspire each other to

with a unanimous "Yes."

"Now", said the professor, "I want you to recognize that this jar represents your life.

The rocks are the most important things – your family, your partner, your health, your children – things that if everything else was lost and only they remained, your life would still be full. The pebbles are the other things that matter – like your job, your house, your car. The sand is everything else, the small stuff."

"If you put the sand into the jar first," he continued "there is no room for the pebbles or the rocks. The same goes for your life. If you spend all your time and energy on the small stuff, you will never have room for the things that are important to you. Pay attention to the things that are critical to your happiness. Play with your children. Take your partner out dancing. There will always be time to go to work, clean the house, give a dinner party, or fix the disposal."

"Take care of the rocks first – the things that really matter. Set your priorities. The rest is just sand."

A philosophy professor stood before his class with some items on the table in front of him. When the class began, wordlessly he picked up a very large and empty mayonnaise jar and proceeded to fill it with rocks, about 2 inches in diameter. He then asked the students if the jar was full. They agreed that it was

So the professor then picked up a box of pebbles and poured them into the jar. He shook the jar lightly. The pebbles, of course, rolled into the open areas between the rocks.

He then asked the students again if the jar was full. They agreed it was.

The professor picked up a box of sand and poured it into the jar.

Of course, the sand filled up the remaining open areas of the jar. He then asked once more if the jar was full. The students responded

Prevent Unconstitutional Wars: Get US Out Of NATO

Alert Summary URGENT: NATO is a UN-subservient alliance that threatens U.S. national sovereignty. It is imperative that Congress follow the advice of the Founding Fathers and withdraw the U.S. from this entangling alliance.

Amid increasing tension in Ukraine about a potential Russian invasion, President Joe Biden ordered 3,000 U.S. troops to Poland, Germany, and Romania on February 2, 2022, demonstrating the United States' "commitment to NATO Article 5," Pentagon press secretary John Kirby told reporters. On February 11, another 3,000 U.S. troops were deployed to Poland. Additionally, 8,500 U.S. soldiers are on "heightened alert" for deployment to Eastern Europe.

In addition to sending more U.S. troops to Eastern Europe, troops from Florida's National Guard were in Ukraine. The Washington Examiner reported: "Florida's Army National Guard's 53rd Infantry Brigade Combat Team has been executing a train-and-advise mission to develop the Ukrainian Armed Forces' Combat Training Center-Yavoriv since 2015, and their work remains ongoing despite the threat from Russia. The 7th Army Training Command oversees the Joint Multinational Training Group-Ukraine." On February 12, the Pentagon ordered those troops to leave Ukraine. It is unclear when they will leave the country, and either way, it illustrates how entangled the U.S. has already gotten in Ukraine's foreign and defense policies.

The same article also pointed out that Marine Lt. Col. Anton T. Semelroth told Task & Purpose, an online military news website, that in the event war does break out in Ukraine, the Florida National Guard troops are not allowed to accompany Ukrainian troops into battle. Nevertheless, these troop deployments to Eastern Europe and U.S. presence in Ukraine greatly increase the potential for creating a pretext to drag the U.S. into yet another undeclared and unconstitutional war overseas.

At the heart of the conflict is the Deep State and Biden administration's desire to further expand the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) eastward, extending membership to Ukraine — a country that borders Russia and was previously a Soviet socialist republic that comprised part of the U.S.S.R. from 1919 to 1991.

However, rather than expanding

NATO, the U.S. should withdraw from it. The U.S. currently contributes about 22 percent of the NATO budget — the largest share of any NATO country, meaning that U.S. taxpayers foot a large chunk of the bill for Europe's defense.

NATO was originally founded in 1949 as a collective-security alliance between the United States, Canada, Denmark, Iceland, the Ultimately, however, NATO is a regional arrangement under the auspices of the United Nations. Article 52, Section 1, of Chapter VIII of the UN Charter states: "Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations. (Emphasis added)."

In other words, under the charter, the UN allows its member nations

United Kingdom, Norway, the Netherlands, Luxemburg, Belgium, France, Portugal, and Italy. It was established on the basis of countering the Soviet Union and its captive communist satellite nations. The NATO military alliance is cemented in Article 5 of the founding North Atlantic Treaty, which states in part: "The Parties agree that an armed attack against one or more of them in Europe or North America shall be considered an attack against them all and consequently they agree that, if such an armed attack occurs, each of them, in exercise of the right of individual or collective self-defense recognised by Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations, will assist the Party or Parties so attacked by taking forthwith, individually and in concert with the other Parties, such action as it deems necessary, including the use of armed force, to restore and maintain the security of the North Atlantic area."

to form regional arrangements so long as they are consistent with the "Purposes and Principles of the United Nations." Furthermore, Article 53, Section 1, of Chapter VIII of the UN Charter states, "The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilize such regional arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority."

The UN Security Council, which includes non-NATO countries like Communist China and Russia — which NATO is ostensibly designed to defend Western Europe from and is currently at odds with over Ukraine — can use regional arrangements such as NATO to enforce UN Security Council resolutions. And if that wasn't enough, Article 54 of Chapter VIII of the UN Charter further mandates that: "The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.” In other words, both Russia and Communist China are kept aware of NATO’s activities.

NATO is nothing more than an armed extension of the globalist United Nations. Article 1 of the North Atlantic Treaty reaffirms NATO’s subservience to the UN, stating: “The Parties undertake, as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations, to settle any international dispute in which they may be involved by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security and justice are not endangered, and to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

Ultimately, NATO serves the purposes of the United Nations. A UN Security Council resolution can authorize the use of force and use NATO as its instrument of enforcement, thereby calling American troops and forces to combat anywhere around the world without a congressional declaration of war or the consent of the American people through their elected representatives in Congress.

Likewise, Article 5 of the North Atlantic Treaty affirms “that an armed attack against one or more of them in Europe or North America shall be considered an attack against them all...” This means that if, say, Montenegro or any other NATO member is attacked, it is to be regarded in the same manner as an attack against the United States.

As a result, the U.S. Armed Forces can likewise be called to action in the defense of that country. This clause also has the capability of dragging the United States into a war — possibly even a world war — as some are currently predicting regarding the U.S.-Russia stalemate over Ukraine. NATO increases the likelihood of entangling the U.S. into a regional, or world war, without even a congressional declaration of war.

Another infringement on U.S. sovereignty by NATO is its Status of Forces Agreement. U.S. servicemen and their families stationed in NATO countries are not under U.S. jurisdiction. Rather, they are subject to the courts and laws of the foreign country hosting them. The Status of Forces Agreement of the NATO Pact places members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their civilian component under the jurisdiction of those foreign courts and laws.

Through NATO, the American taxpayer foots the bill for Europe’s defense, even risking the possibility of being dragged into war, meanwhile it places those American servicemen and their families in Europe under their foreign courts and laws. As for NATO itself, it is ostensibly designed to protect Europe from one of the very countries that is informed about all of its activities and that can determine whether it is used for enforcement action through the United Nations Security Council.

This is virtually analogous to stating that the main purpose of a city’s local police department is to protect its residents from a city councilman’s seat!

NATO does not serve the American people or U.S. national security. Instead, it serves the United Nations to carry out its goals of bringing about a collectivist New World Order.

The United States should heed the wisdom of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson and withdraw from this permanent and entangling alliance. Rather than concerning itself with the defense and borders of Ukraine or those of a NATO member country, Congress and the White House should prioritize the U.S.’s own national defense and southern border with Mexico.

Tell your U.S. representative and senators to start putting America first by pulling out of international entangling alliances such as NATO.

JBS.org provides a way to easily contact your legislators by email, phone, tweet and even video message.

Arizona Health Dep’t Takes Down COVID Vaccine Ad for False Claim But Incredibly Repeats Same False Claim in Letter to ICAN Notifying it Took Down the Ad!

We very recently reported that, after a legal demand sent by ICAN’s attorneys, the health department for the largest county in Arizona, Maricopa County, which includes Phoenix, removed an ad from YouTube that falsely claimed vaccinated individuals did not have to worry about spreading COVID-19.

A few days after that report, ICAN’s attorneys received a letter from an attorney representing Maricopa County. This letter is incredible. It acknowledges that the ad was taken down but goes on to say, don’t worry, the county otherwise conveys accurate health advice, including that the vaccines are “one of the many ways to stop the spread of COVID-19”! What?!

It appears the officials running Maricopa County are confused or completely incompetent, if not both. To be clear, they took down the video after ICAN, through its attorneys, explained that it was false to claim that vaccinated people cannot spread the virus, but yet in the very same letter in which the county acknowledges taking down this false video, it simultaneously attempts to reassure ICAN that it promotes accurate health advice by informing ICAN that the vaccine stops transmission!

This is another great example of why informed consent is so critical. And ICAN will never stop fighting for informed consent and the ability for every person, without government coercion, to decide whether to consent to an injection.

Notice that Gosar continually improves his scores, while Simpson's scores continue to decline.

A Term Limits Amendment would eliminate BOTH Simpson and Gosar! Who will the VOTERS replace them with?

Example: Nancy Pelosi
Nancy gets re-elected over and over again by a huge majority of voters in her district, ranging from 85% in 2012 to 77% in 2020. IF Nancy were to be TERM LIMITED, do you really think VOTERS will elect a constitutional conservative to fill her seat? Unless VOTERS are educated on the dangers of socialism and big government, they will simply replace one bad representative with another bad representative. Maybe her grand-daughter or another family member!

Americans already have TRUE Term Limits and can VOTE OUT the one with a poor voting record and RE-ELECT the one with a good voting record!

EXCLUSIVE: Arizona Senate President Karen Fann Claims “We Really Don’t Have a Mechanism To Decertify” – Mark Finchem Gave Us The Mechanism

By Jordan Conradson
www.thegatewaypundit.com
February 24, 2022

Arizona Senate President Karen Fann recently told The Gateway Pundit that she does not believe the Arizona Legislature can decertify the fraudulent 2020 election.

After the Maricopa County election audit discovered evidence of illegal activity during the 2020 election and hundreds of thousands of questionable ballots, Arizona State Representative Mark Finchem introduced a resolution to decertify Arizona’s irredeemably compromised election.

Senate President Karen Fann

played a major role in producing the first-ever full forensic election audit in history, but she has now taken the stance of AZ House Speaker Rusty Bowers, deeming this historic resolution to reclaim a stolen election unconstitutional.

Representative Finchem challenged Rusty Bowers’ legal counsel to debate the legality of his resolution with his attorneys. Perhaps Senate President Fann’s attorneys can join.

On Tuesday, the Gateway Pundit correspondent Jordan Conradson spoke to Senate President Fann about her elections bill, SB1642, and decertification.

Conradson: There’s no doubt that election laws were broken, the machines were connected to the Internet, files were deleted. What are your thoughts on representative Finchem’s resolution to decertify?

Fann: Well, as much as some of our people would not like to hear this, but we really don’t have a mechanism to decertify. The scholars will tell you that. Now here’s what will happen because this is new. Anybody watch House of Cards?...

Conradson: You said there’s not a mechanism to decertify. Mark Finchem’s resolution is the mechanism.

Fann: But it’s past the time you can’t do retroactive.

Conradson: But you can reclaim the electors.

Fann: No, you can’t. According to all the attorneys, we can’t do that. It’s past the time to do that. So let’s talk about, I know we would love to.

a mechanism to do that, it’s only Arizona.

Conradson: how do we restore voter confidence if we don’t fix 2020?

Fann: Well, first and foremost, we have to reinstall voter confidence with the 2022 election because it’s coming up right now. So while we’re still fighting the 2020 battle, we need to make sure that you know the liberal media Democrats are doing everything in their power to divide us Republicans. This is exactly what they want. When they see us fighting each other when they see us attack each other. They are loving it. They are just rubbing their hands together.

Conradson reached out to Fann after the interview to ask if there was a pathway to nullification of the stolen 2020 election and what that would potentially look like. Fann said she does not know the answer to that question and will need to consult attorneys on the matter.

Fixing 2020 is not about Donald Trump. When you’re caught stealing something, you’re supposed to return it.

A Rasmussen poll shows that 59% of voters say cheating was likely in the 2020 election. We must decertify the election to restore confidence in our elections.

Rasmussen Reports
Field Guide to Election Integrity
December 23, 2021

ALL U.S. National Likely Voters

* 59% now say cheating was likely in the 2020 elections, just up from 56%.

* 55% of Black voters say there was cheating in the 2020 elections.

* 55% support 2020 election audits including 53% of Black voters.

* 60% agree that opponents of requiring a Photo ID to vote just want to make it easy to cheat in elections, including 63% of Black voters.

* 61% say Election Reform must happen in Swing States like PA, MI, GA, WI, & AZ where voters have lost confidence.

* 65% say preventing cheating more important than making it easier to vote.

* 66% say wider use of mail-in voting will lead to more cheating in elections.

* 70% say private ‘Zuckerbucks’ type partisan election funding is “a bad thing for American Democracy,” including 52% of Black voters.

* 75% say requiring Photo ID to vote is a reasonable measure to protect the integrity of elections, including 73% of Black voters.

* 75% of Black Voters either believe the level of difficulty to vote is currently about right or believe it is already too easy to vote.

Rep Finchem recently told the War Room Posse that if Speaker Rusty Bowers refuses to hear his resolution, he will use a parliamentary tool to force the resolution to the floor and force a vote.

Contact Arizona Senate President Karen Fann, Speaker Rusty Bowers, and Arizona legislators to strongly encourage their support for decertification.

Nobody misses Trump more than I do. Trust me on this one. I wish he was there. Look at all the horrible things that have happened in America over the last, you know, 14 months. It’s appalling, and I’d love to have him back, but we have to work within the system. And part of that system is that we do not have in 2020 or even until now. There is no mechanism to actually decertify as much as we would love Trump to be back in, there’s not. The mechanism is that what we do is we do audits, and we find...

Conradson: So are you saying there’s no mechanism to decertify federally, are you saying the state legislature...

Fann: State legislature.

Conradson: Do we not have the plenary power over our elections?

Fann: No. Not according to the attorneys. I’m not an attorney. I’m listening to all of the attorneys and the judges that are telling me that no, we don’t, and they will give you the reasons why on this one. So let’s move on that one. And let me tell you that the best thing that you can do on this one is because of those problems, and remember, even if Arizona had

Connecting the Dots on Covid-19 Injection:

Synergistic Effects of the Spike Protein, Graphene Oxide, Parasites and 5G Damage the Human Body

by: Bill Lowstuter
billlowstuter@msn.com

This paper aims to shed light on information and resources pertaining to the Covid-19 injections that the mainstream media does not report. Six corporations own essentially all of the legacy mainstream media (MSM) we have come to rely on. MSM includes Comcast, Disney, Sony, Viacom CBS, FOX, and AT&T, and they are beholden to their advertisers and sponsors. Increasingly in recent years, those sponsors consist of various arms of Big Pharma. Thus, the pharmaceutical industry dictates a great deal of what we do and do not hear in the media. They also own the "facts" coming from the CDC, the FDA, Anthony Fauci, and the medical establishment.

Graphene Oxide (GO), Graphene Hydroxide (GH)
Graphene oxide / graphene hydroxide (GO/GH) has been discovered in the Pfizer, Moderna, Johnson & Johnson (Janssen) and AstraZeneca Covid-19 injections by numerous researchers around the world. GO/GH is not on the list of ingredients for the Covid-19 vaccine by any manufacturer but is in the vials of all of them. It is the main component comprising 98% of the solids. In the Moderna and Pfizer patents GO is not listed because it is classified as a "trade secret" and because it is known to be toxic. GO has been used in flu vaccines since 2019 but in smaller doses.

Graphene oxide is a two-dimensional structured material with a hexagonal honeycomb lattice composed of carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen atoms, and is the thinnest and most widely used non-metallic nanomaterial. It is one atom thick with a thickness of 0.1 nanometers and a width of 30 nanometers. A nanometer is one billionth of a meter. It acts like a super sharp razor blade in the human body that can slice every tissue it contacts. It can enter the nucleus of cells and can cut DNA. As it flows through the capillaries it causes cuts in the smooth vascular epithelial lining (SVE) of the walls which cause blood clotting and an inflammatory response in the blood vessels, organs and damaging the red blood cells and tissue, little by little. It destroys the organs in the body by cutting them up. The heart and brain are cut up, contributing to all the heart attacks, strokes and blood clots. It is clear why there are so many cardiovascular issues and strokes post vaccination.

Does GO/GH Absorb a Particular Electromagnetic Frequency Waveband?

GH is magnetic and reacts to Electro-Magnetic Frequencies (EMF). Every molecule and every material has an absorption spectrum – there are specific frequencies where it absorbs energy the most. When GO/GH is exposed to the EMF radiation of 4G and 5G phone frequencies it will absorb the energy of that radiation and convert the energy into electricity. Absorption of the energy excites electrons in the GO/GH which become positively charged material and will destroy tissue. Surface charge electrostatic action causes morphological (structural) changes and cell lysis (breaking down of the cell structure), such as rupturing of red blood cells. People who have problems with vaccination reactions, possibly live near 5G radio antennas. Even without GO/GH in the body from a Covid injection, 5G radiation can make unvaccinated people sick.

Within 15 minutes of injection the graphene nano razor blades are dispersed throughout the entire body. It subsequently accumulates in the lungs, liver, kidneys, heart, brain, reproductive organs, bone marrow and spleen, resulting in acute or chronic injury. Different organs exhibit diverse levels of graphene nanomaterial accumulation and clearance. The accumulation of GO/GH from the Chemtrails in the sky is inhaled into the lungs as well as from the Covid jab. In the lungs, graphene is engulfed by alveolar macrophages (white blood cells).

The sudden deaths of the athletes on the playing field are due to the increased heart rate with the physical exertion, therefore increasing the flow of blood through the blood vessels, lungs and the heart. The nano-razor blades cut the blood vessels, create red blood cell clots, cut heart muscles and valves apart which cause massive heart failure.

The diverse and severe adverse effects, including death, which are exhibited within several days of injection can be explained by the action of the graphene nano-razor blades in the body.

Since EMF fields will induce an electrical charge in the GO/GH, this will naturally disturb the electrical nerve synapse signals in the human body. The free electrons form electrical currents short circuiting the body's brain, cardiac (the electrical system that powers the cardiac cycle of the heart), and nervous system. This is likely the cause of the tremors, shaking and seizures exhibited by some vaccinated people.

Nationwide, the 5G phone network is not fully in place or fully active currently. The number of antenna installations in neighborhoods and their utilization will increase dramatically in 2022. The antenna installations never slowed down during the pandemic. Because of the higher frequencies of 5G, the radiation cannot travel as far. This means antennas will need to be placed every three hundred feet or so and broadcast at higher power levels. Look for them on power poles in your neighborhood. Everyone will be bathed in higher power and higher frequency radiation as a result. More people will become sick with severe adverse reactions. Hospitals have a lot of telephones, electronic equipment and computers generating EM fields. Even people who have not received the Covid injection can become sick from the 5G alone.

How GO/GH Impacts Human Health

Here are some of the human health effects of GO/GH, as compiled by researchers and independent investigators.

The GO/GH has direct interaction with cell membranes: Damages the outer membranes and causes the release of intracellular components, leading to cell death. Once GO/GH penetrates the cell, it can destroy excessive amounts of lipid membrane, induce cell membrane degradation and cell death.

The toxicological mechanisms of GO/GH include inflammatory response, DNA damage, apoptosis (cell death), autophagy (degradation of the cell) and necrosis (cell injury which results in premature cell death). Cytotoxicity (toxic to cells) causing decreasing cell adhesion, inducing cell apoptosis (cell death), and entering lysosomes (destroy invading viruses and bacteria), mitochondrion (provide cell energy), endoplasm (dense part of a cell) and cell nucleus (contains most of the cell's DNA). Surface charge electrostatic action causes morphological (cell structure) changes and cell lysis (cell membrane breakdown), such as rupturing red blood cells.

GO/GH has toxic effect on nerve tissue, brain cells showed degradation and necrosis (cell injury which leads to cell death), nerve tissue damage, brain bleeds and damage to neurons (basic working unit of the brain, transmits signals to other nerve cells) – neurotoxic (Damage to brain and nervous system).

A study on female mice who mated and became pregnant were given GO/GH at various stages and at different doses. "However, the pregnant mice had abortions at all doses, and most pregnant mice died when a dose of GO/GH was injected during late gestation." So, the pharmaceutical companies, the CDC, the FDA and Fauci all know that GO/GH causes spontaneous abortions, still births, dead babies, and dead mothers.

The Covid-19 Injections and the Spike Protein

Pfizer confessed to the FDA under the heading "Safety Concerns" that mRNA jabs can cause "Vaccine-Associated Enhanced Disease" (VAED) which can be a respiratory infection / dysfunction also. The Covid virus is a respiratory infection from a virus genetically altered by humans in a laboratory, and the vaccine for that virus infection CAUSES the human respiratory system to suffer an enhanced respiratory disease. Before the Emergency Use Authorization, the CDC, FDA, NIAID and Fauci were aware the spike protein would cause damage to the smooth vascular endothelial cells lining the circulatory system. It is the spike protein created by the vaccine that that is toxic and does the damage.

The Covid vaccine spike proteins destroy the body's ability to protect the integrity of DNA repair pathways, paving the way for cancer to grow and spread, as certain key functions of DNA repair degrade due to spike proteins, leading to immunodeficiency. Injecting spike proteins into the body damages the immune system.

Adverse Reactions

General disorders and nervous system disorders top the chart for these known adverse reactions. Plus, three times more women get affected than men, for some unknown reason (population control?). Is this vaccine designed for gender-specific damage to reduce the population? Pfizer, Moderna, the CDC, the FDA and Fauci certainly knew about it.

So here they come –the topmost common and SERIOUS adverse reactions to Covid vaccines:

- Myocarditis, pericarditis - heart attacks
- New nervous system disorders – shaking, trembling, seizures, convulsions
- New respiratory disorders – hypoxia related inflammation
- Damage to circulatory system endothelial cells - blood clots
- New musculoskeletal disorders

- New gastrointestinal disorders
- Damage to mitochondria – they generate the chemical power for the cells
- Damage to kidneys, liver, brain, lungs, bone marrow, spleen and heart
- Anaphylactic Shock (nearly 10%) – a sudden, severe systemic allergic reaction
- New infections, including Covid and its variants
- Spontaneous abortions, birth defects, still births and infant mortality
- Infertility – male and female, dramatic menstrual changes
- Cancers increasing – 2,000% increase in the vaccinated in just ten months
- Creates Vaccine Induced acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (VIAIDS)

Shedding of Spike Protein

Dr. Christiane Northrup says that thousands upon thousands of unvaccinated women are now experiencing dramatic changes to their periods from being around others who were injected with Covid-19 shots. "Something is clearly being transmitted," she explained, revealing horrific stories about babies as young as just a few months experiencing blood clots coming out of their vaginas after having been in contact with recently "inoculated" people.

Other medical reports indicate the spike protein can be shed from the vaccinated to the unvaccinated

from the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty and then to deploy anti-missile defense systems in two Nato countries, Poland and Romania, posed a direct threat to Russian national security.

In 2018, Putin unveiled new types of Russian strategic nuclear weapons designed to defeat US missile defenses. "No one has listened to us," Putin declared at the time. "You listen to us now."

Putin's 2018 nuclear announcement should have alerted the West to a critical aspect of the Russian president's personality. "You will have to assess that new reality and become convinced that what I said today isn't a bluff ... trust me," Putin said at the time.

Nyet means nyet. It was a simple message laid out in uncomplicated terms. Russia was not bluffing. Yet the US and Nato brushed off the Russian concerns, operating under the premise that their principle of an "open-door" policy regarding Nato membership somehow trumped Russian concerns about its national security.

Perception management overtook reality, as Nato tried to sell Russia on the notion that it had nothing to fear, since Nato was ostensibly a defensive alliance. The US and Nato shrugged off Russia's narrative, which cited Nato's bombing of Belgrade in 1999, deployment to Afghanistan in 2001, and intervention in Libya in 2011 as prima facie evidence that post-Cold War Nato had morphed into an offensively oriented military alliance whose presence on Russia's borders constituted an existential threat.

Nato membership remained on the table for Ukraine and Georgia. Moreover, Nato began arming and training the militaries of these former Soviet republics, integrating them into formal Nato exercises that transformed the Ukrainian and on Feb. 24.

Where We Are Going

The major takeaway from this unfolding situation should be that Russia's president does not bluff, and that the West would do well to listen closely to what he has to say. As Russian troops poured across the Ukrainian border, Western diplomats and pundits proclaimed shock and dismay. But Russia had been clear about what it wanted, and what the consequences of failing to get that would be. This war was predictable, if only the West had listened.

The fighting rages in Ukraine. How this war will end is uncertain. The old military adage that no plan survives initial contact with the enemy applies in full. What is known is that the US and Europe are imposing a second tranche of hard-hitting sanctions designed to punish Russia.

It is important to point out that anyone who believed this second round of sanctions would compel a change in Russian behavior will be disappointed. Russia's course of action has incorporated the full range of sanctions planned by the West — not a difficult task, since there had been wide speculation about their scope since sanctions were first threatened in spring 2021.

The problem isn't the sanctions, but what follows. These sanctions exhaust the options the US, Nato and the EU have for responding to Russia's invasion of Ukraine. They have no follow-on plan. Russia, on the other hand, has such a plan. It has been very clear about what the future holds. Again, however, the West has not been listening.

Russia will not take this second tranche of sanctions laying down. Putin has made clear that Russia will respond in kind, using symmetrical (i.e., countersanctions) and asymmetrical (i.e., cyberattacks) actions designed to disrupt the economies of targeted nations and entities. Russia has made no secret that this is its intended course of action, but as with its "military-technical" solution for Ukraine, the West shrugged off the Russian threat. Russia, however, does not bluff.

Russia has also made clear that its security guarantees go beyond preventing Ukraine from joining Nato and include the return of Nato's military infrastructure to pre-1997 levels. In short, all Nato forces deployed into Eastern Europe must be returned to their home bases, and the two missile

Georgian militaries into de facto Nato proxies. Indeed, Ukrainian and Georgian troops deployed to Iraq and Afghanistan were under the Nato flag.

Russian sensitivities were heightened following the Maidan Revolution of 2014, which saw a pro-Russian president replaced by a decidedly pro-Western Ukrainian government that made Nato membership a legal mandate.

As Burns had predicted, Ukraine's push for Nato membership pushed Russia into a corner, prompting a demand by Russia, submitted to the US and Nato in December 2021, calling for written security guarantees that Ukraine would never join Nato. This Russian demand was ignored. Russia warned that failure to provide the demanded security guarantees would result in "military-technical" responses — a euphemism for war, which Russia implemented in full

Isn't it Interesting:

by: Cheryl Reid

Isn't it interesting that 6 major Mainstream Media (MSM) outlets terminated their work in Russia after Putin passed a law that said a reporter can get up to 15 years in prison for reporting knowingly fake news? (CNN, CBS News, Bloomberg, ABC News, BBC and CBC.) (1)

Isn't it interesting that Russia Times has been banned for putting out "propaganda" when our MSM has put out around 8 stories that have been proven to be false in one week?

Isn't it interesting that "fact checkers" only check "facts" on stories that don't line up with their biases?

Isn't it interesting that the press is accusing Russia of censoring the voice of the media, yet alternative news has been censored for years?

Naturally our MSM is trying to say Russia doesn't want anything reported that is against them or the military action in Ukraine. Our MSM is notorious for spreading fake news, we've seen it regularly over these last few years on Covid-19 and anything to do with President Trump. Why should we believe that they are not reporting fake news on Ukraine?

We want the real news. It doesn't matter if it makes one side of any issue look better than the other. It doesn't matter if it is contrary to what we believe. What matters is real news, not propaganda, fake news.

We want open dialog on any issue. You don't get to say anything you want to say and not allow us to say what we want to say. It sounds like "censorship for thee but not for me."

Is it all just a Distraction???

defense sites in Poland and Romania dismantled.

This is the demand that will drive future Russian relations with the West. Rather than acceding to Russia's demands, Nato has been doubling down on the reinforcement of its eastern flank, dispatching additional forces to Poland, Romania and the Baltics.

In response, Russia will create an analogous situation to what transpired in Belarus, namely the forward deployment of powerful Russian military formations in what will be, for all practical purposes, a militarized buffer zone separating Nato from Russia proper, with the exception of the Russian enclave of Kaliningrad.

The resulting standoff will closely resemble the Cold War, where Nato and Soviet-led Warsaw Pact forces faced off across the frontier separating East and West Germany. This is the new reality that the world woke up to on Feb. 24 — a Cold War that the West neither wanted, predicted nor is prepared to undertake.

Connecting the Dots

through breath, saliva, mucus, sexual fluids, blood, urine, fecal contamination, sweat and skin contact.

Parasites and Other Living Organisms in Covid-19 Injections

Dr. Carrie Madej appeared on the September 29, 2021, episode of The Stew Peters Show. She spoke about her shocking findings after viewing the Johnson & Johnson (Janssen) and Moderna Covid-19 vaccine products under a normal compound microscope that you can find in most high school labs. She described a living creature she saw in the Moderna liquid. "It was alive. It lifted itself up off the glass slide and its tentacles were moving. The organism pointed its tentacle up through the lens, like it was self-aware. It knew we were looking at it. Some people contacted me and Stew Peters, and said the creature looked like something called Hydra Vulgaris, one of six model organisms that cannot die. It continually re-generates itself. You can put it in a blender, and it will reassemble itself afterwards".

Dr. Robert Young identified another parasite in the Pfizer and Moderna shots called Trypanosoma cruzi, which bores into the muscles of the heart, causing blood clots, heart disease, and AIDS.

Dr. Franc Zalewski found parasites, noting that they are injected as eggs, which hatch, grow, and reproduce when warmed in the body. This is one reason that the Pfizer and Moderna vaccines must be stored at such cold temperatures, to keep the eggs from hatching and the parasites from becoming active. A total of 17 different heavy metals were also identified in all four vaccines by optical and spectrum electron microscopy.

Summary

When looking at the independent effects on the human body by the graphene oxide, the spike protein, and the parasites, we see they are working not just independently but the total impact is greater than the effect of each one alone. The list of adverse effects from the Covid vaccination above also applies to the studies of graphene oxide/hydroxide effects alone, without being in the vaccine. The graphene oxide/hydroxide, the spike protein (S1), and the parasites from the Covid injection all work together in a mutually enhancing relationship. The reactions reinforce each other to create adverse reactions in the body. They are synergistic!

The Covid-19 injection was deliberately designed to create massive damage that kills over a period of time with varying effects. Some vials were only a saline solution, with others having varying amounts of active ingredients. Some production lots were very toxic with higher numbers of severe adverse events and deaths. This is true of all four of the pharmaceutical companies having the same proportions. They can't have everyone getting sick and dying suddenly as we might begin to ask why and figure out they are poisoning us. This was planned and coordinated at the highest levels.

This makes it possible for the government to claim that it is not a result of the injections as they say there is "no correlation to prove causation. It is the fault of the unvaccinated." After a year of these synthetic mRNA genetic code toxic injections there is enough hospitalization data regarding severe adverse reactions and the deaths caused by the vaccine, that the causes are very clear to those who are willing to open their eyes and see for themselves.

Dr. McCullough says "We have evidence that the injuries and deaths are not accidental. The COVID shots are indeed injuring and killing people at unprecedented rates, despite what the lying CDC states."

What is Slippery Elm Bark?

by Herbmama

Slippery Elm Bark is the king of herbs for digestion. It is the inner bark of the tree & can grow up to 50 feet! It's also known as Red Elm, Moose Elm or Indian Elm. It has been used as an herbal remedy in Native American culture since the 19th century. It relieves a number of digestive issues and is rich in what we call mucilage, which is a substance that provides a coating when mixed with liquid. It also falls into the demulcent category which means....it coats the intestines & lining of the stomach & can soothe irritated bowels. With that protective coating, it helps to soothe and protect irritated body tissues including the mouth, throat, stomach & intestines. This makes it ideal for sore throats, coughs, GERD, bladder issues, Chron's, IBS, ulcerative colitis, diverticulitis, UTI's & diarrhea.

Lately it has become a very popular treatment for breast cancer & can also help to control the negative side effects of conventional breast cancer treatments. It is an anti-inflammatory & can boost the immune system. This gentle herb can also decrease urinary tract irritation, relieve acid reflux, relieve toothaches & gum infections. It contains high levels of iron, encouraging blood flow which can result in improving circulation. Slippery Elm can help relieve skin ailments as well.

There are no known side effects, as it is mainly a mucilage and is nutrient dense. It is so gentle to the

Does the Left Hate Altruism?

By: Jason D. Bland

For years the media and radical left have been fighting to divide Americans, destroy our national identity, and dissolve the fabric of our society, the belief “that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.” In its place, they have inserted a brainwashed culture that believes that just by having the wrong skin color you are inherently racist and lack empathy, that there are gross disparities between Americans of different skin color due to systemic racism, and that certain communities will be forever guilty of their ancestors’ past sins.

Ultimately, the media and radical left have been waging a war of identity politics, attacking our very foundation as racist and backward, despite the freedom and wealth it has provided to so many of us in today’s America. This war ignores the fact that a vast majority of people could care less about race and politics and would rather focus their time caring for their families and being good neighbors. Yet, the media continues to peddle perpetual racist snobbery that makes us hate each other. This is neither productive nor healthy.

In place of this media-focused campaign of self-loathing and woke ideology, Americans need to push back and reiterate the concepts of life, liberty, and happiness, remembering that we are created equally. This refocus on basic foundational principles will realign our nation’s thinking, and strengthen a shared cultural background, regardless of skin color.

A strong political leader has the awesome capacity to develop this mindset once more. Consider the words of John W. Gardner, who explained that leaders have the “significant role in creating the state of mind that is the society. They can serve as symbols of the moral unity of the society [and]... [m]ost important[ly], they can conceive and articulate goals that lift people out of their petty preoccupations.”

Our Founding Fathers understood this when they wrote the Declaration of Independence. They were building a foundation for society’s state of mind, for shared moral unity, and with an expectation that where society failed, new goals and aspirations could be created to fill the gaps. The Founders understood that they were fallible, imperfect, and that society would need to continually grow and develop to meet the people’s needs. However, this would only succeed if the first three priorities remained: life, liberty, and happiness.

In comparison to today’s secular society, the Founders had a distinct theological perspective on life. They followed a Judeo-Christian approach that established the fact that they were created by God. And because there was a God, they believed they should live their lives and govern in a particular way, something which has been lost to so many postmodern, woke ideologists.

The Founders would have been familiar with two key biblical verses. First, when Jesus explains that Christians “shall love their neighbor as yourself,” (Matthew 22:39), and second, in 1 Corinthians 10:24 the Apostle Paul writes, “[l]et no one seek his own, but each one the other’s well-being.” Both of these verses teach that we should live altruistically in nature, putting the needs of others before oneself. Selfish and egoistic behavior is not fulfilling or rewarding in of itself, plus it only tears apart the relationships we have with others. We all know someone who is completely self-absorbed, and it’s the last person you want to spend time with, and probably one of the last people you’re willing to trust.

If, or when, our society returns to an altruistic style of leadership and living, our society will be forever transformed. Instead of focusing on tearing each other down, the focus will be on lifting each other up. No longer would society accept or be sucked into the left’s hype and craze over identity politics and woke ideology that aims to divide, not bring people together. This is where the astute political leader, as Gardner referenced above, could step forward to unite all America and create moral unity.

This leader could follow the same thought process that fueled William Penn when he named Philadelphia, the premise that we should exhibit brotherly love. Our nation is only as strong as the bonds we have together with our fellow countrymen. If we fail to love our neighbor (because of skin color or political beliefs), or if we fail to put the needs of others before our own, our society will continually slide into a mire of despair and unhappy, self-loathing interactions with our own fellow citizens.

Russia... Ukraine... The Saga Continues...

Alex Jones (InfoWars.com Host) on Russia: So how do they convince the average American that Russia is about to attack? When the West is pumping the weapons in, the West is starting the fight, the West is running this whole operation, and of course the Ukrainians have some real beefs. I mean this has been going on forever. It's like your big brother Russia comes in and, you know, beats you up on a routine basis, but it's not the Huns, and it's not George Soros that's going to cut your son's balls off, OK?

So you can have the Russians in there or you can have George Soros literally going after your children. So that's where we are right now, and here's the final equation. It's very simple, if you're already escalating a war, you're already in a proxy war that's going into a quote hybrid war, that's what it is, that then goes into a full scale regional theater war that's destined to become an entire continental war and then a world war. That's how it works.

So how do you position Americans when you're escalating your attack, when you're punching the Russians harder and harder every day, sending in super high tech A-class weapons, what do you do? You say, "Oh my God, the Russians are about to attack!" So you're punching the Russians in the face. "Any day now the Russians are going to invade! The Russians are going to invade any moment!

The Russians are going to —" and they're firing missiles, artillery's blowing up, firing at them, and it's like, "The Russians any day are going to attack! The Russians any day are going to attack!" And then if the Russians show any footage of how they're being killed and slaughtered and things are blowing up and houses on fire and power plants are being vaporized, the news goes, "That's a false flag!

The Russians blew up their own stuff!"

So again, the Russians are in Eastern Ukraine, they're in a few other areas that they've annexed like Crimea and they're under attack. And the globalists just keep expecting in the offensive they've already launched against the Russian-held areas that the Russians are going to strike back and then that's called the Russian invasion, just like in Georgia in 2008 and that's just the facts, ladies and gentlemen. That's the facts. George Soros is there to take scalps, which are all the boys' testicles and the Russians and some Ukrainians don't want their sons' balls literally chopped off.

Del Bigtree (TheHighWire.com host) poses the question that everyone in the World should all be asking of our local and federal governments: "Do you consider yourself to be a Young Leader from Davos and the World Economic Forum that plans on making renters out of all of us around the World with the Great Reset?" He shares the video clip of Klaus Schwab and Vladimir Putin:

Klaus Schwab: names like Merkel, even Vladimir Putin and so on, they all have been young global leaders of the World Economic Forum. But what we are very proud of now is the young generation like Prime Minister Trudeau, the President of Argentina and so on certainly penetrate the cabinets.

So yesterday was a reception for Trudeau and I would know, half of his cabinet or even more than half of this cabinet actually are young global leaders of the World Economic Forum. It's true in Argentina and in France.

Vladimir Putin: Mr Schwab, dear Klaus, colleagues, I have been to Davos many times attending the events organized by Mr. Schwab, even back in the 1990's. Klaus just recalled that we met in 1992. Indeed during my time in St.

Petersburg, I visited this important forum many times. I would like to thank you for this opportunity today to convey my point of view to the expert community that gathers at this world-renowned platform, thanks to the efforts of Mr. Schwab.

Klaus has mentioned the conversation I had yesterday with the US President on extending the New Start. This is without a doubt a step in the right direction. Nevertheless the differences are leading to a downward spiral. As you are aware, the inability and unwillingness to find substantive solutions to problems like this in the 20th century led to the WWII catastrophe.

Of course such a heated global conflict is impossible in principle I hope. This is what I am pinning my hopes on, because this would be the end of humanity. However as I have said the situation could take an unexpected and uncontrollable turn - unless we do something to prevent this. There is a chance that we will face a formidable break down in global development, which will be fraught with a war of all, against all and attempts to deal with contradictions through the appointment of internal and external enemies and the destruction of not only traditional values, such as the family, which we hold dear in Russia, but fundamental rights such as the right of choice and privacy.

I would like to point out the negative demographic consequences of the ongoing social crisis and the crisis of values which could result in humanity losing entire civilizational and cultural continents. We have a shared responsibility to prevent this scenario, which looks like grim dystopia and to insure instead that our development takes a different trajectory - positive, harmonious and creative.

Paul Gosar: Mining American Manganese

By Paul Goar

Putin's war against Ukraine has reminded us just how important it is to have access to reliable domestic minerals for national security. America must stop making decisions tying financial and economic security to foreign nations. And we must absolutely put an end to the red tape that stymies the mining of critical minerals, many in our state of Arizona.

Take manganese for example. Manganese is a designated strategic defense mineral and is used in lithium-ion batteries to power electric vehicles. Unfortunately, America is 100% import-dependent, with China being the world's largest producer.

Fortunately, an unwanted stockpile of manganese ore in Wenden, Arizona is ripe to be re-mined and recycled to produce electrolytic manganese plates.

The manganese stockpile in Wenden is called the Western Stockpile and is under the United States Defense Logistics Agency jurisdiction. American Manganese, Incorporated developed a patented process to extract the manganese left in the existing stockpile remnants. The goal of the operation is to produce strategically important electrolytic manganese metal from unwanted, low-grade material.

American Manganese, Incorporated submitted its final report to the federal government, seldom that I see such a clearly amazing opportunity like in Wenden. This is a chance to be efficient with our conservation and our critical mineral supply chain.

The United States should never be wholly dependent on foreign sources for minerals that are critical to our national security. Advancing this mining project in Wenden is a strong first step stating "The patented American Manganese process represents a significant opportunity for producing electrolytic manganese metal, electrolytic manganese dioxide, and potentially battery-grade manganese sulfate."

It's amazing how far American technology can advance. Previously closed mining sites can now be re-mined for new materials that were missed.

The re-mining of old mine sites using new technology can help clean the environment, recycle waste for productive uses and lessen our dependence of foreign sources for critical minerals. As a Member of Congress, it is in securing a durable domestic supply and I look forward to this strategically important electrolytic manganese metal being produced in our own backyard!

Quartzsite post office to get an upgrade?

by: TFPF Staff

The Q post office has long been plagued with a challenging reputation for its inconsistent deliveries to the locals and the snowbirds. In the coming weeks the post office will change control from the previous postmaster, to a new officer in charge (OIC).

The incoming OIC off will be relocating from a post office that has a better reputation. According to my sources she is well liked and very efficient in the postal arena. The new OIC. may not be permanent, as that decision is made by the manager of post office operations in the district.

Her first order of business is going to be cleaning up many of the messes left behind by the previous postmaster and some unfortunate negligence.

Some of the challenges facing the new officer and charge will be a reputation of long wait times, poor package delivery, favoritism of the staff for certain customers and lackluster customer service.

I'm sure many of us are hopeful, but it will take time to get things on track. What we can do now is be supportive of the new OIC and give some time for the improvements to take effect.

Dealing with Cognitive Dissonance

By Jack Gleason
www.americanthinker.com

In an old episode of Star Trek, a powerful android threatened Captain Kirk and was defeated when asked an impossible question. Kirk actually employed “induced computer destruction” at least four times during the series.

The human brain is like a computer in some ways and holding conflicting views can be very uncomfortable. The term “cognitive dissonance” comes up regularly in political discussions, probably because these issues are rarely cut and dried, but are considered very important. It is defined as “the mental discomfort that results from holding two conflicting beliefs, values, or attitudes. People tend to seek consistency in their attitudes and perceptions, so this conflict causes feelings of unease or discomfort.”

If you feel strongly that a candidate you support for high office should be honest and you catch him lying, you may experience cognitive dissonance.

So how would someone resolve this conflict? Stephanie A. Sarkis Ph.D. explains in a Psychology Today article:

Choose to ignore the new conflicting information;
Commit even further to our beliefs;
Avoid exposure to contradictory information...

Take the case of a pro-abortion advocate whose main argument is “it’s my body and I have the right to make my own medical decisions,” who also believes in mandatory vaccines, even against someone’s personal will. How can this be resolved?

Looking at the coping behaviors listed above, someone might feel very uncomfortable learning that the vaccines are not as effective as promised, or the side effects are more dangerous than the disease. When we first heard of COVID we were told it was 5-10% fatal, since that was the death rate in the Washington nursing home.

One subconscious strategy might be to simply ignore the new information that COVID is not as deadly as first thought, or conclude that the side effects are overstated. With social media, it’s easy to only visit groups that agree with your views, while the other side is demonized.

A common reaction is to be even more adamant about your initial views that COVID is so deadly that it’s okay to force an injection on the unwilling, and believe that the side effects are just “right-wing delusions.” You might redouble your efforts to convince others to your side.

Another example is the view that people should be required to carry a vaccine passport, while simultaneously thinking that voter ID is racist. If people must be identified to ensure they’ve been vaccinated and boosted to protect others, why is it a bad idea for people to be properly identified in order to vote? What about people who might cheat by purchasing a fake vax passport? Isn’t that just as bad as people who might vote using someone else’s name?

Yet another common belief is to support a political party “because I’ve always been a (Democrat or Republican).” Party views can change over time. This is very similar to rooting for a football franchise simply because they were your home team growing up. An odd thing often happens. The star player you idolized on Monday is traded to another team and suddenly becomes a hated traitor the next day. He’s the same person, but has now switched sides.

Holding these conflicting views can be extremely uncomfortable and can lead to overreactions, such as cutting off communication with family members who have other opinions, or making statements online you would never make in person. Instead of listening to new information that might make you change your mind, you vehemently attack the messenger as stupid or brainwashed.

You might support laws that clearly violate basic human rights in order to maintain your belief position or be willing to accept harsh punishments for those who refuse to comply. Leaving these conflicts unchallenged means that large segments of our country will forever remain on opposite sides.

Since emotions are by definition not rational, most such discussions are taken personally and honest information is rarely discussed or considered. People devolve into reciting the standard talking points until they walk away in anger. Every Thanksgiving we are presented with liberal articles on how to survive turkey dinner with crazy Uncle Harold who thinks Trump is a great guy, or vaccines all contain poison.

Listen to a “discussion” on NPR or MSM about vaccines or “fair voting laws” and you only hear guests who already agree with each other. The opposing view is only presented on conservative media. People leave their echo chambers with the idea that everyone agrees with their side.

When it’s a candidate for local judge, it’s okay to disagree on who might be best to vote for. But when it involves basic issues of personal liberty, the health of your family, and possible economic disaster, it becomes very important to try to bridge the gap and initiate an honest dialogue.

One suggestion is to avoid going head on, but start by asking honest questions about their views on the issue. “I understand you support mandatory vaccines; can you tell me more?”

The key is truly being willing to listen to the other side. If there really is a good reason to force everyone to take an injection, then you should be willing to change your mind.

Don’t argue your points, instead keep asking more questions. “Tell me more,” and “why is that?” Questions are never threatening and part of resolving cognitive dissonance is recruiting others to your position. They’d like nothing more than to change your views.

The problem with illogical trains of thought is that they rarely hold up to consistent questioning. After three “whys” they often run out of talking points. Repeat back what they just said using different words. Hearing someone else say something that is logically inconsistent might wake them up to reality.

Cognitive Dissonance

Instead of going in for the kill, try to come up with a safe analogy that might shed light on their logic. "Should we make seasonal flu shots mandatory, too?" "Should people lose their jobs if they don't get them?" "If flu shots are a good idea, won't people take them voluntarily?"

If they do start to see things your way, don't gloat or rub their noses in it. No one wants to be exposed as a fool. Just take it as an opening

-- "Thanks for sharing your views, let's talk about it later. Pass the cranberry sauce."

You can't change someone's mind, only they can.

We often hear that people rarely change their minds. But if you look at Biden's approval numbers plummeting from 55% to 40% that means 15% of the American public has already changed their minds, so reaching out is definitely worth the effort.

If we don't address our political differences, we'll stay locked in our echo chambers. If we can't learn how to talk honestly with each other, our country will remain permanently divided, and a divided house will soon fall.

"By the skillful and sustained use of propaganda, one can make a people see even heaven as hell or an extremely wretched life as paradise."

~ Adolf Hitler

Does the Left Hate Altruism?

So, where has our brotherly love gone? It's still there, just beneath the surface. The media and woke ideologists try to tamp it down; they teach that we should hate one another because of our differences. But we have all seen the worthlessness of these thoughts, and how most of our neighbors want nothing to do with this callous ideology.

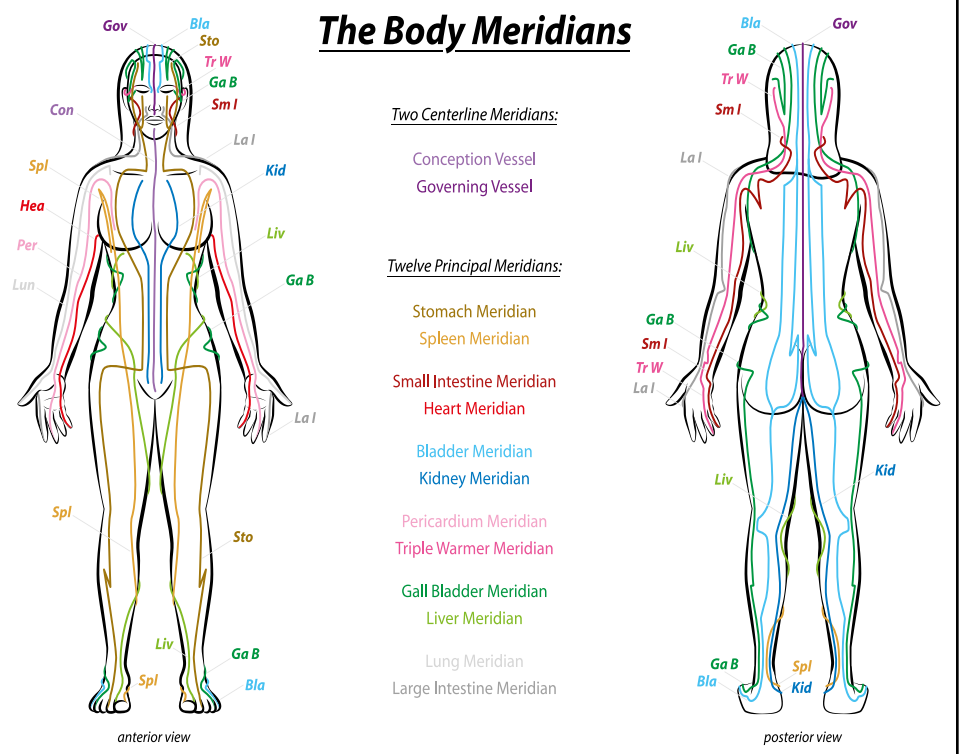

Now is the time to completely stamp it out. America is tired of being scolded and chastised for crimes they didn't commit; their patience is thin. It's time for an altruistic leader to step forward and lead with moral clarity, not woke talking points. The first leader to do this successfully will reap the rewards of the electorate's trust and confidence.

The People's Convoy

Vitality amidst Dis-ease©
By Carole Silver
MyHealingHope@gmail.com

My Feb 24th predawn arrival was met by the rumbling tractor trailers chomping-at-the-bit for the next leg in their transcontinental journey. The People's Convoy had left Adelanto, CA the day before in route to Washington DC. Their first overnight stay at Golden Valley, AZ's Great American Pizza & Subs, was where I found them. With 230 miles under their belt, and another 2300 miles to go, the crisp morning was a bustle of activity as convoyers prepared for the day's trek, to Lupton, AZ. Inside the restaurant the coffee was brewing, and the tables were spread with freshly made complimentary breakfast pizzas. A welcome sign for the hungry travelers.

My mission was twofold: to support the convoy and to uncover the pulse of its participants. My question was, "What do you hope to accomplish?" I met Seth Rick, a beekeeper from Humboldt County, CA, as he was warming himself in his minivan. An eager, friendly man who offered an insightful response to my query. With a broad smile, on his face, he proclaimed, "Arizona has renewed my faith in humanity and 'We the People!'" This is an education convoy." The first day's journey revived him and renewed his waning hope. He now had the clarity to accomplish the purpose of the convoy: Freedom and Unity.

Brian Brase stood on a step-deck trailer to debrief and encourage the crowd. He reminded them of their purpose and the day's logistics. A Christian pastor prayed for safety, and Craig Alan Thomas, the "Pavarotti of the Las Vegas Strip," sang the National Anthem. My heart was warming up to the convoy's mission, and then I was carried away by their unifying anthem. Proving the proverb true, "A rising tide lifts all boats." All the participants had one mission, to bring hope and change to our fractured nation. The 23 months of covid mandates had taken their massive toll.

Soon after a tanker truck arrived with $9000 worth of donated diesel, the thirsty trucks drank to their fill. Participants stocked up on the donated supplies: Everything from food to toiletries, fresh fruit, cases of water and soda that were stacked high on wooden pallets, tables, and piled on the ground. What a sight to see as the morning broke, and the frost lifted for the day. My wool socks and down coat proved insufficient that frigid morning, but there was another fire fueling me: the American spirit, the love of country. Amid suffering, we can as individuals, and collectively as a nation, rise above. One person can make a difference.

I met a former trucker, Corina Newfield, a Grants Pass, OR woman. She was recently laid off, fed up with the state-of-affairs, and joined the convoy. In response to my question she replied, "To know that I made a difference for my grandchildren." Have we thoroughly considered the long-term cost of our indifference, apathy, and division?

The big rigs, RVs, pickup trucks, cars, vans, SUVs lined up for their departure. A state trooper held back the AZ-68 Southbound traffic as the flag-waving-supporters blocked the Northbound traffic. I stood in the large median while patriots lined the highway. The first tractor trailers led the way, as the convoy headed out, blaring their air horns. My heart swells as I write this, for it was like being at a hometown Fourth of July parade. You know the kind: Mayberry USA, Old Glory on every corner, participants riding homemade floats pulled by worn-out tractors. You could cut the patriotism with a knife. America is still viable! I was a child again, and my hope was restored.

I couldn't help but get swept up in the nostalgia of this historic event. The American grass-roots effort: open to all races and creeds, aligning themselves to become

One. I was called further back-to my bare roots; I am part of the human race. We are all brothers and sisters; we are family. Why do we sow discord amongst ourselves, and relinquish the safety in our family moniker: humanity? Could we, under a common banner: Freedom for all and goodwill toward each other, lay down our arms and rally together for future generations? The sick need a physician, and we are ailing, fractured, and poised for a deeper dis-ease, beyond Covid. For division equals death. Division within nations, division in tribes and tongues, division in governments, division in families, and division within our own hearts. A house divided cannot stand. Please, let us do the hard work of searching to find our common values and embrace each other TODAY.

This is what the Freedom Convoy taught me. Thank you for the rich reminder. America does have a heartbeat, humanity has a heartbeat, and you and I are part of it.

Mayorkas Again: Brandon Regime Won't Deport Illegals

by R. Cort Kirkwood
TheNewAmerican.com

Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas, perhaps the only unindicted visa fraudster ever put in charge of immigration, reiterated again this week that he will not permit Immigration and Customs Enforcement to deport illegal aliens.

It wasn't the first time Mayorkas proudly said he will ignore the law, and aid and abet illegal immigration. Nor is it a first for DHS. The subversion began long ago with the Obama administration. But it is a reminder that Mayorkas, an immigrant born in Cuba, is an open-borders subversive.

After a relatively anodyne opening, Mayorkas explained the no-deportation policy he announced on September 30. At the time, 40,000 Haitian illegals were heading through Mexico toward the U.S. border, and Mayorkas had permitted 12,000 to enter the country.

"The fact an individual is a removable noncitizen therefore should not alone be the basis of an enforcement action against them," Mayorkas wrote at the time: We will use our discretion and focus our enforcement resources in a more targeted way. Justice and our country's well-being require it.

[DHS will] focus our efforts on those who pose a threat to national security, public safety, and border security and thus threaten America's well-being.

"Justice" doesn't require it but anyway, such is the memo's expansive list of criteria that permits illegal aliens to stay here, removing them will be impossible unless they mount an armed assault on the FBI building. And even, removal would be doubtful. DHS implemented the open-borders guidelines in December.

Yesterday in Washington, D.C., Mayorkas explained again that illegals are welcome to jump the border and find a place to live anywhere they wish. Though the border with Mexico is one of his agency's "initial responsibilities" and a "primary focus" of its work, he really wanted to "speak about "something more, something different," he said: "On September 30 ... I issued new immigration enforcement guidelines. And in those guidelines, I articulated what I felt was a very important principle: that we will not dedicate our limited enforcement resources to apprehend individuals who have been here in this country for many years, who have been contributing members of our communities. Unlawful presence in the United States will alone not be a basis for an immigration enforcement action but rather, we will allocate our efforts, we will allocate our resources on those individuals who present a current public safety threat, a threat to national security, or a threat to our border security, and that is a very important principle. And we also want, with you, to champion our identity as a country. We want to champion our identity as a nation of immigrants: realize and harness and advance their contributions. That is who I think we are. And I, as an immigrant to this country, say that with tremendous pride and gratitude, not only to my parents, of course, but to the country that gave us this home and me the opportunity to join government service."

"Nation of immigrants" is leftist code for "keep the borders open," but at any rate Mayorkas didn't mention that illegal aliens, for all their "contributions," cost taxpayers more than $130 billion annually. Nor did he discuss how much crime they commit. One of the Biden-Mayorkas DREAMers lied about his age to border agents, landed in Florida, and murdered a man, police allege.

Mayorkas also ignored the costs of importing 70,000 Afghan refugees after the disastrous U.S. pullout from the country. That's worked out as well as open borders. Almost as soon as they landed at U.S. military bases, the Afghans — many unvetted and unvaccinated — began committing crimes. Already, they've been arrested for rape, child sex abuse, and domestic violence.

And Biden and Mayorkas aren't finished. They hope to dump almost 100,000 Afghans into the heartland in the next year. Taxpayer bill: $67,000 ... each. Mayorkas didn't mention that insignificant fact, either.

Tempting as it is to say Mayorkas is incompetent, Americans shouldn't be fooled. He and his boss, Joe Biden, have opened the border purposely, imported illegals with the China Virus purposely, refused to deport dangerous criminals purposely, and maligned and undermined the border patrol purposely.

Even naturalization fraud — i.e., lying to get citizenship — won't get one deported and is no longer an impediment to citizenship.

It suffices to say that Mayorkas won't likely speak before the next meeting of the Western Sheriffs Association. In November, the group called on Biden to fire him.

Mayorkas' main claim to fame before Biden picked him to run DHS was finagling visas for wealthy foreigners.

Omicron Is ‘Type of Vaccine’ That Gives Cellular Immunity, Spreads

By Mimi Nguyen Ly

Billionaire Bill Gates says the SARS-CoV-2 Omicron variant has spread faster across the world than the COVID-19 vaccines have, and that the variant is a “type of vaccine” that gives people cellular immunity. He also predicted on Feb. 18 that another pandemic was coming, and shared what he believes should be done “next time.”

At the 2022 Munich Security Conference, attended by security experts, politicians, and people of influence around the world, the Microsoft co-founder was asked: “Where would you assess where we are today in beating COVID-19?”

“Well, sadly, the virus itself, particularly the variant called Omicron, is the type of vaccine—that is, it creates both B cell and T cell immunity—and it’s done a better job of getting out to the world population than we have with vaccines,” Gates said.

B cell and T cell immunity, also referred to as cellular immunity, comprise alternate mechanisms of immunity than antibodies. A study published in Nature Suggests that the immune system’s T cells may offer protection against COVID-19 by “remembering past encounters with other human coronaviruses.”

Meanwhile, a study published in the medical journal Cell (pdf) said that data suggests “SARS-CoV-2 elicits broadly directed and functionally replete memory T cell responses, suggesting that natural exposure or infection may prevent recurrent episodes of severe COVID-19.”

Gates told the conference that the risk of severe disease from contracting COVID-19 has been dramatically reduced due to people having been exposed to various variants of the SARS-CoV-2 virus.

“If you do serosurveys in African countries, you get well over 80 percent of people [who] have been exposed either to the vaccine or to various variants. And so what that does is it means the chance of severe disease—which is mainly associated with being elderly and having obesity or diabetes—those risks are now dramatically reduced because of that infection exposure,” he said.

The Omicron variant, since its identification in November 2021, has spread rapidly across the world to become the most dominant variant, although it generally triggers much milder symptoms.

Gates, who has invested in vaccine research via the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, noted in regard to vaccines that “it took us two years to be an oversupply.” “Today, there are more [COVID-19] vaccines than there’s demand for vaccines,” he said. “It’s sad we didn’t do a great job on therapeutics. Only here, two years in, do we have a good therapeutic?”

He also said that vaccine development “took us a lot longer this time than it should have,” and suggested that “next time, instead of two years, we should make it more like six months.” “Certainly, some of the standardized platform approaches, including mRNA, would allow us to do that,” Gates said.

When asked about the potential for another pandemic, he responded, “Well, we’ll have another pandemic; it will be a different pathogen next time.”

Gates said there will also be “some rebound” with the current pathogen, the SARS-CoV-2 virus, at more typical seasonal flu levels. “We don’t have a tool to do eradication,” he said, noting that current COVID-19 vaccines haven’t been able to prevent inoculated individuals from getting infected.

Gates said that funding should be allotted to developing a vaccine that can “get rid of families of respiratory viruses, including the flu family, and the coronavirus family.” “And I do think in the next decade we can come up with an eradication vaccine,” he said. “That’s an aspiration, not a guarantee. ... There’s already a lot of work that’s been done on a universal flu vaccine, and the date on that looks very promising.”

“We won’t get death levels at the kind of acute level that we’re still experiencing today as the Omicron wave passes through on a global basis,” Gates said.

Gates’s Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation on Jan. 19 pledged $300 million to the UK’s Wellcome Trust to support the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations (CEPI).

The coalition was formed five years ago by the governments of Norway, Germany, Japan, and India, as well as the Gates Foundation, Wellcome, and the World Economic Forum. It has co-lead a global initiative called COVAX to deliver vaccines to low- and middle-income countries.

CEPI said it’s seeking to raise $3.5 billion to “develop life saving vaccines against any new viral threat (referred to as ‘Disease X’)—to within 100 days of a pathogen being sequenced.”
