Democrats, If You're Wondering Why America Voted for Trump, Allow me to Explain: You Ruined our Nation and our Culture

By: Michael T. Flynn (RET) Lieutenant General, U.S. Army and 24th U.S. National Security Advisor
GenFlynn.substack.com

November 10, 2024

The truth is, the American People are sick of your shit.

You ruined our nation and our culture. You openly mocked, belittled, and discriminated us, then called us racist, misogynist and Nazis when we started noticing.

You defiled and corrupted all of our great institutions, to include the media, social media, tech, academia, intelligence, health, pharma, Hollywood, entertainment, sports, EVERYTHING! You weaponized every aspect of American life, and used it to push your insane far-left agenda down our throats.

You told us Trump was a Russian asset that was going to start WW3 and would be worse than Hitler. Then you used that as an excuse to justify hatred towards Trump supporters and to riot in the streets. You used it as an excuse to obstruct and ruin Trump's entire first term, and it turned out it was all a lie.

Then during Covid, you demanded we all be forced to take medical experimentation without testing. You wanted dissenters locked in prison. You wanted children taken from their anti-vaxed parents. You wanted the anti-vaxed in camps. You were rooting for our deaths. Then it turned out you were wrong about everything — from the man-made origin, to masks, to vaccines, to social distancing, to ivermectin, to HCQ, to natural immunity, and everything in between.

Then during Ukraine, you told us that Ukraine was a bastion of Democracy, and that they desperately needed all of our tax dollars. It turned out that Ukraine is one of the most corrupt nations in the world, with literal Nazi military forces, and it was actually just a money laundering operation to steal from the American taxpayer. You want to defend Ukraine's borders more than our own. You sent hundreds of billions of dollars to the other side of the planet, while Americans are suffering, all based on more lies.

Then there's the whole Epstein, Diddy, human-trafficking element. You all told us VEHEMENTLY that human-trafficking was a myth, you told us the border was secure, and you told us that anyone who questioned it was an irredeemable & deplorable conspiracy theorist (and a piece of garbage). You said anyone who watched "Sound of Freedom" was a QAnon extremist and threat to democracy. All of this turned out to be true, and the elites really are engaged in unspeakable crimes against children. After you all told us for decades this was not true. You covered up the most heinous crimes imaginable, for political gain.

I could do this for days, but I think you get the point. The American People are awake to the scam and the true evil going on around us, and we are not going to stand for it anymore, so we hired Donald J. Trump and his team of Patriots to rectify the situation and bring America back to her greatness.

This is the reality of the situation. You are the bad guys, and you have been deceived. The sooner you wake up to it, the sooner you can join us in repairing this nation. Or, you can choose to deny reality and spend the rest of your lives consumed by hatred based on lies.

The choice is yours.

Signed: A True American Patriot

@realDonaldTrump Thank you for your courage and for standing in the fire for America and all of humanity. God Bless America.

Letter from the Editor

2024 is coming to an end. The winter visitors keep rolling in so Quartzsite is multiplying by the day, it is so fun to witness. Most of the residents are happy they are returning and a few grumpy old farts just hate everything about it. We all need to remember that we all must coexist. Quartzsite and the surrounding areas depend on the tourism and the tourists depend on the residents who keep the town alive for them to visit, so respect each other. Drive cautiously and be courteous and patient, even at the post office. It is hard when your little town grows from roughly 3000 to 100,000+.

Thanksgiving is over but remembering all that we are grateful for should always be in the forefront of our minds. We have a LOT to be grateful for as a nation, for God has spared us and we have 4 years to begin to rectify our wrongs. We have been sliding down a slippery slope of destruction into a time similar to Sodom and Gomorrah and we must begin to do all that we can individually to calibrate our moral compass.

The submissions this month from Dave about gratitude (page 26) and Jim Brouillette on addiction (page 25) are certainly timely. Expressing gratitude can get one out of the mindset of depression and frustration which often lead to addiction. The more we look at our own addictions the easier it is for others to follow suit. Our leaders (both elected and unelected) are addicted to money, power and control. This must end! Their addiction is affecting the lives of all of us in a very negative way.

Trump's new administration could certainly shake things up nicely. I have included all that I could fit regarding who he is selecting as key players. We shall see who makes the final cut but we should all be grateful for RFK's desire to make America healthy again and Elon wanting to cut all the fat out of the spending of our tax dollars. Kash wants to get to the bottom of the Epstein list and who amongst us doesn't want pedophiles and satanists to be punished?

There are some things locally that really need your attention. First, California based, Heliogen is wanting to install a solar field near Brenda that will affect us all. There are pros and cons and you should really educate yourself on both and voice your opinion. For more information contact Denise 831-229-0540 or Nance 307-690-2298 and Heliogen 626-720-4530. Also, the Quartzsite Elementary School Board has fired the new superintendent, Jeff Spaletta. There is much speculation over the details about this dismissal and the role Monica Timberlake has taken in it. There is a petition going around to recall her from the school board and I would highly recommend you find someone involved and ask some questions.

I wish you all the Merriest of Merry Christmas' and the Happiest of New Years. May we all finish strong this 2024 and start 2025 with renewed faith and joy. Many blessings to you and yours.

DEI: The Poisonous Scam Finally Imploding Under Its Own Weight

By Dominick Izzo, 11/30/2024
rantsofizzo.com

For years, Americans have been subjected to the relentless rise of “Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion” (DEI)—a destructive ideology that swept through our institutions like a tidal wave of self-righteous nonsense. What began as a feel-good fad quickly turned into a multimillion-dollar industry of indoctrination, where employees and students alike were force-fed divisive rhetoric under the guise of progress.

But now, as the cracks in this social experiment grow wider, DEI’s grip on America’s institutions is finally starting to falter.

The $8 Billion Grift

Make no mistake: DEI has been one of the most damaging and morally bankrupt trends in modern American history. Corporations and universities have spent a staggering $8 billion annually to train people to view themselves as either victims or oppressors, depending on their race or gender. Employees are browbeaten in workshops to accept the notion that white supremacy is woven into the very fabric of American life, while dissent is treated as heresy. It’s no wonder this racial hectoring—pushed by smug, self-appointed “diversity experts”—has left a trail of division, paranoia, and suppressed free speech in its wake.

Turning Common Sense Upside Down

A flood of evidence now shows that DEI doesn’t foster understanding or cooperation—it creates conflict and suspicion where none existed before. A new study from the Network Contagion Research Institute and Rutgers University Social Perception Lab reveals just how toxic this ideology really is.

In one telling experiment, researchers exposed students to an essay inspired by DEI darlings Ibram X. Kendi and Robin DiAngelo. These students were then asked to evaluate a racially neutral scenario involving a rejected college applicant.

The results? Students fed DEI rhetoric were far more likely to invent imaginary prejudice, accusing the admissions officer of “micro-aggressions” and demanding punitive measures, such as mandatory DEI training, suspension, and public apologies. It’s a prime example of how DEI isn’t about equity or inclusion—it’s about fostering racial paranoia and punishing perceived enemies.

DEI’s Miserable Track Record

If DEI is the answer, one has to wonder what the question was. Take the University of Michigan’s decade-long, $250 million experiment to integrate DEI into every corner of campus life. The New York Times Magazine begrudgingly admitted the initiative has been a complete failure.

According to surveys, students and faculty now report less campus belonging and less interaction across racial, religious, and political lines compared to when the program began. DEI hasn’t built bridges; it’s built walls. Meanwhile, petty disputes have ballooned into campus-wide “crises,” and faculty now tiptoe around every interaction for fear of committing an accidental offense. This isn’t inclusion—it’s Orwellian micromanagement.

Corporate America Gets a Clue

Thankfully, the DEI wave appears to be receding. Walmart, one of the largest companies in the world, recently announced it is ditching the term “Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion” and rolling back associated initiatives. Other companies are quietly following suit, realizing that pandering to activists is bad for both morale and business.

With a potential Trump administration on the horizon—one unafraid to take on this ideological monstrosity—DEI’s days might truly be numbered.

A Welcome End to a Toxic Era

What would America gain by rejecting DEI? A great deal. We’d save billions

Colorado Officials Persecuting Tina Peters Worked for Dominion

By: Erin Clements
JoeHoft.com 12/02/2024

Truth is Treason in an Empire of Lies

President Trump said, “Does anyone notice that the election-rigging Biden administration never goes after the riggers, but only after those that want to catch and expose the rigging dogs?” One of the most high-profile examples of the government’s prosecution of the innocent—is former Mesa County Clerk, Tina Peters.

and Recorder, Peters was the custodian of the election records and had a duty to preserve them for 25 months. So, Peters had a copy made of her central election computer to ensure that the records would be preserved prior to the “trusted build.” She also made another copy of the machine after the “trusted build.”

When the “before” copy of the original election files was analyzed by experts, it was discovered that the original election database was abandoned and a new database was created inside the software while the 2020 election was ongoing. In other words, it was like the Dominion software was keeping two sets of books on the election. The “after” copy of the database showed that Dominion had in fact deleted election records from the county’s machines, breaking state and federal law. Mesa County District Attorney, Dan Rubinstein conducted a non-technical investigation into the claims made by the experts and declared the anomalies inside the Dominion database to be caused by “human error” – a claim that has since been debunked.

Read the full story at TFPnews.com

After Peters’ sentencing last month to nine years in prison—new information has surfaced showing that Colorado officials were working for Dominion and Runbeck, while simultaneously orchestrating Peters’ reputational and legal downfall through back channels.

Following the 2020 election, Tina Peters received notice from the Colorado Secretary of State, Jenna Griswold, that Dominion Voting Systems would be visiting her office to install a “trusted build” on her election system. The “trusted build” would overwrite the data that was stored on her computers. As the elected County Clerk

The top twelve priorities for Trump's America in 2025 – achieve these things and we may save the Republic

By: Mike Adams 11/06/2024
NaturalNews.com

Priority #1: Free the J6 political prisoners and pardon Tina Peters, Edward Snowden and Ross Ulbricht

Free all the J6 political prisoners. No exceptions. Beyond pardoning them, offer them $100 million each in compensation for their pain, suffering and loss of years of their lives. Their persecution by the Biden regime was inhumane, lawless and a gross violation of the rule of law. Tina Peters, although prosecuted under Colorado state law, absolutely needs to be freed. Make that a priority.

Priority #2: Prosecute the traitors and election fraudsters

All those who knowingly participated in election fraud in 2016, 2018, 2020, 2022 and 2024 must be arrested, prosecuted and face life in prison if found guilty. Attempting to cheat and steal an election is a serious crime that puts us all at risk of exactly the kind of tyranny and authoritarianism we experienced over the last four years. Those who carried out these crimes are not worthy of being allowed to participate in civilized society ever again. Remove them.

Priority #3: Deport the illegals and build the wall to protect the southern border

Start the mass deportations immediately. Locate and remove the 10+ million illegals who have invaded and occupied our nation, committing violent crimes, voter fraud, insurance fraud and the displacement of Americans in need, including many blacks and veterans. The illegals must go. They are welcome to come back if they apply for citizenship and are vetted and approved, but there must be no more open borders and no trafficking of anything across the border (children, weapons, drugs, etc.). There goes the Democrats' campaign funding source!

Priority #4: End medical tyranny and eliminate the FDA, CDC, EPA and USDA

It's time to tear down the federal bureaucracy. What agencies like the FDA, CDC, USDA and EPA proved over the last decade is that they are weaponized against the American people and serve no useful function whatsoever. They merely threaten, coerce and terrorize the American people. Slash their budgets to zero and send all their employees packing. Shut them all down and banish them from existence. Humanity can do better, and we don't need centralized government agencies deciding what is "medicine" or "food" or "pollution." It's also important to end Direct-To-Consumer (DTC) drug ads on TV and other media. Big Pharma has no business advertising directly to consumers. That should be repealed to pre-1997.

Priority #5: End all federal income taxes on individuals, and eliminate the IRS

The IRS needs to go. The income tax was never about raising revenues for the federal government; it was only about hammering the American people to steal their incomes and keep them down. A government that prints trillions of dollars a year does not need to also confiscate money from the American workers. The IRS is a terrorist organization. Every last IRS employee needs to be sent packing, and all IRS collections over the last five years should be refunded to the American people from whom those funds were confiscated.

Priority #6: Restore freedom of speech and prosecute Big Tech platforms for years of censorship

New laws must be passed that expressly prohibit Big Tech platforms from engaging in viewpoint discrimination and banning people for their opinion speech. YouTube and Google executives need to be arrested and

Javier Milei's Blueprint for DOGE: A Chainsaw for Bureaucracy

In a recent interview with Lex Fridman, Javier Milei described how his “chain-saw” model could inspire reforms all the way to the White House.

By: Daphne Posadas
Fee.org 11/20/2024

“What is the difference between a madman and a genius? Success.” That opening line set the tone for Javier Milei’s two-hour interview with Lex Fridman. In it, Argentina’s libertarian president reflected on the first few months of his administration following his historic electoral victory on November 19, 2023.

Milei has been called many things, but his methods and philosophy thrive under scrutiny. In a free society, being questioned is both a challenge and an opportunity. What sets Milei apart is his ability to answer tough questions with logic, evidence, and, most importantly, results.

His anarchist rhetoric is—as he said—rooted in a libertarianism that has an “unrestricted respect for the life project of others based on the principle of non-aggression and in defense of the rights to life, liberty, and property,” a definition championed by Alberto Benegas Lynch, Jr., and that follows John Locke’s ideas.

A Model Exported

Milei’s reforms haven’t gone unnoticed in the U.S., especially after the announcement of the Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE), to be led by Elon Musk and Vivek Ramaswamy. In the interview, Milei highlighted how Argentina’s Ministry of Deregulation and State Transformation, led by Federico Sturzenegger, is systematically dismantling protectionism and privilege by eliminating 1 to 5 economic restrictions daily.

This approach is catching attention worldwide, as Musk and Ramaswamy have hinted at adapting by this “chainsaw” strategy. Ramaswamy recently posted on X: “A reasonable formula to fix the U.S. government: Milei-style cuts, on steroids.”

The Chainsaw Reforms

If there’s one image that defined Milei’s 2023 campaign, it’s the chainsaw. He carried a real chainsaw to his rallies, chanting “¡Motosierra! ¡Motosierra!” (Spanish for “chain-saw”) as a symbol of his promise to slash Argentina’s bloated bureaucracy.

When Milei took office, Argentina’s inflation was out of control, climbing at almost 1% per day. Fixing the fiscal deficit became his top priority, knowing nothing else would work without a solution on that front. In just a few months, he made drastic changes: cutting over 50,000 government jobs, shutting down more than half of the ministries, slashing regulations, and removing subsidies.

The results? Inflation has dropped from 211% year over year in December 2023 to 107.4% in November 2024, according to the latest inflation data from INDEC. According to UFM Reform Watch’s Daniel Fernandez, Javier Milei’s government has now achieved 10 consecutive months of primary fiscal surplus: “Between January and October 2024, the Argentine government accumulated a primary fiscal surplus equivalent to nearly 1.7% of GDP”—a remarkable turnaround.

Milei: A Former Academic

As a former economics professor, Milei excels at breaking down complex economic concepts. Early in the interview, he provided a roadmap for those interested in understanding Austrian economics with big references: Human Action by Ludwig von Mises and Principles of Economics by Carl Menger, two starting points for him. He also name-dropped other thinkers, including Murray Rothbard, Friedrich Hayek, Hans-Hermann Hoppe, Jesús Huerta de Soto, Juan Ramón Rallo, Philipp Bagus, and Walter Block—a quick guide to both Anglo and Hispanic perspectives on libertarian thought.

When Fridman dug deeper and asked about his economic philosophy, Milei replied: “Ideally, anarcho-capitalist; in reality, minarchist.” This summarizes his pragmatic approach to reducing the state’s size through what he calls “the largest structural reform in Argentina’s history” while being realistic about what’s possible. Here Milei also addressed criticism from some libertarians, saying they often fall for the “nirvana fallacy”—expecting perfect solutions in an imperfect world.

Key Takeaways

There are two main takeaways from Milei’s interview with Fridman. First, Milei knows what he’s talking about. Too many politicians don’t really understand economics, but Milei clearly does. He doesn’t just memorize numbers; he explains the reasoning behind his decisions, and it makes sense. Second, market-driven reforms can deliver results. Contrary to popular belief or experts’ advice, these changes don’t require decades to show their impact.

Will these reforms catch on all the way to the White House? Only time will tell. But for now, it’s clear that Milei’s approach is turning heads around the world.

I highly recommend watching or listening to the full conversation. It’s an incredibly stimulating discussion, particularly for economics enthusiasts eager to see theory translated into real-world policy action. [You can watch the interview at: TFPnews.com]

It's Getting Serious Now: Putin Responds with Hypersonic Missile Launch and Warns There Will be More Coming

He reserves the right to attack any nation that attacks Russia, and that includes the U.S. and NATO who are allowing their long-range missiles to be fired into Russian territory

By: Leo Hohmann 11/21/2024
leohohmann.substack.com

Russian President Vladimir Putin gave a 7-minute speech Thursday and explained that Russia used a new medium-range missile with a hypersonic payload in its strike on Ukraine. It was essentially a test that worked perfectly. As part of what Putin called a "combat test," the hypersonic missile, dubbed Hazel, successfully struck a military-industrial facility in the Ukrainian city of Dnipro, the Russian president added.

The strike was a response to Ukrainian attacks on military facilities located on internationally recognized Russian territory, the president stated. Kiev's forces launched the strikes on Tuesday and Thursday, using US-made ATACMS and HIMARS systems as well as British-made Storm Shadow missiles, he said. The Storm Shadow attacks led to at least one Russian death and multiple injuries, Putin said. He said it is becoming a global war. You can watch Putin's entire 7-minute speech [at TFPnews.com].

On Thursday, Russian officials also threatened to attack a new U.S. ballistic missile base in Poland with what a Kremlin spokeswoman called "advanced weapons." The base just opened on November 13. "Given the nature and level of threats posed by such Western military facilities, the missile defense base in Poland has long been added to the list of priority targets for potential destruction, which, if necessary, can be executed with a wide range of advanced weapons," Russian Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Maria Zakharova said, according to Reuters on Thursday.

Moscow reserves the right to strike the military facilities of countries that allow their weapons to be used against Russian territory, President Vladimir Putin has said. The head of state gave a public address on Thursday, promising a decisive response to any aggression. "We will determine the targets during further tests of our newest missile systems based on the threats to the security of the Russian Federation," Putin stated. The president continued: "We believe that we have the right to use our weapons against the military facilities of those countries that allow their weapons to be used against our facilities."

According to Putin, the United States has ravaged the international security system, raising the risk of a "global conflict." So far the White House has been mum on these developments and the U.S. media has only lightly reported them. The reason for the quiet response from Washington appears to me to be an intentional effort to keep Americans uninformed about this war which is now on an escalation ladder that is getting close to the point of no return, if it hasn't already reached that point. When it hits that point, nuclear war is inevitable and nobody will be able to stop it, not even Donald Trump.

When Putin finally does respond to Washington's very intentional and reckless provocations (after the NATO countries have crossed every clearly marked red line drawn by Putin) the Western media will characterize him as the aggressor who needs to be confronted militarily. Because most Americans are ignorant of what's been going on leading up to Putin's inevitable response, they will buy the lies about Putin being another Hitler who must be stopped at all cost.

The U.S. and U.K. are known throughout modern history for weaving these kinds of deceptive war-making narratives. They provoke their enemies into an attack while manipulating the media messaging that is allowed to get through to everyday Americans and Brits. It worked in World War I when the Brits used this strategy, and it's been perfected over the years. The years of British conniving aimed at deliberately provoking Germany into starting World War I has been documented in the excellent book, Hidden History: The Secret Origins of the First World War, by Gerry Docherty and Jim Macgregor. This book is a must-read if you intend to understand what's going on today with Russia and Ukraine.

Sometimes, the provoked response from America's enemies isn't even real. Like the Gulf of Tonkin incident that triggered the U.S. involvement in Vietnam in August 1964. The alleged attack by the North Vietnamese never occurred. The U.S. Naval Institute [USNI.

org] writes this about the Gulf of Tonkin incident. "Questions about the Gulf of Tonkin incidents have persisted for more than 40 years. However, once-classified documents and tapes released in the past several years, combined with previously uncovered facts, make clear that high government officials distorted facts and deceived the American public about events that led to full U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War." It happened again in 2003, when U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell stood before the United Nations and told a completely fabricated story about Iraq having weapons of mass destruction. Another lie that Americans, including American Christians, swallowed whole.

The truth about these false narratives eventually comes out, but only years later when nobody cares or is paying attention. So now we find ourselves at a very dangerous point once again, in our history when corrupt leaders are seeking to deceive us into supporting another war. Only this time they have the utter audacity to target their provocations against a rival member of the nuclear club, the most heavily armed nuclear nation on Earth, Russia. Only an insane demoniac would push such a reckless policy. A cyber attack or something big is likely on the near horizon, a Black Swan event that will be blamed on Russia or China or both, and that will launch full-scale World War III. Yes, we are ruled by people who are that evil.

Exposing Trump's True Character...

The Man You Don't Know,
documentary released 10/25/2024

By: Andrew Muller
TheNewAmerican.com

Many Americans see Donald Trump through the lens of the more than nine years of negative media coverage that began when he announced his presidential candidacy at Trump Tower in June 2015. Inflammatory adjectives such as "racist," "misogynist," "fascist," and "egomaniac" have been used to describe him. However, his closest friends, colleagues, and family paint a completely different picture in the new documentary.

"With anything in life, there is another side to the story, and that's what this movie is," director Christopher Martini told The New American. "This movie is literally showing that other side, where no one has really attempted to do that... What if I come up with something that just turns me off?" Martini asked himself upon accepting the project. "I can tell you, that didn't happen, and by talking to his family directly, you see the children that he raised are so amazing and remarkable. That to me, said it all. It was sort of like this wonderful validation for something that I already felt from the beginning."

Produced by Global Ascension Studios, the documentary contains testimonies regarding Trump's character and deeds from people such as Peter Ticktin (Trump's classmate at the New York Military Academy) actor and musician Frank Stallone (the younger brother of actor Sylvester Stallone), wrestler Hulk Hogan, Donald Trump Jr., Eric Trump, Lara Trump and many more.

The film (released October 25th) resurrects rare footage, photographs and interviews of Trump throughout his life, weaving together a narrative revealing a man who stood on America-first and family-first principles long before entering politics.

Putting aside campaigning and policy, the movie depicts Trump as a generous man going to great lengths to help those in need, often never receiving any recognition for his philanthropic efforts.

One story of such generosity in the film documents the death of Georgia farmer Lenard Dozier Hill, who committed suicide the morning his land was to go up for auction for lack of payment. Hill hoped his life-insurance policy would provide the necessary funds for his wife and daughter to pay off the land, which had belonged to his family for 100 years. Not knowing the life-insurance policy had an exemption for suicide, his wife, Annabelle, and daughter, Betsy Sharp — who appear in the movie — were left destitute. Trump read the story in the newspaper and decided to step in, helping pay off the final $78,000 on the $300,000 debt. This story and many others highlight a Donald Trump who is completely different from what the mainstream media would have the American people believe.

Peter Ticktin, a lawyer who has known Trump for nearly 63 years and who appears in the film, told The New American what Trump was like as a young man: "When he was my captain at the New York Military Academy, all the guys loved him.... All the other captains would kind of rule with a little bit of sadism, a little bit of corporal punishment, or maybe a lot. With Donald, it wasn't like he usually did, and he never did. He always was a wonderful guy, and you just worked even harder for him because you never wanted to disappoint such a person. That is how it was when he was 17.... He is still that 17-year-old kid with the same ideals that he's always had, except he knows a lot more now."

The film also includes a brief indictment of the UN's Agenda 2030, delivered by an unlikely messenger: WWE wrestler and celebrity Hulk Hogan. The 71-year-old (who appears extensively in the movie) condemns globalist efforts to control what the American people do with their lives, even taking jabs at the Bill Gates-backed push to eat bugs.

TNA senior editor Alex Newman and this reviewer were invited by Global Ascension Studios to attend the red-carpet premiere of The Man You Don't Know hosted at the Mar-a-Lago Club in West Palm Beach, Florida, on October 22, 2024. We interviewed Trump's closest friends and colleagues, and their sentiment was clear and unanimous: Trump loves God, family, and country.

Trump's selflessness as portrayed in the documentary was also on display at the premiere; he arrived at the event late in the evening after jetting across the nation campaigning all day. He spoke to the crowd for 20 minutes, shook hands, signed autographs, and took photographs with guests.

Many members of the press were invited to the event (an organizer revealed to The New American) but most neglected to accept the rare invitation to Trump's home.

The mainstream media manipulates the population by endlessly broadcasting hoaxes about Donald Trump's life and presidency. The Man You Don't Know offers a rare peek behind the curtain into what the media does not want you to know about one of the most significant leaders in Western history.

Urgent Message to ALL LLC's and Corporations: Fast Approaching Deadline to File a Federal Report with Severe, Costly Penalties for Non-Compliance

The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) is pivotal in the fight against financial crimes, particularly through its enforcement of Beneficial Ownership Information (BOI) reporting requirements. Established under the Corporate Transparency Act (CTA), these requirements mandate that certain entities (including corporations and limited liability companies) disclose their beneficial owners—those individuals who ultimately control or benefit from the entity.

As of January 1, 2024, new entities must file their BOI reports within 90 days of their formation, while existing entities have until January 1, 2025, to comply with the new regulations. Entities formed after January 1, 2025 will have 30 days to file their BOI report. This move aims to enhance transparency in corporate ownership, making it more difficult for criminals to hide illicit activities behind anonymous corporate structures. Penalties for failing to report or for providing false information can be severe. Civil penalties can reach up to $500 per day for non-compliance, and criminal violations may result in fines of up to $10,000 and imprisonment for up to two years.

By implementing these stringent reporting requirements, FinCEN seeks to strengthen the integrity of the U.S. financial system, providing law enforcement agencies with critical tools to investigate and prevent money laundering and other financial crimes. The deadline for compliance emphasizes the urgency and importance of these regulations in promoting corporate accountability.

It is recommended you research the requirements for this reporting at www.FinCEN.gov/BOI or contact an accountant or an attorney for more information. Call Loretta Warner at Ironwood Accounting for more info 816-516-4890.

Corporate Media Meltdown Over Trump's CDC Director Pick Dr. Dave Weldon

By Jefferey Jaxen
TheHighWire.com 11/25/2024

Former seven-term congressman Dr. David Weldon was chosen by President-elect Donald Trump to serve as director of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Amidst the flurry of possible appointments grabbing headlines, Dr. Weldon has the opportunity to change the way America has handled public health for decades.

The Washington Post described Dr. Weldon in the second sentence of its breaking news article as "...a strong critic of the CDC, especially its vaccine program." The reporting meant the sentence to be a negative, but ironically, it's probably now a breath of fresh air for most Americans post-COVID. "...increasingly we talk only to a certain elite. More and more, we talk to ourselves," wrote Jeff Bezos, owner of the Washington Post, less than a month ago when admitting most people don't believe the corporate/legacy media anymore. It's like WAPO's recent reporting on Weldon already forgot this warning.

The New York Times claimed that Dr.

Weldon was "skeptical of vaccine safety," a designation that would have worked to neutralize his voice in years past when the outlet still garnered attention and respect.

STAT News wrote, "The former Florida congressman sponsored legislation that would have carved out the CDC's vaccine safety research..." The Vaccine Safety Bill to 'carve out research' Dr. Weldon introduced in 2007 wanted to establish an independent agency within the Department of Health and Human Services to handle the nation's vaccine safety. His reasoning at the time was that the CDC had an inherent conflict of interest being responsible for both vaccine safety and promotion—an issue unchanged to this day.

In Weldon, many people find a rare leader who has been willing to ask politically forbidden questions about links between vaccines and autism along with the greater questions about health outcomes of children receiving HHS's childhood vaccine schedule compared with children who had not been vaccinated. In addition to why there's been limited investigation to determine what children may be at risk of being harmed by vaccines. "The thing I continue to find extremely disturbing is the fact that the CDC still does not allow researchers access to the vaccine safety data... The best way to get answers on the vaccine safety data is to open it up and let objective scientists come in and look at it." -Rep. Dave Weldon at the Vaccines & Autism House Government Reform Committee 2002.

One of the key data tranches Weldon is referring to is the Vaccine Safety Datalink or VSD, a monitoring system using electronic health record data from health sites around the country to assess vaccine safety and detect adverse events in near-real time. This is a system that the public and independent researchers are blocked from accessing. Besides the possibility of allowing the sunlight of independent researchers to comb through once-hidden vaccine data while dedicating resources to health-affirming tools outside of one-size-fits-all shots, Dr. Weldon will have veto power over the CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP).

ACIP makes recommendations about which vaccines are added to the U.S. recommended schedule, among other decisions. The committee needs final approval from the director of CDC to implement their calls. Dr. Weldon would hold a power position over a committee who unanimously rubber-stamped every COVID vaccine and booster from infants to the elderly, among other questionable calls throughout the years leading to reduced public trust.

Another approach long called for (and even once implemented by the CDC) would be to automate Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS) to instantly detect and report potential safety issues with the shots they promote. In 2006, this was attempted through a $1M HHS grant awarded to create a spontaneous reporting system to VAERS at Harvard Pilgrim Health Care. The researchers found that "fewer than 1% of vaccine adverse events are reported" yet predictably, the CDC never followed up.

As many new to this conversation are rushing the gates to further their careers or gain influence and power on the back of the rapid political change we find ourselves at the beginning of, there have been those holding a strong space with little fanfare. To many, Dr. Dave Weldon is one such individual.

His decades-long hope to reform the CDC and, more importantly, protect American children and families from unrestrained harms brought upon so many by liability-free injectable pharmaceutical products which have enjoyed a privileged position away from full public and scientific scrutiny may soon see the light of day.

To the readers, is the CDC even salvageable at this point? What other major areas of reform could help rapidly transform public consciousness around health and healing?

Tracking Every Trump Cabinet Pick

By: Epoch Times Staff
TheEpochTimes.com 11/27/2024

President-elect Donald Trump is beginning to finalize his Cabinet roster after his decisive victory over Vice President Kamala Harris. The president's cabinet usually includes the vice president and the heads of 15 executive departments, including the president's chief of staff, the secretary of state, and the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Here's a list of who Trump has selected for his Cabinet so far.

Brooke Rollins, Agriculture Secretary

Brooke Rollins will lead the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) in Trump's administration, pending Senate confirmation. "Brooke's commitment to support the American Farmer, defense of American food self-sufficiency, and the restoration of Agriculture-dependent American Small Towns is second to none," Trump said in a statement announcing the nomination Nov. 23rd.

Rollins previously worked on Trump's 2016 Economic Advisory Council. She then served in his first administration as director of the Domestic Policy Council, director of Trump's Office of American Innovation, and as his assistant for strategic initiatives.

After Trump's first term, Rollins went on to become the president and CEO of the America First Policy Institute. In the new role, she'll oversee various programs related to agriculture, food, and natural resources.

Russ Vought, Office of Management and Budget Director

Russ Vought will serve as Trump's director for the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). If confirmed, Vought would reprise a role he held during Trump's first term in office. Vought was Trump's second OMB director during his first term, succeeding Mick Mulvaney in 2019. OMB is a component of the Executive Office of the President primarily tasked with crafting the president's budget proposals to meet his policy goals.

Vought signaled enthusiasm to return to the OMB directorship in an X post following Trump's nomination announcement. "There is unfinished business on behalf of the American people, and it's an honor of a lifetime to get the call again," Vought said. Vought helped write parts of Project 2025, a proposal set forth by the Heritage Foundation about how a conservative presidential administration could proceed. Trump distanced himself from the proposal on the campaign trail, saying he disagreed with some of the ideas laid out in the more than 900-page document.

Lori Chavez-DeRemer, Labor Secretary

Trump has chosen Rep. Lori Chavez-DeRemer (R-Oregon)

to lead the U.S. Department of Labor. Chavez-DeRemer has represented Oregon's Fifth Congressional District since 2022, but lost her reelection bid in the Democrat-leaning district earlier this month.

She has gained a reputation as a centrist. As a lawmaker, she has supported pro-union legislation, such as the Public Service Freedom to Negotiate Act and the Richard L. Trumka Protecting the Right to Organize Act. "Lori has worked tirelessly with both business and labor to build America's workforce, and support the hardworking men and women of America," Trump wrote in his statement announcing the nomination.

Scott Turner, Housing and Urban Development Secretary

Former NFL player Scott Turner is Trump's choice to lead the U.S.

Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Following his NFL career, Turner was elected to the Texas state House. Turner is also the founder and CEO of the Community Engagement & Opportunity Council, a foundation that's worked to revitalize communities with mentorship and economic programs. Turner served in Trump's first presidential administration as executive director for the White House Opportunity and Revitalization Council. In the role, he oversaw the administration's efforts to support distressed communities across the country, including establishing opportunity zones.

Announcing the nomination, Trump thanked Turner for his past work. "Under Scott's leadership, Opportunity Zones received over $50 billion dollars in private investment."

Scott Bessent, Treasury Secretary

Wall Street financier Scott Bessent is

Trump's nominee to lead the Department of the Treasury. "Scott is widely respected as one of the world's foremost international investors and geopolitical and economic strategists," Trump said in a Nov. 22nd statement. "Scott's story is that of the American Dream." Bessent edged out other top names for the senior post, including former Federal Reserve Board member Kevin Warsh and Apollo Wealth Management CEO Marc Rowan.

Bessent previously worked extensively with left-wing billionaire George Soros, serving as chief investment officer of the Soros Fund Management a decade ago. He left the Soros-led firm to start the Key Square Group, which received a $2 billion investment from Soros. He has largely kept a low political profile. He hosted several fundraising events for Trump during the 2024 election, his first involvement in politics since he supported Vice President Al Gore's 2000 bid for the White House.

He has expressed broad support for Trump's tariff plans, calling tariffs "an amazing tool," but said these—including a universal 10 to 20% tariff and a 60 to 100% levy on Chinese goods—should be "layered in gradually."

Attorney General

Former Florida Attorney General Pam Bondi became Trump's new pick for U.S. Attorney General on Nov. 21st

(pending Senate approval) after former Rep. Matt Gaetz (R-Fla.) stepped down. Bondi has been a prosecutor for more than 20 years and served as Florida's first female attorney general from 2011 to 2019, during which time she came down hard on drug and violent crimes.

She has been a familiar name in the Trump camp, serving in the Office of White House Counsel as a special adviser to the president-elect and on his opioid and drug abuse commission during his first term. "Pam will refocus the DOJ to its intended purpose of fighting crime and making America safe again," Trump said in his announcement. "I have known Pam for many years—she is smart and tough, and is an America first fighter, who will do a terrific job as attorney general!"

Linda McMahon, Secretary of Education

Linda McMahon is Trump's nominee to lead this 4,400 employee agency that he has pledged to dismantle, though that would require an act of Congress. "We will send education BACK TO THE STATES, and Linda will spearhead that effort," Trump said in a Nov. 19th statement posted on Truth Social.

McMahon, who co-founded World Wrestling Entertainment, served in the Trump administration as administrator of the Small Business Administration.

Since leaving the administration, McMahon has been chairman of the America First Policy Institute (AFPI), which advocates Trump's agenda. She is also the chair of AFPI's Center for the American Worker. She was the chair of America First Action Super-PAC and America First Policy, LLC.

In mid-August, Trump named McMahon to co-chair his transition team alongside Howard Lutnick. "Linda will use her decades of leadership experience and deep understanding of both education and business to empower the next generation of American students and workers, and make America number one in education in the world," said Trump in a Nov. 19 statement. McMahon unsuccessfully ran in Connecticut for a U.S. Senate seat in 2010 and 2012.

Howard Lutnick, Secretary of Commerce

Trump has chosen Howard Lutnick to become the next Secretary of Commerce, pending Senate approval. The 63-year-old billionaire is co-chair of Trump's transition team and was seen as one of the contenders to replace Janet Yellen atop the Department of the Treasury. He is also the CEO and chairman of investment giant Cantor Fitzgerald.

The Department of Commerce will play a key role in Trump's tariff plan, which he said on the campaign trail is likely an across-the-board tariff of 10 to 20% on imports and levies and a 60 to 100% tariff on goods from China.

Lutnick, Trump said, would "lead our tariff and trade agenda, with additional direct responsibility for the Office of the United States Trade Representative." Lutnick is also known as a supporter of cryptocurrency, which earned him praise and an endorsement from Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., Trump's nominee for Health and Human Services secretary.

Sean Duffy, Secretary of Transportation

Trump selected former Rep. Sean Duffy

(R-Wis.) to become the next Secretary for the Department of Transportation, pending Senate confirmation. The Department of Transportation's mission is to "deliver the world's leading transportation system" for both goods and people. Trump said that Duffy "will ensure our ports and dams serve our economy without compromising our national security, and he will make our skies safe again by eliminating DEI for pilots and air traffic controllers." Trump was referring to diversity, equity, and inclusion measures that many airlines embraced in recent years.

Duffy, the 53-year-old Fox Business co-host served in Congress from 2011 through 2019, and was a member of the House Financial Services Committee. He is married to Rachel Campos Duffy. They are both former MTV stars and they have nine children together.

Chris Wright, Department of Energy

Trump has chosen Chris Wright, an energy industry executive, to lead the Department of Energy, pending Senate confirmation. "I am thrilled to announce that Chris Wright will be joining my administration as both United States Secretary of Energy and member of the newly formed Council of National Energy," Trump said in a Nov. 16th statement posted on his truth Social platform.

Trump described Wright as a technologist and entrepreneur with experience in fossil fuel extraction, including hydraulic fracturing. Wright also has experience with solar and nuclear energy. "Chris embraces all energy sources if they are abundant, affordable, and reliable," Trump said. The energy secretary role entails managing America's energy resources, including nuclear power.

Jennifer Granholm is the current energy secretary under President Joe Biden's administration. Rick Perry and Dan Brouillette served in the role during Trump's first term in office. The Department of Energy, along with the Department of the Interior and the Environmental Protection Agency will prove crucial components of Trump's pledge to slash energy costs.

Donald Trump picked North Dakota's Gov. Doug Burgum to lead the Department of the Interior. "We're going to do things with energy and with land interior and that is going to be incredible," Trump said on Nov. 14th.

The Department of the Interior oversees several key agencies including the National Parks Service, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Geological Society, and the Fish and Wildlife Service. All of these agencies are crucial to Trump's plans for energy.

From the moment he suspended his own candidacy for president, speculation has been focused on Burgum becoming a part of either the Department of Interior or Department of Energy. Burgum is a North Dakota native, and he attended North Dakota State University before earning an MBA from Stanford University. Prior to politics, he worked in the tech industry, working with Great Plains Software, which was eventually sold to Microsoft.

He's a proud North Dakotan who touted his administration's energy development and experience with the Interior agencies on the campaign trail. "North Dakota's energy, agriculture and technology economy is poised to thrive in the coming era where private sector innovation, not overreaching government regulation, is seen as the key to solving our biggest challenges and realizing our fullest potential," Burgum stated on Nov. 7 in reaction to Trump's election victory. Bergum's appointment comes after South Dakota Gov. Kristi Noem was picked to become the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security.

Doug Collins, Secretary of Veterans Affairs

President-elect Donald Trump's pick to lead the Department of Veterans Affairs, former Rep. Doug Collins, has also served as one of his attorneys. Collins is also a longtime loyalist who has stood with the president-elect through his ups and downs—a consistent characteristic of many of the men and women being chosen for top positions in the new administration.

"We must take care of our brave men and women in uniform, and Doug will be a great advocate for our Active Duty Servicemembers, Veterans, and Military Families to ensure they have the support they need. Thank you, Doug, for your willingness to serve our Country in this very important role!" Trump wrote in a statement.

Collins was a member of the House of Representatives serving Georgia's ninth district from 2013 to 2021. He sat on the House Judiciary Committee and served as vice chair of the House Republican Committee. In Georgia, Collins lost to both Democrat Raphael Warnock and Republican Kelly Loeffler in the race to fill the U.S. Senate seat that was vacated by Johnny Isakson in 2019.

Collins was deployed to Iraq during the Iraq War. A U.S. Air Force Reserve chaplain, the Gainesville, Georgia, native also served in Georgia's House of Representatives. He and his wife Lisa have three children: sons Copelan and Cameron and daughter Jordan. Collins is also chair of the Georgia chapter of the America First Policy Institute, which has been central to Trump's presidential transition.

Trump Cabinet Picks

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services

President-elect Donald Trump officially picked Robert F. Kennedy Jr. to lead the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), pending Senate approval. "For too long, Americans have been crushed by the industrial food complex and drug companies who have engaged in deception, misinformation, and disinformation when it comes to public health," Trump wrote on platform X, along with his announcement. Trump added that HHS will work to protect Americans from harmful chemicals, food additives, pesticides, pollutants, and pharmaceutical products that contribute to the "overwhelming health crisis."

Kennedy had his eyes set on the health sector and HHS oversees 13 different agencies including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), and the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

"FDA's war on public health is about to end," Kennedy previously wrote on X. "This includes its aggressive suppression of psychedelics, peptides, stem cells, raw milk, hyperbaric therapies, chelating compounds, ivermectin, hydroxychloroquine, vitamins, clean foods, sunshine, exercise, nutraceuticals and anything else that advances human health and can't be patented by Pharma... If you work for the FDA and are part of this corrupt system, I have two messages for you: 1. Preserve your records, and 2. Pack your bags."

An environmental attorney who challenged corporations such as DuPont and Monsanto, Kennedy is the son of former U.S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, and nephew of the late President John F. Kennedy. Originally making a bid for president as a Democrat, he ran as an independent before suspending his campaign in August and endorsing Trump.

Kennedy is also founder of Children's Health Defense, a nonprofit organization that works to end "childhood health epidemics by eliminating toxic exposure," according to its website.

Tulsi Gabbard, Director of National Intelligence

Trump selected former congresswoman Tulsi Gabbard to serve as the Director of National Intelligence, pending Senate confirmation. "I am pleased to announce that former congresswoman, Lieutenant Colonel Tulsi Gabbard, will serve as Director of National Intelligence (DNI). For over two decades, Tulsi has fought for our country and the freedoms of all Americans," Trump said in a statement shared by his campaign team on Nov. 13. Gabbard, 43, represented Hawaii's 2nd congressional district as a Democrat from 2013 until 2021.

Gabbard unsuccessfully ran in the 2020 Democratic presidential primary before leaving the party to become an Independent in 2022. She campaigned for several Republican candidates in the 2022 midterm elections before endorsing Trump in August. On Oct. 22, at a Trump rally, she formally announced her switch to the Republican Party. She is also an honorary co-chair of Trump's presidential transition team.

Marco Rubio, Secretary of State

Sen. Marco Rubio (R-Fla.) is Trump's nominee for Secretary of State (pending Senate confirmation) which would make him the first Latino to serve as the country's top diplomat. "Marco is a highly respected leader, and a very powerful voice for freedom," Trump wrote in a Nov. 13th statement. "He will be a strong advocate for our nation, a true friend to our allies, and a fearless warrior who will never back down to our adversaries."

Rubio, 53, has a nearly four-decade-long political background in the Sunshine State. He was first elected as a city commissioner for West Miami in 1998. Rubio became a member of the Florida House of Representatives in 2000, leading the 111th House District, which includes Miami. He was also the Speaker of the Florida House of Representatives from 2006 until 2008. During this time, Rubio traveled around the state, speaking to citizens to compile ideas for a book called "100 Innovative Ideas For Florida's Future." Many of the ideas in the book became state law. He also briefly taught at Florida International University.

Rubio was first elected to the U.S. Senate in 2010 when then-Gov. Charlie Crist (a Republican at the time) decided to run as an independent in the race after trailing Rubio in GOP primary polling. Rubio won with 49 percent of the vote. In the Senate, he has been an outspoken critic of communist China and his selection by Trump signals a tough approach by the incoming administration toward international diplomacy.

Kristi Noem, Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security

Trump has chosen South Dakota Gov. Kristi Noem to lead the Department of Homeland Security, pending Senate confirmation. "Kristi has been very strong on border security," Trump said in his announcement. "She was the first governor to send National Guard soldiers to help Texas fight the Biden border crisis, and they were sent a total of eight times. "She will work closely with 'Border Czar' Tom Homan to secure the Border and will guarantee that our American Homeland is secure from our adversaries."

Noem became South Dakota's first-ever female governor in 2018, and was reelected in 2022 by an historic vote count for the state. She was floated as the possible choice for Trump's vice president before Sen. JD Vance (R-Ohio) was selected. The 52-year-old mother and grandmother has continued to take a strong stance against illegal immigration. Previously describing the Texas border with Mexico as a "warzone," she is aligned with Homan in the belief that anybody who crosses the U.S. border illegally must be deported.

Besides border security, the Department of Homeland Security encompasses several agencies, including the Secret Service, the U.S. Coast Guard, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency.

Pete Hegseth, Secretary of the Department of Defense

Trump announced Pete Hegseth as his pick for Defense Secretary, pending Senate confirmation. Hegseth is the latest veteran to be named in the president-elect's Cabinet. He served in Iraq and Afghanistan as a captain in the Army National Guard. He has been awarded two Bronze Stars and a Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Trump highlighted Hegseth's military background in his announcement. "Pete has spent his entire life as a warrior for the troops and for the country," Trump said. "Pete is tough, smart, and a true believer in 'America First.'" With Pete at the helm, America's enemies are on notice - our military will be great again, and America will never back down."

Hegseth graduated from Princeton and Harvard and wrote the bestselling book "The War on Warriors," which criticizes left-wing policies concerning the military. He spent eight years as a Fox News host.

Agency (CIA). Ratcliffe served as the director of national intelligence during Trump's first term, as well as Trump's primary intelligence adviser. Trump awarded him the National Security Medal in 2020. "From exposing fake Russian collusion to be a Clinton campaign operation to catching the FBI's abuse of civil liberties at the FISA court, John Ratcliffe has always been a warrior for truth and honesty with the American public," Trump said in his announcement. "When 51 intelligence officials were lying about Hunter Biden's laptop, there was one, John Ratcliffe, telling the truth to the American people." Trump said Ratcliffe would be a "fearless fighter for the Constitutional Rights of all Americans while ensuring the highest levels of national security."

The Notre Dame and SMU Law graduate previously served as a member of Congress, where he was a member of the House Intelligence Committee and House Judiciary Committee. While in Congress, he was also questioned about the foundation of the FBI's counterintelligence investigation against the Trump campaign in 2016, and, in late 2020, made the claim that the 2020 elections were marred by foreign intelligence.

Ratcliffe also spoke out against communist China intelligence, stating that the Chinese Communist Party attempted to meddle in the 2020 elections and later testifying that a lab leak in China was "the only explanation credibly supported by our intelligence, by science, and by common sense" for the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Mike Waltz, National Security Adviser
Rep. Mike Waltz (R-Fla.), a Retired National Guard Colonel and combat-decorated

Green Beret, will be Trump's national security adviser. He is the first Green Beret elected to Congress and the third veteran to join Trump's Cabinet. While this is not traditionally a Cabinet-ranked position, Trump announced that Waltz's role will be promoted to the Cabinet.

On Nov. 5, Waltz won reelection in the Sixth Congressional District in east-central Florida. He has been a member of the House China Task Force, the Congressional Taiwan Caucus, and the House Armed Services Committee, and he served as Chairman of the House Armed Services Subcommittee on Readiness. He has also been a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. He served as a military adviser in the George W. Bush administration and worked as a defense policy director under Defense Secretaries Donald Rumsfeld and Robert Gates.

Waltz continues to be a vocal critic of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), calling out human rights violations and the ongoing threat of espionage and advocating for more support of Taiwan's self-defense. "Mike has been a strong champion of my "America First" foreign policy agenda and will be a tremendous champion of our pursuit of peace through strength," Trump said in a statement.

Lee Zeldin, Administrator of the EPA
Former New York congressman Lee Zeldin will take on the role of EPA administrator, and it is expected that he will quickly focus on deregulation. Zeldin "will ensure fair and swift deregulatory decisions that will be enacted in a way to unleash the power of American businesses, while at the same time maintaining the highest environmental standards, including the cleanest air and water on the planet," Trump said in a statement posted to the social media platform Truth Social.

Zeldin's political service began in 2010 when he was elected to the New York Senate. He served at the state level until 2014 before being elected to Congress to represent New York's First Congressional District. He served in that role from 2015 to 2023. He ran for governor of New York in 2022 but lost the closer-than-expected race to current Gov. Kathy Hochul.

While he was in Washington, Zeldin served on the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the House Financial Services Committee. One of two Jewish Republicans in Congress, he co-chaired the House Republican Israel Caucus. Zeldin is an Army veteran, having served four years of active duty (including a deployment to Iraq during Operation Iraqi Freedom.) He still serves as a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserves.

Elise Stefanik, US Ambassador to the UN
Rep. Elise Stefanik (R-N.Y.) has been described by Trump as "an incredibly strong, tough, and smart America First fighter." Pending approval in the Senate, the Harvard graduate will assume the ambassadorship after serving five terms in the House of Representatives. At age 30, she was the youngest woman elected to Congress in U.S. history when she was elected in 2014.

Stefanik replaced former Rep. Liz Cheney (R-Wyo.) as the chair of the House Republican Conference in 2021 (with Trump's endorsement) and she has been in that role since. She is also on the House Armed Services Committee, the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, the Select Subcommittee on the Weaponization of the Federal Government, and the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

She has positioned herself as a Trump ally since his 2016 election and was the first member of Congress to endorse him for reelection in 2024. If approved by the Senate, she will replace Linda Thomas-Greenfield, a Biden administration appointee, to become Trump's third appointed ambassador to the U.N., following Nikki Haley and Kelly Craft.

Susie Wiles, Chief of Staff
Susie Wiles, 67, will become the first woman to serve as White House Chief of Staff. Co-chair of Trump's successful campaign, she is credited with several key campaign victories in her home state of Florida. She gained national attention managing Rick Scott's 2010 gubernatorial campaign and has been credited by some with rescuing current Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis's 2018 gubernatorial campaign. Both races were extremely close in what was then considered a battleground state. Wiles also worked as DeSantis's senior adviser from September 2018 through January 2019.

Wiles met Trump in 2015 and was hired to co-chair his Florida operations in 2016 and 2020. She was named CEO of his Save America Leadership PAC in 2021 before being asked to co-chair the 2024 campaign. Wiles has been described as a background figure in the Trump world, responsible for instilling discipline and suggesting key course corrections in his positions, including his stance on mail-in voting. She's also had a successful career in government affairs and communications consulting and is the co-chair of Mercury Public Affairs, a global public strategy firm.

JD Vance, Vice President
Vice President-elect JD Vance will be the first millennial vice president and (at age 40) the youngest vice president in the nation's history. Before joining the Senate in 2023, Vance served in the Marine Corps as a combat correspondent in the Iraq war. A graduate of Ohio State University and Yale Law School, he has worked in venture capital with Peter Thiel and was a CNN commentator. His 2016 best-selling memoir, "Hillbilly Elogy," details his life growing up in poverty in a rust belt town in Ohio, where he was raised by his grandmother while his mother struggled with substance abuse.

In the Senate, Vance served on the Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs Committee, the Commerce, Science, and Transportation Committee, and the Special Committee on Aging. He has a conservative voting record, expressed support for Israel and criticism of the war in Ukraine, and sees focus on China as a priority.

He is married to corporate litigator Usha Chilukuri Vance, who will become the first Hindu spouse of a vice president and the first woman of color second lady. They have three children—Ewan, 7, Vivek, 4, and Mirabel, 2.

The press release included a biography of O’Neill, noting his previous service in HHS and private career leading regenerative medical research:

“Jim previously served as the Principal Associate Deputy Secretary of HHS. He led reforms at FDA to overhaul food safety regulations, and implemented the FDA Amendments Act, which improved drug and medical device safety and ensured greater protection for Public Health. He helped design and launch the Administration for Strategic Preparedness and Response (ASPR) to improve the health response to emergencies and disasters. After serving at HHS, Jim became a Managing Director of Clarium Capital, a global macro investment fund. THE HISTORY OF CAMELS IN ARIZONA

Most people are not aware that camels originated on the North American continent over forty million years ago, or even that Arizona has a thirty-million-year history with camels. The History of Camels in Arizona traces the evolutionary history of camels and their ultimate extinction in our continent. The book offers an account of the reintroduction of camels back into America from the Middle East and Asia by the U.S. Government and private businessmen in the late 1850’s and early 1860’s to meet the country’s expanding need for efficient hauling capabilities in the newly acquired western territories. Unfortunately for the camels, when their services were no longer needed, many were simply abandoned in southwestern Arizona and allowed to roam free until the last wild camel was captured in 1946.

The History of Camels in Arizona describes in vivid detail how these noble animals’ labor was essential in the building of the Beale Wagon Road, which became the template for future roads (like Route 66), impacting Arizona even in the present day. Within these meticulous historical accounts, the reader finds descriptions of notable characters that were instrumental in shaping the history of the state, like Hi Jolly, the courageous camel handler that could talk to camels, and “The Red Ghost” that terrified the territory for years. The book also furnishes readers with a range of opportunities for public interactions with camels throughout the State.

This thoroughly engaging reading invites us to explore areas of Arizona’s history that have not been pieced together until now. The book combines the historical with the stuff of legends, bringing to life the era of discovery, ingenuity and exploration that forged the American Southwest while giving their dues to the exotic, strong, and intelligent animals that helped create it.

An MD in Endocrinology Reveals: This Weight Loss “Alternative” to Ozempic Works Through the Same Hormone but Without Its Side Effects

By Edibel Quintero, MD
Healthinsider.news 11/06/2024

“Think about this – over half of the US population (55%) say they want to lose weight. Many of them seek to live their lives without physical health and fitness being an issue. Some worry about how others perceive them based on their appearance. Then there are those who want to go to the doctor and discuss their concerns without getting the weight speech,” said Dr. Theresa Bell, MD in Endocrinology.

Given these motivations, the expert wasn’t surprised by this Ozempic trend at all. Instead, she’s worried about so many people using it off-label. “First, it’s a diabetes drug, which is not FDA-approved for weight loss. Second, people already report serious side effects, which I will get into detail a bit later. Third, I did a lot of research to understand how exactly Ozempic works for weight loss. What I found is that there is another, safe, non-medication way to get very similar results,” she said.

“Before I explain this alternative, first, it’s important to understand how Ozempic promotes weight loss.” The expert explained that this drug was initially created to lower blood sugar and A1C in people with type 2 diabetes. “Now, the way Ozempic does that is by mimicking a hormone called GLP-1. This glucagon-like peptide does three things: 1. Triggers the pancreas to release insulin when blood sugar rises. 2. Prevents the liver from producing too much glucose. 3. Reduces appetite and slows down the food leaving the stomach, which is exactly what matters for weight loss,” said Dr. Bell.

When Ozempic slows down the rate at which food leaves the stomach, it promotes a feeling of fullness. That’s why those who take this drug have less urge to overeat or snack.

“Since you no longer eat as much as you used to, you consume fewer calories. As a result, you lose weight without any hunger or cravings because you always feel full. It might seem like nothing could go wrong,” explained the doctor. “But it does, and those who have tried Ozempic for weight loss are already reporting serious side effects.”

“Unfortunately, what I suspected was going to happen is already happening, and on a massive scale. There’s a surge of those who used Ozempic for weight loss sharing horrible side effects,” the expert expressed her concern.

Indeed, Dr. Bell is right because the internet is now full of stories like these: “I took this drug for one week, and I’m not kidding when I say it was the most miserable, sickest I’ve ever felt. I can’t understand any healthy person taking it to get thin.”

“The side effects came hard, fast, and strong. If I ate more than half a sandwich, I would become so bloated that I was burping constantly.”

“Within 4 hours of the first dose, non-stop projectile vomiting and diarrhea.”

These are only short-term Ozempic side effects. “Let’s talk about the long-term ones, which may include hypoglycemia, kidney failure, and even cancer. Even if there weren’t any of these side effects, would you really want to use a diabetes drug indefinitely? Because when you stop taking Ozempic, hunger and cravings quickly return. So does the weight,” explained the expert.

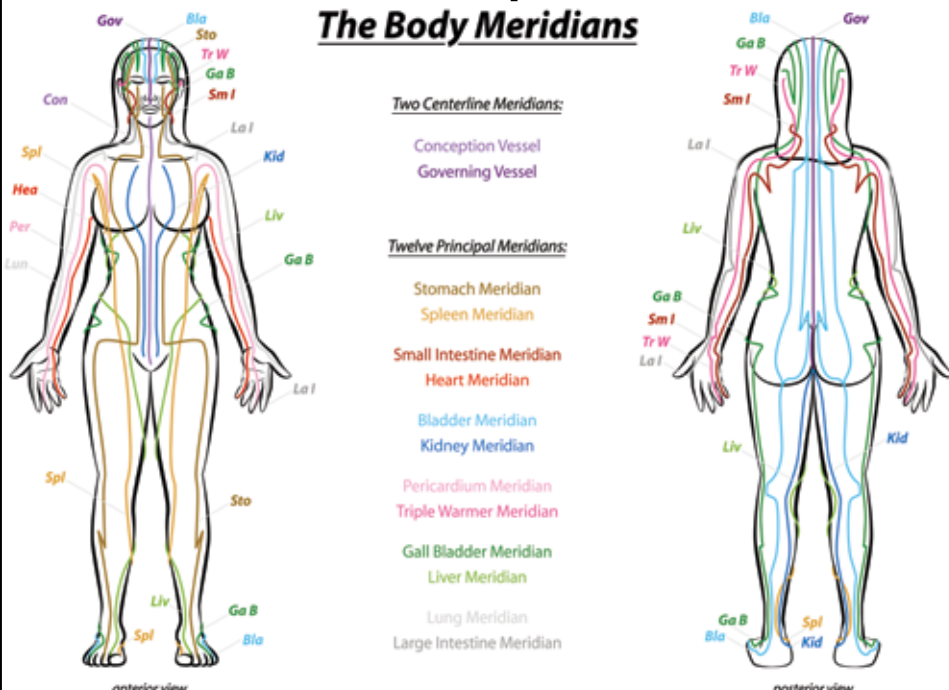

“The alternative I want to share promotes weight loss through the same hormone but without any of these side effects... This safe alternative that can help to lose weight through GLP-1 is probiotic strains.

UK PM Starmer Admits Replacement Migration: ‘Open Borders’ Policy ‘Happened by Design, Not Accident’

by Jamie White 11/30/2024
www.infowars.com

UK Prime Minister Keir Starmer admitted what many conservatives have already known for years, which is that Europe’s “open borders” policy was a deliberate “experiment.”

During a Downing Street speech on net migration Thursday, Starmer accused the conservative Tories of using “Brexit” as a tool to enact open borders and allow record-high immigration. “Time and again the Conservative Party promised they would get the numbers down. Time and again they failed, and now the chorus of excuses has begun,” Starmer said. “A failure on this scale isn’t just bad luck, it isn’t a global trend or taking your eye off the ball – no, this is a different order of failure. This happened by design, not by accident... Policies were reformed - deliberately, to liberalize immigration. Brexit was used for that purpose: to turn Britain into a one-nation experiment in open borders,” Starmer said, adding the Tories “pretended it wasn’t happening... Now they [the Conservatives] want to wave it away with a simple ‘We got it wrong.’”

Starmer’s speech is a marked departure from his rhetoric of only just a few months ago when the UK was engulfed in anti-open borders protests in response to the brutal deaths of several young children at the hands of migrants. Starmer had branded the protesters “Nazis” and vowed to crack down on any dissent against his government’s open borders policy. Starmer even earned the nickname “Two-Tier Kier” for ignoring the widespread rapes, stabbings and robberies by migrants while simultaneously deploying the police against anti-open borders protesters and online dissidents. Starmer’s government even threatened to arrest anyone who shared footage online of the unrest sweeping the region sparked by its mass migration policies and two-tiered policing.

It appears Starmer is simply adjusting his government’s stance on migration in response to record low approval ratings and a petition demanding a new general election reaching 3 million signatures over Labour and Starmer’s “broken promises.” Notably, a key tenet of Brexit was to take back control of Britain’s borders away from the open-borders agenda of the European Union. Unfortunately, despite promises to curtail migration over the years, then-UK Prime Ministers Theresa May, Boris Johnson, Liz Truss and Rishi Sunak appeared aligned with the European elites’ agenda and continued to allow unfettered immigration. Will Starmer do anything to change that? Given the UK’s history of breaking promises, it’s unlikely.

Anyone who doesn’t believe this would be surprised to see how many recent studies have proven it to be true. [Studies posted on TFPnews.com] Coming back to my initial point, probiotics don’t cause any side effects because they target GLP-1 differently than Ozempic,” said Dr. Bell.

According to the expert, while Ozempic mimics this hormone, probiotic strains promote its natural secretion. Because of that, GLP-1 does not go above healthy levels, which prevents the side effects that Ozempic usually causes. “Now, I don’t want to go too scientific. So I’ll just say that probiotic strains promote GLP-1 production both directly and indirectly,” Dr. Bell explained.

She then quickly addressed the skepticism that many people may have. Because perhaps only a tiny fraction of those who’ve used probiotics before experienced anything close to weight loss as with Ozempic. “The problem is that no probiotic supplements are created equally. To promote GLP-1 production to such a level that it aids weight loss, it’s not enough to take any off-the-shelf supplement. These strains of bacteria not only have to pass through the digestive tract, but they have to do so in sufficient quantities. Then, there must be a certain type of these strains to promote GLP-1 directly. That’s why choosing the right probiotic supplement is so important... I suggest these probiotics to every patient who asks me to prescribe Ozempic, and the feedback has been overwhelmingly positive.”

“It is no secret that people are now coming to endocrinologists asking for Ozempic off-label. Rather than simply saying no, I always explain the side effects first. I then recommend using Bioma as a safe alternative instead,” said Dr. Bell. According to the expert, none of her patients has ever complained that it didn’t work as expected. Dr. Bell believes it’s because she sets strict criteria when looking for an alternative that promotes GLP-1. “First, it has to contain probiotic strains known to increase GLP-1 secretion, both directly and indirectly. Second, these strains have to be in enough quantities. Third, the delivery system has to ensure these strains would pass through the stomach intact.

Honestly, there are only a few such options, and Bioma is a clear standout. Because it contains prebiotic fibers, probiotic strains, and postbiotic enzymes, all delivered in a targeted-release capsule. In other words, this supplement has everything I was looking for,” said the expert.

Dr. Bell then added that, in fact, there’s one “side effect.” “The people I convinced to try Bioma instead of Ozempic quickly noticed something they weren’t expecting. Along with fewer cravings and hunger, they reported improved digestion, reduced bloating, and way less gut discomfort. Which is quite the opposite of what people experience with Ozempic right away,” Dr. Bell concluded with a smile.

The Corrupt Agenda Advanced by Billionaires Gates, Bezos & Others

By Tracy Beanz & Michelle Edwards 11/28/2024
TheHighWire.com

Two of the world's top billionaires, Bill Gates and Jeff Bezos, have the financial means to radically change the lives of those less fortunate around the world. They often reference them as they preach diversity, equity and inclusion. Yet, their focus is not on, for example, building homes and creating healthy amounts of carbon themselves, they forewarn that humanity must change everything—including the foods we eat, where and how we live, the kinds of transportation we use, and so on—all while monitoring our every step.

By now, everyone has heard of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and should be well aware of Gates' fascination with experimenting on men, women, and children by way of vaccines, bugs, and synthetic meat. Not to be outdone, in 2020, Jeff Bezos and his Bezos Earth Fund committed $10 billion "to be disbursed as grants to address climate change and nature within the current decade." Together, Gates and Bezos are hard at work constructing a "diverse team" that is committed to delivering their shared vision that "there is a better way" (their way) to reach the unprecedented "transformational change" needed "in these critical times."

To speed things along, Gates, Bezos, Google, and others have created the Global Methane Hub (GMH) to track our methane pollution. With a vision of a "dramatic reduction of methane emissions by 2030," GMH funds and convenes partners who work at the local, national, and international levels to ensure "all actors are working together toward the shared goal of curbing methane pollution in the most efficient way possible." Bezos recently provided $9.4 million in funding towards a project exploring the viability of a methane vaccine designed to reduce greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions from the global agriculture sector. Never mind that we recently wrote about the significant role that regenerative cattle farming plays in reducing carbon emissions. It is a safe bet that, as time progresses, cattle and other livestock will become less and less a part of their vision for the rest of us.

Many of the same players that started GMH (including Bezos and Google) joined Meta, World Resources Institute, and others, to create the Land & Carbon Lab. Its mission is to develop "breakthroughs in geospatial monitoring to help governments, businesses, and communities power solutions for sustainable landscapes." According to its website, the Land & Carbon Lab is a network of researchers, technologists, and engagement experts working together to build a comprehensive, open-access monitoring system that will "provide unprecedented transparency about what is happening to the world's land anywhere on the planet, at any time." They will accomplish this by using artificial intelligence and machine learning to synthesize troves of satellite data to provide decision-makers with needed information. Land & Carbon Lab is currently working with leading scientists at Cornell University to devise updated global crop and livestock emissions maps. The website notes:

This data will provide critical information for developing targeted, sustainable solutions and more accurate greenhouse gas accounting for the agricultural sector and its wide-ranging contribution to the global food system.

This work will build on a previously published approach and include maps of global livestock emissions, including methane and nitrous oxide for 2020. These emissions maps will also consider feed consumption, meat and milk production, manure, nitrogen excretion, GHG efficiency, production value, and nutritional value.

It will also provide updated maps of global annual cropland emissions and emissions/production intensity for 42 of the world's most common crop types, including factors such as fertilizer rates, yields, soil maps, climate variables, and peatland drainage.

Nearly ten years ago, Gates rallied fellow entrepreneurs like Bezos, Mark Zuckerberg, Richard Branson, Mukesh Ambani, and Reid Hoffman to start the Breakthrough Energy Coalition. At the time, Gates explained that "the world is going to be using 50 percent more energy by mid-century than it does today." He noted, "That should be good news, especially for the world's poorest, because right now, more than 1 billion people live without access to basic energy services." Predictably, instead of going into the community and solving the problem for these people—which he could afford to do—Gates took the opportunity to push climate change and the need for renewable technologies like wind and solar, insisting life as we know it must come to a halt.

Presently, the dystopian future being forced upon us by self-righteous billionaires has nothing to do with the equity and inclusion they sermonize. Likewise, it has nothing to do with helping those less fortunate. Instead, it has everything to do with destroying freedoms while merging humans and machines. With all their billions, if they were genuinely concerned about humanity, they would not encourage AI, which consumes massive amounts of energy. Yet, AI is involved in all their schemes. Jesse Dodge (senior research analyst at the Allen Institute for AI) has studied how artificial intelligence consumes energy, noting that as AI gets more sophisticated, it needs more and more power to meet demands. With all major tech companies going "full throttle on AI," NPR reported in June that the thirst for electricity to power AI has become so intense that plans to decommission several coal plants have been delayed. Makes no sense.

Before AI completely takes over, humanity as a whole must recognize that Gates, Bezos, and their cronies are not trying to solve the "climate crisis." No indeed. Instead, they are doing nothing more than funding esoteric projects designed to propel the deep state agenda.

12 Top Priorities for Trump charged with serious crimes against America. The federal government must be prohibited from creating censorship requests or lists, or from laundering such censorship through NGOs, which the Biden regime did in spades. All those who engaged in deliberate censorship of US citizens must be arrested and prosecuted for violating the civil rights of the American people.

Priority #7: Outlaw grooming, DEI and WOKE policies in corporations, government and education

DEI and woke policies are discriminatory and racist by definition. All such policies must be declared illegal, and protections for races and genders must be extended to include white people and men, not just "people of color" or women, or men pretending to be women. Equal protection under the law must mean equal protection. Equal rights. Not equal outcomes, but equal opportunities for all people, including those who lack melanin in their skin. These years of outright discrimination against whites and men have been little more than reverse racism, pushed by the corporate media, Hollywood, universities and government policies. The discrimination must end, and those who carried it out must be criminally charged.

Priority #8: Nuremberg 2.0 trials for the COVID criminals and depopulation vaccine pushers

It's time for a full investigation and a series of trials against the architects and conspirators who pushed the COVID depopulation agenda and vaccine bio-weapons on humanity. We need a full accounting, and people like Fauci and Gates must face arrest and prosecution. All those who took part in the hospital homicide protocols, who murdered for profit with ventilators, who coerced workers and soldiers into taking deadly jabs, and who destroyed local businesses with unnecessary lockdowns must be prosecuted for their crimes. Hold them all accountable.

As Dr. Brian Hooker of CHD just tweeted, "It is now time for Nuremberg 2. Line them up: Gates, Fauci, Collins, Birtx, Redfield, Walensky, Baric, Daszak and many others. The damage caused by their profiteering is staggering."

Priority #9: Get the USA out of foreign wars and end NATO and the UN

No American blood for Israel or Ukraine. End the wars, end the supply of money and weapons to these countries, and focus on America first. Don't get drawn into wars with Russia, China or Iran. The U.S. military cannot win those wars, and they will only lead to economic and military destruction for the USA. NATO should be ended entirely, and NATO forces should withdraw to Minsk Accord boundaries. This would end the war with Russia. And if Europe wants to fight Russia itself, they are welcome to try, but all the military forces of Western Europe wouldn't last a month. Only Turkey has a significant ground force presence, and they are headed out the door of NATO soon anyway.

Priority #10: End the Fed and halt the fiat currency mass counterfeiting operation that will only end in financial collapse

The dollar is going to collapse. Far better to unwind it in an orderly fashion, end the criminal Federal Reserve (a cabal of foreign banksters), halt the money printing and launch a new gold-backed currency system that can't be hyperinflated into oblivion. Or better yet, get the government out of the business of currency and money altogether. Crypto, gold and silver offer capable alternatives, and there is no longer any need for a centralized, government-weaponized system of currency in the first place.

Priority #11: Fix the broken election system with paper ballots, nationwide voter ID and same-day election results

For America to have a real future, the rigged election system that has kept Democrats in power for generations must be entirely dismantled and ended. This means paper ballots in all elections from here forward. Voter ID must be required at all voting centers, and only U.S. citizens may vote. Every ballot must be serialized so it can only be scanned once. All election results must be counted and delivered on a same-day basis, which is easily possible for every other nation in the world to accomplish, but for some reason in the USA (when Democrats want to cheat) elections are drawn out for days. That has to end now.

Priority #12: End CIA control over the corporate media and yank the FCC broadcast licenses of all media outlets that deliberately deceived America

The CIA-run corporate media is a disgrace to this nation. Arguably, outlets like NBC, CBS, ABC, CNN and others are engaged in deliberate acts of treason against this nation, as they pushed one deep state lie after another, for years on end. There must be accountability for that action, and possible resolutions could include criminal prosecutions, revocation of FCC broadcast licenses, fines, etc. The days of the corporate media coordinating dangerous, treasonous lies against this republic are over. Accountability needs to be extracted from these liars and traitors. Their reign of information terror must come to an end.

Pitfalls and traps to avoid

President Trump must be alert to the nefarious forces trying to halt his progress:

* Beware of NEOCONS infiltrating your administration. Mike Pompeo is a snake. He's John McCain 2.0. Watch out for John Boltons and other war mongers who only want to profit from war and death while keeping America ensnared in multiple foreign wars.

* Don't get sucked into the Zionist agenda of war with Iran. Zionists want America to fight their wars in the Middle East, and those wars would be catastrophic for the U.S. economy and military. Put America first, not Israel.

* Don't get stopped by the lawfare of the radical Left. If treasonous judges try to block a border wall, impeach those judges for violating their constitutional oaths to defend the republic. If a member of the U.S. Senate tries to block election integrity such as making sure only U.S. citizens vote in elections, charge them with treason and remove them from power with impeachment. Stop being polite with traitors. Those who oppose fundamental protections of U.S. elections, U.S. territory and the U.S. Constitution are, by definition, enemies of the United States of America and should never be allowed to interfere with these critical protections for this republic.

* Don't try to pander to the corporate media and its "shame game." The corporate media is irrelevant. Achieving success for America is going to anger those who despise this nation. You will never be popular with demons when you try to cast out those demons. Nobody in the corporate media is acting in good faith. They are sabotage agents who hate this nation, despise humanity and are at war with God. Treat them with the total disrespect they have earned. I'm quite certain Steve Bannon would agree with me on this point, as he is a warrior, not a coward.

If Trump and his team members follow even a few of these guidelines, they will achieve tremendous success for America. Voice your support each day across social media. Let your voice be heard and demand real, radical reforms. Push the advantage to its fullest. Defeat the enemies of America and the enemies of God. You will be thankful that you did.

Kash Cold Hard KASH!

By: Pasheen Stonebrooke 11/30/2024
<https://divadrops.substack.com>

It's gonna get ugly...and it will be so beautiful to watch...NCSWIC

Donald J. Trump wrote on Truth Social: "I am proud to announce that Kashyap "Kash" Patel will serve as the next Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Kash is a brilliant lawyer, investigator, and "America First" fighter who has spent his career exposing corruption, defending justice, and protecting the American People. He played a pivotal role in uncovering the Russia, Russia, Russia Hoax, standing as an advocate for truth, accountability, and the Constitution. Kash did an incredible job during my First Term, where he served as Chief of Staff at the Department of Defense, Deputy Director of National Intelligence, and Senior Director for Counterterrorism at the National Security Council. Kash has also tried over 60 jury trials.

This FBI will end the growing crime epidemic in America, dismantle the migrant criminal gangs, and stop the evil scourge of human and drug trafficking across the Border. Kash will work under our great Attorney General, Pam Bondi, to bring back Fidelity, Bravery, and Integrity to the FBI."

Prepare for a cabal meltdown. Patel has revealed that some members of Congress are connected to the Epstein list, which he promises to declassify on day one. FLASHBACK: Trump's FBI Director Kash Patel calls for immediate declassification of Epstein client list: "Put on your big boy pants and let us know who the pedophiles are... I'd shut down the FBI Hoover Building on day 1 and open a Deep State museum."

Seismic shift in American justice as we know it. This was the Trump mandate. Let's hope the coverups for decades officially end when he is in office.

Clandestine posted: "You might not agree with 100% of Donald Trump's appointees, but it's clear there is a gameplan in mind. Kash as FBI Director is more proof that eradicating the Deep State is atop the agenda. Those claiming Trump is compromised can be swiftly disregarded moving forward. We have Elon and Vivek deleting 80%+ of the federal government, RFK Jr. in charge of health and the Covid reckoning, Tulsi in charge of all intelligence, Homan shutting down the border and deporting illegals, and now Kash is going to gut the FBI.

Sign me up. If you can't get excited and/or hopeful about this, then you're just blackpilling for the sake of blackpilling. Trump and his team are, at the very least, attempting to address the corruption and destroy the Deep State. Will it work? We shall see. But it's clear Trump is not messing around this time."

Holy projection fedman. Former deputy director, Andy McCabe, says Kash Patel will terrorize average citizens. He says this as a thousand+ J6ers face prison, the Whitmer hoax, Trump facing 700+ years in prison, et al., not to mention Russian collusion. Every accusation these a$$holes make is a confession. Confessions lead to indictments... Let the games begin!!!

Update: Some People Above The Law

BabylonBee.com Dec 1, 2024

U.S. — While the government has repeatedly insisted that no one is above the law, sources confirmed today that some people are, in fact, above the law.

Though the number appears to be rather small, the existence of people who live their lives completely above the law was confirmed today without a shadow of a doubt.

Few in America were surprised by the update, albeit appreciative of the final confirmation. "Duh," said local man Steve Jennings, in response to the news.

At publishing time, the government had returned to explaining how it was time to restore institutional norms and decency, especially ensuring that no one was above the law.

Merkel Blows a Hole in Washington's Nord Stream Narrative

The former German chancellor has suggested a suspect and motive for the destruction of the pipeline, saying the not-so-quiet part out loud.

By Rachel Marsden
www.rt.com 11/29/2024

Angela Merkel has just dropped a smoking gun into the pages of her new book. According to 'Freedom: Memoirs 1954-2021', published on November 26, Berlin was fully aware that Washington wanted to kill off Nord Stream. And that it was just using Russia as a scapegoat to steal a massive new energy market for itself. "The United States argued that its security interests were affected by the building of the pipeline because its ally Germany would make itself too dependent on Russia. In truth, I felt that the United States was mobilizing its formidable economic and financial resources to prevent the business ventures of other countries, even their allies," Merkel writes. "The United States was chiefly interested in its own economic interests, as it wanted to export to Europe LNG obtained through fracking."

This pretty much establishes that it was by premeditated design that Washington leveraged the Russian military operation in Ukraine as a convenient pretext to turn economic competitor Germany – and the EU more generally – into a vassal. But Merkel's successor, Chancellor Olaf Scholz, and the rest of the German and European establishment, acted like Joe Biden was just coming to their rescue out of benevolence when he offered to sell them LNG to replace Russian gas (which turned out to cost several times the price) to the ongoing detriment of German and European industry and citizenry.

Biden had stood beside Scholz at a White House podium in February 2022, talking like a mafia boss, saying that "there will no longer be a Nord Stream 2" if Russia enters Ukraine. Then the pipeline just mysteriously blew up in September 2022. Germany still hasn't found those responsible, though.

The Democrats and Global Elites: Ushering in a New Authoritarian Order Through Stakeholder Capitalism

By: Dominick Izzo 11/28/2024
Rantsofizzo.com

As Americans, we cherish our freedom, free-market capitalism, and democratic values. But in recent years, a disturbing trend has emerged, threatening to undermine these bedrock principles. In collusion with the world's most powerful elites, Democrats are steering our nation and the world towards a global, authoritarian political system known as Stakeholder Capitalism. Unlike the free-market capitalism that has fueled American prosperity and the state capitalism that defines communist regimes, Stakeholder Capitalism seeks to hand control of society to a select few: the elite members of the World Economic Forum (WEF), known as Stakeholders.

What Is Stakeholder Capitalism?
Stakeholder Capitalism is often presented as a benevolent approach to "socially responsible" governance that prioritizes sustainability, equity, and collective well-being over profit. But beneath this rosy exterior lies a dangerous agenda that centralizes power in the hands of unelected global elites. Under this system, these so-called "Stakeholders" gain decision-making authority over governments, businesses, and even the lives of ordinary people, all under the guise of protecting the planet and promoting social good.

In practice, this system is neither democratic nor capitalist. It represents a shift away from free-market principles—where businesses operate independently to generate wealth and create opportunities—and towards centralized control that limits freedom, competition, and innovation. The end result is a technocratic rule that elevates the interests of the powerful few over the many.

A Threat to Free-Market Capitalism

The free-market system that has defined American prosperity for generations is rooted in competition, innovation, and individual initiative. It is what allows businesses to grow, workers to thrive, and citizens to enjoy the fruits of their labor. Stakeholder Capitalism, however, seeks to replace this system with one that answers to unelected elites who dictate what is "good" for society and the environment, often at the expense of personal freedom and economic opportunity.

Under Stakeholder Capitalism, businesses no longer prioritize their shareholders—ordinary people investing in their futures—but must instead cater to the political and ideological whims of elite stakeholders. These stakeholders often pursue social and environmental policies that align with their own globalist agendas, without regard for the economic or personal costs borne by regular citizens.

The Role of the Democrats in This Dangerous Agenda

In the United States, the Democratic Party has become the political arm pushing for this global shift. By aligning themselves with powerful international organizations such as the World Economic Forum, Democrats are abandoning American sovereignty and democratic norms. Their embrace of policies like the Green New Deal, ESG (Environmental, Social, and Governance) regulations, and other top-down mandates demonstrates their willingness to sacrifice economic freedom on the altar of globalist ambitions.

The Biden administration's regulatory push is a key part of this transition. Through massive spending, overregulation, and initiatives aimed at "restructuring" society for the climate or "social justice," Democrats are empowering a small cadre of elite bureaucrats to dictate policy to the masses. This top-down approach stifles competition, raises costs for working Americans, and increases government dependency.

Empowering the World Economic Forum's Elites

At the heart of Stakeholder Capitalism is the World Economic Forum, led by Klaus Schwab and populated by billionaires, CEOs, and political leaders from around the world. These elites see themselves as the rightful stewards of global governance, using their influence to push policies and agendas that often go against the will of the people. The WEF's "Great Reset" initiative, for example, openly calls for a transformation of capitalism to suit their vision of a "more equitable" society. But this transformation is nothing more than a power grab, designed to expand control over every aspect of our lives—from what we eat, to how we work and to where we live.

By empowering these global elites, Democrats are complicit in undermining national sovereignty and individual rights. The true purpose of Stakeholder Capitalism is clear: to consolidate power in the hands of the few while stripping away the freedoms of the many.

The Consequences for Ordinary Americans

The move towards Stakeholder Capitalism is already being felt in the form of rising costs, economic instability, and social unrest. Policies that cater to elite interests have resulted in inflation, supply chain disruptions, and a weakening of our energy independence. While the elites tout "sustainability," everyday Americans are struggling to pay their bills, find jobs, and protect their families from government overreach.

Stakeholder Capitalism also poses a direct threat to free speech, as powerful institutions collude to silence dissenting voices under the pretense of "misinformation" or "extremism." This consolidation of power enables elites to dictate what is acceptable discourse and policy, stifling the debate and innovation that make democracies vibrant and successful.

A Call to Action: Preserving American Values

The fight against Stakeholder Capitalism is a fight for the soul of our nation. We must reject the Democrats' push to hand control of our lives to unelected global elites and reaffirm our commitment to free markets, individual liberty, and the Constitution. The path forward is clear: we must stand united, hold our leaders accountable, and demand policies that empower Americans—not foreign bureaucrats and multinational corporations.

Conservatives have long championed freedom, free enterprise, and limited government. Now, more than ever, we must stand firm against those who seek to erode our sovereignty and liberties in favor of a globalist, authoritarian agenda. America's future depends on it. Let us be the voice that defends freedom and stops the rise of Stakeholder Capitalism.

Things They Didn't Teach You in Church: Addiction

by: Jim Brouillette
CCHW Real News HQ
(Rumble and YouTube)
ChristChurchOfTheHolyWord.com

When the subject of addiction comes up it usually involves substance abuse, drugs or alcohol. Having been in the bar business for over 20 years, believe me I have seen my share of substance abuse. My first hand observance of addiction and the role I was playing in furthering it was one of the main reasons I felt I needed to get into another line of business.

We are warned in 1 Peter 5:8 - Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: He will devour us because he knows our weaknesses, and substance abuse comes in many different flavors. There are many substances besides illegal drugs that are addictive. I was addicted to cigarettes for over 20 years of my life. Paul taught: 1 Corinthians 6:12:

All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any.

Many substances in this world today are legal but will take you down a path of destruction. According to the NCDAS; "82% or 4 out of 5 pharmacy-filled prescriptions are opioids" and "45.8% of American adults used a prescription drug – legally or not – within the past 30 days." Big Pharma has become so big and so powerful it calls the shots in many areas of our life. According to the publication "Statista", Big Pharma spent $6.88 billion on direct-to-consumer advertising in 2021. Big Pharma spent $2.8 billion on advertising for just 10 drugs in 2023, up almost 15% from the previous year. The damage Big Pharma will do in the Last Generation is documented in the Bible, Revelation 18:23 states: "for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived." In the Strongs Concordance, the word sorceries is number 5331 in the Greek dictionary and means the use of medicine, drugs or spells.

Amazingly, one substance that has become so addictive to Americans and kills millions of people each year is also good for you, in fact we would die without it. What could that be? Food. In a study done by CDC, obesity was present in 35% of the adults studied in 23 states and the numbers are accelerating in children. The CDC warns that obesity, "has more than doubled in children and quadrupled in adolescents in the past 30 years," and currently more than 1/3 of children and adolescents in the U.S. have a weight problem. Fast food has become an addiction to many in this world, both old and young. Paul teaches in Romans Chapter 6 verse 12: Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof.

Addiction in the 21st century has enlarged its base, and its tentacles now reach new places never seen before. Addiction no longer has to do with just substances we put in our bodies, it has mutated into affecting the psyche. In 2023 the average person spent

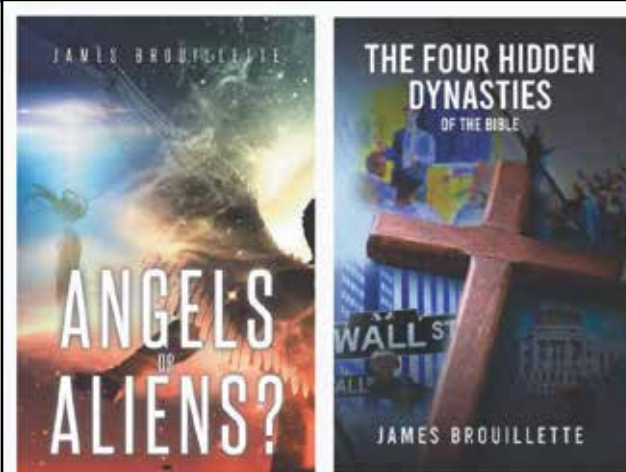

2 hours and 33 minutes a day on social media. That is an addiction. According to one study, 91.5% of men and 60.2% of women reported using porn in the past month. Pornography has become addictive to many men and women today.

The internet has ushered in a new era of addiction, psychological addiction. From social media to porn, society is being bombarded by more and more vehicles that can lead them to addiction via the internet. Hour upon hour, day after day a huge portion of the American public are tied to their cell-phones. Huge numbers of people are continually talking, texting, or scanning social platforms like TikTok, FaceBook, or Instagram, engaging in addictive behavior, and many are unaware of its danger. Cell phones and the use of the internet have become addictive. There is a fairly new activity that has appeared which uses the internet and has me very worried, especially involving our countries' younger citizens.

Online gambling has become the rage in America and especially with the age group between 21 and 35. Both men and women are succumbing to the temptation and lure of the possibility of gaining quick riches. In my opinion one of the shortcomings of a lot of American youth is their lack of appreciation and/or understanding of money and the importance of stability in their life and family. A gambling problem is one of the quickest ways to destabilize someone's life and family. A gambling addiction is devastating to all concerned. In Timothy Chapter 6:9 But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. 10 For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.

Verse 10 of Timothy Chapter 6 is perhaps the most often misquoted verse in the Bible. How many times have you heard someone say, "money is the root of all evil"? That is not what the verse says, "the love of money" is the problem, it can become an addiction. Even more addictive than money is what money brings with it. Oh, I know money can get you all those things I just listed that are addictive, but there is something else that money gets that is the most addictive thing in this world of flesh. That would be power.

If you want to see how addictive power derived from the love of money can be, take a look at the politics of the last election we just lived through. The Harris/Walz campaign spent over 1.5 billion dollars in just the last 15 weeks of the run up to the election. Bill Gates gave 50M. That was an attempt to buy the ultimate power in this country, the Presidency of the United States of America. They thought they could do it. The "Left's" addiction to power in this country is monumental, and their painful withdrawal hasn't even begun.

Update on Walter Spawr

By: TFPF Staff Writers and Walter Spawr

If you are unfamiliar with Walter Spawr and his incredible story, please go to TFPnews.com and read the full story spanning several issues. His property was wrongfully zoned and when he tried to fight for a correction he was faced with what appears to be corrupt co-conspiratory officials.

Walter has been denied his Constitutional right of appearing before the Grand Jury so on November 18, 2024, Walter Spawr went before the Mohave County Board of Supervisors (BOS) to present his case regarding the Grand Jury. County attorney Matthew Smith and county presiding superior court judge Steve Moss, jointly presented opposing arguments to Walter Spawr's presentation. The point of all this expressed rhetoric was to determine if there was any law prohibiting a citizen from directly submitting criminal evidence to the grand jury.

Mr. Smith cited 2 Arizona Supreme Court decisions that allegedly prohibit citizens from having direct access to the grand jury. Mr. Smith did not provide the alpha numeric identity of these cases, but instead, inappropriately and unconventionally, only cited the names of the parties, making it difficult to locate the true cases he was using as his offer of legalese proof. He argued that both of these cases (253 Ariz. 453, Bernini, and 108 Ariz. 248, Berger) conclusively prove that only he has authority to present evidence to the grand jury.

Neither one of these cases address the issue of whether the citizenry is prohibited from presenting criminal evidence directly to the grand jury. The Bernini case addressed the unlawful behavior of prosecuting attorneys who withhold evidence from the grand jury. Mr. Smith argued that only the state legislature has authority to make laws governing the grand jury. So what? Even if that was true, (which it is not) there is still no law prohibiting any citizen from introducing criminal evidence to the grand jury. There are no laws that prohibit a county BOS from making their own local procedural laws, when not in conflict with state legislated or judicial case law. Both Mr. Smith and Judge Moss left that fact out of their argument before the BOS. Neither Mr. Smith, nor Judge Moss, identified any case-law court decisions, or legislated state law, prohibiting citizens from presenting criminal evidence directly to the grand jury.

The 10th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution guarantees that any citizen can commit any act (including submitting criminal evidence directly to the grand jury) he or she desires, as long as it is not clearly prohibited by existing law. Mr. Smith and Judge Moss ignored this Constitutional right of every citizen.

The documentary evidence submitted (on November 12, 2024) to all supervisors, by Walter Spawr, included 3 Arizona Supreme Court cases that continuously held the grand jury is an arm of the people and not subordinate to the county attorney. These 3 Arizona Supreme Court cases were completely ignored, and not addressed by either the county attorney, Mr. Smith or Judge Moss. Attorneys and members of the judicial bar, are supposed to be totally honest and of honorable behavior. It is not honorable to ignore or hide evidence from the BOS.

What Does the World Say?

According to a November 21, 2024 Pew Research Center study, it's common for Americans to say grace or express gratitude at Thanksgiving dinner. Around two-thirds of U.S. adults say someone at their dinner typically says a prayer or blessing (65%) or says things they are thankful for (69%). A majority of Americans (56%) say someone at their Thanksgiving dinner typically does both of these things.

Majorities across religious groups also say someone at their Thanksgiving dinner typically expresses gratitude. Many religiously unaffiliated Americans say this, too: 59% of those whose religion is "nothing in particular," along with 61% of agnostics and 48% of atheists, say someone at their dinner typically says things they are thankful for.

What Does the Bible Say?

1 Thessalonians 5:16-18

Rejoice always; [17] pray without ceasing; [18] in everything give thanks; for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus.

Psalms 9:1-2

I will give thanks to the LORD with all my heart; I will tell of all Your wonders. [2] I will be glad and exult in You; I will sing praise to Your name, O Most High.

1 Chronicles 16:34

O give thanks to the LORD, for He is good; For His lovingkindness is everlasting.

Colossians 3:17

Whatever you do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks through Him to God the Father.

Philippians 4:6-7

Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. [7] And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

of dollars and countless hours currently wasted on indoctrination workshops. We'd free students and employees from walking on eggshells, terrified that an innocent remark might be misconstrued. Most importantly, we'd stop teaching people to distrust each other based on skin color.
DEI was never about inclusion. It was about wielding power under the pretense of morality. It painted a false picture of American society as irredeemably racist and sought to divide us along lines of race, gender, and ideology.

DEI Has Been Tried—and It Has Failed
The old socialist excuse, "It hasn't been tried correctly," doesn't apply here. DEI has been tried, and it has failed spectacularly. It hasn't created a more equitable society. It's created hostility, bureaucracy, and division. The sooner we ditch this poisonous ideology, the sooner we can return to fostering true meritocracy, mutual respect, and genuine inclusion—the kind that doesn't require mandatory training sessions or punitive measures to enforce.
Goodbye, DEI. Don't let the door hit you on the way out.
