To Make America Great Again, Start Here

By: Charles Hugh Smith 7/4/2025
www.OfTwoMinds.com/blog.html

Our status quo is so thoroughly corrupt that it's no longer even seen as corruption, it's just BAU--business as usual.

It's a big ask, but let's depoliticize the phrase "Make America Great Again" and consider what this would actually entail, not as a lobbyists' grab-bag of tax breaks for the wealthy and arcane giveaways in 500 page congressional bills, but as a restoration of the fundamental foundations of greatness. In the conventional contexts of the current era, this boils down to ideology and finance. If we dial back culture war overreach and free up "market forces," for example, this will restore America's greatness.

The problem with all this kind of thinking is it's superficial and banal, for it ignores the real source of America's decline: the moral rot that has eroded every institution and every nook and cranny of our society. Whenever I mention this moral rot, I get immediate push-back of this sort: corruption has always been around, so today is no different from previous eras.

While it's evident that self-interest and greed manifest as corruption, it's not true that the systemic corruption of the present is no different from previous eras—it's worse, much worse because it's now normalized, and so we accept the most outrageous forms of corruption as "normal."

So private equity buys a company, loads it with debt, transfers all the borrowed cash to the private equity "owners," and then leaves the company a sinking hulk that soon declares bankruptcy. Or when private equity snaps up hospitals and healthcare clinics and prices rise not for better service but to "reward the owners," this plundering of "healthcare" is just good solid MBA school maximization of shareholder value.

What few seem to notice is the barriers that limited the pillage and plundering of the private and public sectors have all eroded or been hollowed out. The legal framework is now a mirror image of the financial sector, a series of facades that mask the pillage and plundering: of course it's profitable, but it's also legal.

The social barriers have also been dismantled. There are no taboos left, as "anything goes" is the modern zeitgeist. The notion that corporations have a social responsibility to the community they're embedded in is now a quaint whiff of nostalgia, along with the notion that corporations have an implicit responsibility to serve the larger national interests as well as "shareholder value."

Every institution has been hollowed out by self service. Is it any wonder that younger generations have near zero trust in institutions, given that their PR veneer of "public service" is just a cover for milking the system for private gain?

If you read histories of capitalism--for example, Fernand Braudel's three-volume Civilization and Capitalism, 15th-18th Century (Volume 1, Volume 2, Volume 3) you discover that "capitalism" only functions as advertised if it is embedded in a moral order, something Adam Smith understood.

In early European capitalism, Christianity (Catholic and Protestant) provided this moral order. In China, Confucianism provided the moral foundation of the society and the economic/political structures.

Consider Xi Jinping's campaign to unify Confucianism and Marxism. This is not an anachronism, it reflects Xi's understanding that Marxism does not provide the moral foundation needed to limit the corruption undermining China. Only restoring a Confucian moral order can do that.

I explored this in some depth in this essay, Pieces of the China Puzzle (April 27, 2024). Here is an excerpt: As the author noted, "his attempted synthesis of Marx and Confucius has prompted bafflement, even mockery, among observers outside and inside China."

To me, there is nothing baffling in this synthesis; it not only makes perfect sense, it can be understood as essential in the broader context of China's history and culture.

If we truly want to make America great again, as opposed to using the

Letter from the Editor

by: Leesa Bolden, LAC
TFPP Editor in Chief

Aside from the heat, July is one of my favorite months. It is a time that most citizens celebrate our Nation's Declaration of Independence from Britain. Far too many have no idea the true meaning of the day but they celebrate regardless. Any reason for a party, right? Read page 11 and educate yourself and others before our 250th birthday.

Once again there is far too much news to cover in one paper. I am torn about The One Beautiful Bill so I included several different perspectives about it. I am angered by the continual spraying of chemicals on us so I included some good info on that. What I didn't cover that you should probably be aware of is that Firefighters in Idaho were ambushed and shot when they arrived on the scene of an intentional fire. A guy in Paris tried to marry a 9 year old. P. Diddy has ties to Blackrock. Macron told Trump to stop Candice Owens from reporting that his "wife" is a man, and Trump did. Along with the massive flooding in Texas there has been massive flooding in China and India. Wild-fires in France.

Tucker Carlson interviewed the president of Iran, Masoud Pezeshkian. He asked about their desire to create nuclear weapons. The president answered: "Netanyahu, since 1984, has created this false mentality that Iran seeks a nuclear bomb we have never been after developing a nuclear bomb, not in the past, not presently or in the future, because this is wrong." Tucker asked whether the Iran is seeking war with the U.S.? Pezeshkian explained "Iran has never invaded another country in the last 200 years... When they say "death to the United States," they don't mean death to the people of the United States or even to officials of the United States. They mean death to crimes, death to killing and carnage, death to supporting killing others, death to insecurity and instability."

The fact that Netanyahu showed up at the White House for his 3rd visit this year at the exact time that we all found out that there is nothing to see here regarding Epstein. In the video that was shown of the cell, there is a 1 minute time lapse (removed?) and the camera angle changed a bit and the video became distorted, but really there is nothing to see here. Move along. NewsUpdates4real did a good job of exposing the Zionist connection. How dumb do they think we are? We will have a few key videos at TFPnews.com.

Marilyn Kennedy is working on another very interesting case about a Golden Valley resident who lost his son (retired Air Force and firefighter) due to medical diagnosis and treatment errors. They have linked his illness to forever chemical (PFAS) agents that he was exposed to in his career. This will be a very informative article - I look forward to reading the full version next month. Did you know that 5G towers have been banned from all Fire Departments? Exposure to forever chemicals (if not banned forever) should be an informed consent item for anyone coming in contact with them, but that would be far too altruistic. It is harder to harm you if you know I am going to harm you.

One last thing I have to get off my chest, okay two. Have you gone down the rabbit hole of The Cancer Act of 1913? I will be covering that next month as well. Secondly, is anyone else super sick and tired of the left pretending to be scared of us for doing what they would absolutely do to us if the situation were reversed? The projection is so easy to see. Again, how stupid do they think we are? The programming is far too effective on many!

I hope you enjoy this month's issue and share the articles with those who would enjoy it or simply need to think more critically. With an online subscription you can share via email or text, it's super easy and only $24/year. Just sayin'. Love you all. God Bless America. God Bless us all!

SCOTUS Strikes a Blow against Public School Indoctrination of Young Children

By: James Bovard 06/30/2025
Mises.org/wire

On Friday, the Supreme Court clobbered perhaps America's most aggressive and intolerant LGBTQ+ school indoctrination program. By a vote of 6 to 3 in the case of Mahmoud v. Taylor, the court upheld parents' right to exempt their children from biased sex and gender lessons that violated their religious values. The court's ruling is a bitter reminder that public education is the most expensive "gift" that most Americans will ever receive.

Montgomery County, Maryland is the most liberal turf in one of the most liberal states in the nation. The Montgomery County Public School (MCPS) system prides itself on injecting progressive values into its 116,000 students. MCPS launched a gender-sex education program beginning in pre-kindergarten. The mandate was wildly unpopular with parents. The program initially offered an opt-out option—similar to what almost every other school system in the nation offers. But after too many parents signaled they wanted their kids out, the county canceled the opt-out. County bureaucrats sounded like antebellum plantation owners complaining about too many runaway slaves. An organization representing Muslim, Ukrainian Orthodox, and Catholic parents sued the school system. Their goal was not to prohibit the controversial textbooks but to exempt their kids from the indoctrination.

I live in Montgomery County and I have heard the anguish over this policy from foreign-born Uber drivers with children in local schools. Those Uber contractors came to this nation to pursue the American dream and are horrified to see how teachers are becoming deadly enemies of their family values and of their children's contentment with their own bodies. When the drivers implore me to explain the local school policy, I can only lament that "crazy as a loon" doesn't translate.

In 2019, the state of Maryland issued regulations to promote "viewing each student's" "gender identity and expression," and "sexual orientation" as "valuable." Government officials and political appointees arrogated to themselves the prerogative to redefine gender in the state of Maryland. In choosing books for the curriculum, the MCPS Board said it "would review options through an 'LGBTQ+ Lens' and ask whether books 'reinforced or disrupted' 'stereotypes,' 'cishnormativity,' and 'power hierarchies,'" according to a court brief filed by parents. That brief also noted that "teachers are told to frame disagreement with [pro-LGBTQ] ideas as 'hurtful,' and to counter with examples of 'men who paint their nails' or 'wear dresses.' The guidance documents also instruct teachers (twice) to 'disrupt the either/or thinking' of elementary students about biological sex." The goal is to instill in

Ban on AI State Regulation Removed from Big Beautiful Bill

By: Paul Dragu July 3, 2025
TheNewAmerican.com

On June 3, Georgia's firebrand Republican congresswoman, Marjorie Taylor Greene, admitted she hadn't read the entire "One Big Beautiful" megabill before voting to pass it out of the House. MTG was especially remorseful over missing the provision that prohibited states from regulating artificial intelligence (AI) companies.

Fortunately for MTG and the rest of America, concerned Senate Republicans picked up the slack and prevailed in what turned out to be a dramatic political saga.

The Trump administration has made AI development a priority. While concerns about this technology have mostly (and rightly) focused on its ability to help human users more effectively surveil and manipulate the public, a major reason the government is working overtime to foster AI development is because of its militaristic value.

All power nations are engaged in an AI race. AI helps the military process data for intelligence gathering and surveillance exponentially faster. It helps (or completely operates) various unmanned military tools, including drones. It is used to recognize patterns and break codes.

The military expenditures section of the One Big Beautiful Bill Act (OBBBA) includes billions of dollars in allocations to unmanned and AI-dependent equipment. Here is an example of OBBBA expenditures that require AI:

 $450 million for application of autonomy and artificial intelligence to naval shipbuilding;*

 $1.5 billion for expansion of small unmanned surface vessel production;*

 $2.1 billion for development, procurement, and integration of purpose-built medium unmanned surface vessels;*

 $1.3 billion for expansion of unmanned underwater vehicle production; and $188 million for the development and testing of maritime robotic autonomous systems and enabling technologies.*

That's right. That final bullet point does indeed indicate that the U.S. military is building underwater robots.

The Role of Nuclear Power

Another drawback of AI is its voracious appetite for energy. This is why the Trump administration, like the one before it, has made moves to unleash the power of nuclear energy.

Before the emergence of AI, the global controllers' propaganda campaign against nuclear power had largely succeeded. For decades, nuclear was vilified, its dangers overhyped, and its production minimized. The fear was severely disproportional to the harm it had caused. The Chernobyl, Fukushima, and Three Mile Island nuclear accidents have been the poster incidents of irrational fear toward this efficient, cost-effective energy source. But few people know that not a single person died in the Three Mile Island or Fukushima events. As for Chernobyl, the tenuous tally is 31 immediate deaths, most from the explosion and fires, not radiation. All three come to far less than the hundreds of deaths attributed to wind turbines, which, according to some sources, total more than 200.

President Donald Trump has signed executive orders to expedite the buildup of nuclear power plants, which will play a central role in powering new AI data centers.

The AI Provision

A previous version of the OBBBA included an AI provision that read: For a full 10 years after enactment, no U.S. state or locality may enforce any law or regulation that limits, restricts, or otherwise regulates artificial intelligence models, artificial intelligence systems, or automated decision systems entered into interstate commerce. Only laws encouraging use or deployment of AI are excluded.

Advocates defended the provision as a bulwark against burdensome red tape (especially in blue states) that would impede AI development. People familiar with how the measure got into the bill told The Wall Street Journal it was added in May "when House aides on the Energy and Commerce Committee and some White House staffers saw an opportunity shortly before the legislation was voted on." A big proponent was Committee Chairman Brett Guthrie, a Republican from Kentucky. Texas' Republican Senator Ted Cruz was the leading Senate supporter of this provision. Not surprisingly, Google and Meta Platforms (Facebook's parent company) lobbied for it.

Congressional Opposition

The provision drew a lot of negative attention. Among those who noticed was the man who had become an especially pointy thorn in President Donald Trump's side. On June 5, another

Kentucky congressman, Thomas Massie, posted on his X account pictures of the provision with a caption suggesting it would allow AI companies to build data centers wherever they want.

While Massie often stands alone, in this case he didn't. Republican Sens. Marsha Blackburn of Tennessee and Josh Hawley of Missouri "opposed it because the language was too broad and could be seen as preventing states from passing any laws affecting technology such as child online safety bills or laws protecting name, image and likeness," the Journal reported.

Blackburn, who represents a state known for its music legacy, was also concerned this measure would leave the state no recourse if it wanted to protect musicians from having their songs stolen by AI. Cruz tried to work her over, and almost succeeded. As the Journal reported, "Under [Blackburn's] agreement with Cruz, the moratorium would be five years and states could pass laws tied to child online safety or protecting artists from unauthorized AI uses of their images."

This triggered MAGA media figure and former Trump strategist Steve Bannon, as well as legal activist Mike David. They contacted Blackburn's office and told her not to let the "tech bros" have their way. Blackburn also got an earful from parents and creative groups. Trump, meanwhile, according to this report, remained largely non-committal on the issue.

The amendment to get rid of the "AI free rein" provision passed the Senate 99-1 on July 1.

A Big Beautiful Bill for the Military-Industrial Complex

By Ron Paul, MD 07/01/2025
TheRonPaulInstitute.org

The US Senate worked through the weekend on the “Big Beautiful Bill.” The goal was to pass it quickly to ensure the House will then pass it and send it to President Trump’s desk before the July 4th holiday.

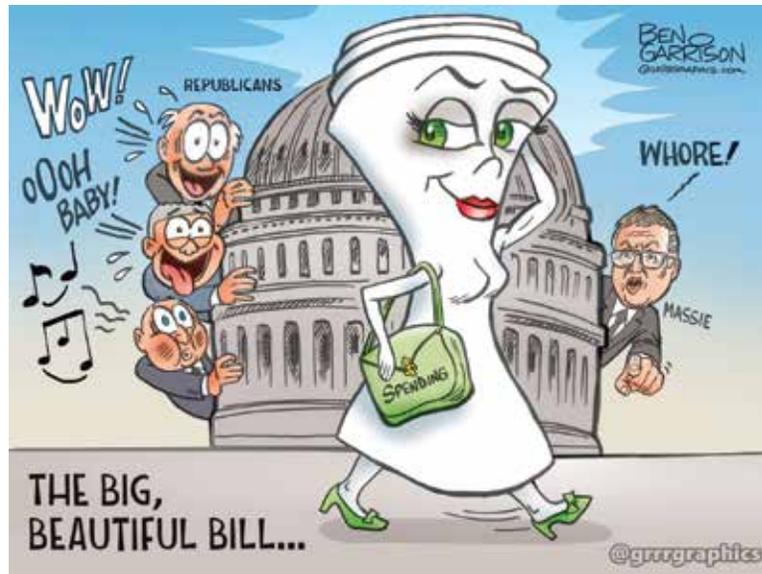

However, disagreements among Republican Senators over reductions in spending on programs including Medicaid and food stamps as well as language in the bill eliminating “clean energy” tax credits were preventing Senate Republican leadership from getting enough votes to pass the bill.

Also, some Republicans disagree with other Republicans in both the House and Senate on increasing the state and local tax (SALT) deduction. Many conservatives see this income tax deduction as encouraging states to maintain high taxes to fund big governments.

One item in the BBB that few Republicans are objecting to is the bill’s increase in military spending. The House version of the BBB added 150 billion dollars to the Pentagon’s already bloated budget. The Senate bill gave the military-industrial complex 156 billion dollars.

Increasing military spending contradicts President Trump’s promise to stop wasting money on endless wars that have nothing to do with ensuring the security of the American people.

Some of the BBB’s military spending will be used to put troops on the border. I support strengthening border security. However, I do not support using the military for domestic law enforcement, which includes enforcing immigration laws. Soldiers are trained to view tize the debt incurred by the US government for endless wars. President Trump has turned his back on his antiwar supporters by bombing Iran and by increasing military spending to over a trillion dollars.

The Republican insistence on increasing military spending is the main reason Congress cannot cut taxes without increasing the debt, people as potential enemies, not as innocent civilians to be protected. Introducing this mindset into domestic law enforcement will lead to abuses of liberty.

Increasing spending on militarism while cutting spending on programs that help low-income Americans is bad politics and bad policy. Polls show that the majority of Americans (including many Republicans) do not support overseas intervention.

The growing opposition to our hyper-interventionist foreign policy is easy to understand. The US has engaged in numerous military actions in many countries including Iraq, Afghanistan, and Syria since the beginning of the 21st century. The American people pay for this militarism in several ways. One is the “inflation tax” imposed by the Federal Reserve in order to mone-making cuts in domestic welfare programs, or both. If the Republicans want to be the Make America Great Again party, they need to embrace a true America First foreign policy. This means no more regime change wars or US taxpayer supported “color revolutions.” Instead, America should return to the Founders’ vision of a country that, in the words of John Quincy Adams, does not go “abroad in search of monsters to destroy” and instead is “the well-wisher to the freedom and independence of all” while “the champion and vindicator only of her own.”

A return to a noninterventionist foreign policy is the only way we will be able to begin to pay down the national debt and restore a government that adheres to the constitutional limits on its powers and respects all the people’s rights all the time.

One Big Beautiful Bill Delivers Historic Middle-Class Tax Relief

By: Antonio Graceffo, 07/06/2025
TheGatewayPundit.com

After decades of broken promises by previous administrations, President Trump has finally put more than $10,000 back into the pockets of working families. Yet, as expected, Democrats refuse to acknowledge how the One Big Beautiful Bill benefits the middle class and continue their “tax cuts for billionaires” rhetoric.

On July 4th, President Trump made history by signing the “One Big Beautiful Bill,” delivering what politicians have promised for generations but never achieved: the largest middle-class tax cut in American history. A distributional analysis by the nonpartisan Joint Committee on Taxation estimates the bill provides over $600 billion in middle-class tax relief, with the largest proportional benefits going to households earning under $50,000.

Households earning between $50,000 and $150,000 per year will see their annual take-home pay rise by $5,000 to $8,000. White House projections suggest a family of four could save as much as $10,000 to $13,300. The legislation specifically targets core earners with a 15% tax cut for those making between $30,000 and $80,000. Middle-quintile households are projected to see after-tax income rise by 2.6% in 2025 and 4.3% in 2026.

Tipped workers will also see a significant boost in take-home pay, with up to $1,700 in savings through the elimination of income taxes on tipped earnings. This benefits approximately 4 million workers in jobs like waitressing, barbering, hairstyling, and taxi driving. Additionally, the bill increases income for more than 80 million hourly workers by up to $1,750 by eliminating income taxes on the overtime pay premium.

The expanded standard deduction nearly doubles the amount of income that is tax-free, saving middle-class households up to $2,600 per year. The child tax credit increases from $2,000 to $3,500 per child, providing families with two children as much as $7,000 in direct tax relief.

Seventy percent of the tax cuts benefit families making less than $500,000, and working families earning between $15,000 and $30,000 will see the largest percentage reduction, a 23% cut in taxes. The bill also invests $124 billion in children from low- and middle-income families by creating new savings accounts and enhancing 529 education plans. For seniors, the bill delivers tremendous relief. It provides a $6,000 bonus tax deduction for Americans aged 65 and older. When combined with existing deductions, this ensures that 88% of seniors receiving Social Security, roughly 51.4 million people, will owe no federal income tax on their benefits. A single senior receiving the average $24,000 in annual Social Security income will see deductions exceed their taxable amount. Married seniors with a combined $48,000 in benefits will also see full exemption from federal income taxes. While President Trump originally campaigned on eliminating Social Security taxes entirely, this targeted approach achieves the same outcome for nearly 9 in 10 seniors, without weakening the Social Security trust fund.

The One Big Beautiful Bill is projected to boost long-run U.S. GDP by about 1.2%, thanks to its pro-growth tax reforms. Businesses will now enjoy permanent full expensing for business equipment and R&D, allowing companies to deduct 100% of capital investments immediately. Small business owners also benefit from payroll tax reductions averaging $3,000 to $5,000 annually, depending on their earnings and number of employees.

According to the Council of Economic Advisers, these provisions are estimated to raise investment by 2.7–3.2% and deliver 0.6–0.7% additional GDP growth in the long run, along with real wage gains of $1,374–$2,601. The Tax Foundation finds that this package adds 1.2% to GDP over the long term, with permanent expenses accounting for 0.7% of that increase. The remaining 0.5% comes from making previous tax cuts permanent and expanding the standard deduction, factors that collectively provide businesses and households with the certainty needed for sustained economic growth.

Despite Democrat claims to the contrary, the bill is not a giveaway to the rich, it provides tremendous benefits to the American middle class. With thousands of dollars in tax relief for families, seniors, hourly workers, and small business owners, this legislation delivers exactly what was promised: more money in the hands of everyday Americans.

Additionally, by incentivizing investment, driving wage growth, and fueling long-term economic expansion, the bill ensures job creation and price stability, outcomes that help every American, not just the wealthy.

What Can Be Done?

By: John Larabell, 07/01/25
TheNewAmerican.com

The idea that powerful, influential individuals would seek to unite the world's nations into a one-world government (a new world order) is no longer considered a fringe idea. The United Nations was intended at its inception to serve as a framework for a global government and its own founders and proponents have said as much.

This should surprise no one, as it is only natural for global elites to want to consolidate their power over the world and fashion it according to their desires.

However, what would such a scenario mean for those of us who would be ruled by a global government? Specifically, what would a world government mean for Americans?

We can already see the gradual erosion of American sovereignty, in the form of alliances and trade agreements subjecting America to foreign authorities. Membership in the United Nations, along with its agencies and organizations; multinational trade agreements; and military alliances such as NATO come to mind. Of course, this is just the beginning. Powerful proponents of the globalist agenda will not stop until national sovereignty is a thing of the past, and the U.S. Constitution will be either rewritten or scrapped. American liberties (freedom of speech and religion, the right to keep and bear arms, the ability to own private property, and freedom from unwarranted searches, etc.) will be dismissed at the whim of unelected global bureaucrats.

Globalist elites feel that such a scenario is inevitable, that they have too much power, money, and influence for their plans to be thwarted. Is this true? Can such an erosion of sovereignty and liberty be stopped, or is planetary tyranny all but assured?

Indeed, the problem might seem insurmountable (the opponent too vastness and complexity, while impressive, is its weakness.

Merely removing the United States from NATO and the United Nations would strike a mortal blow to the globalist agenda. This is no exaggeration: NATO is useless without the military power of the United States, and the United Nations would lose an irreplaceable amount of funding and clout should the United States withdraw.

powerful) but the truth is that the entire globalist system is weak, simply because it is unnatural. It requires an incredibly complex system of lies and a byzantine administrative state merely to advance it, let alone see it become a reality. Therein lies its weakness. If a major country decides to simply "opt out," so to speak, the entire house of cards will collapse. Its

Legislation to withdraw the United States from the United Nations — such as the American Sovereignty Restoration Act of years past and the Disengaging Entirely From the United Nations Debacle (DEFUND) Act (H.R. 1498 and S. 669) has been introduced in the current Congress. Some say such efforts are a long shot; perhaps even a useless gesture, but the truth is that such ideas are gaining momentum.

Some decades ago, even introducing a bill to end U.S. participation in NATO would have been unthinkable; likewise with the UN. Not so today. There is more support now (bipartisan support at that) for removing America from these globalist vanity projects than ever before. This is a reflection of the mindset of the American people. In the aftermath of WWII, both the UN and NATO seemed beneficial to many Americans. The past 80 years have changed that, however.

Put simply, if America opts out of globalism, the globalist agenda fails. In order for America to opt out, the American people need to opt out first, and they can't do that unless they understand the truth about globalism.

So what can individual Americans do? Several things. Putting pressure on your representatives in Congress to pass legislation to get the United States out of the UN and NATO is important. This can take the form of phone calls, emails, letters, etc. Those with natural leadership abilities should consider running for office, whether on the local, state, or federal level. More patriotic Americans in positions of influence means less success for the globalist agenda. Becoming organized at a grassroots level to educate the American electorate — by joining organizations such as The John Birch Society, for example — will help multiply influence and create even more opposition to globalism.

Putting the spotlight on Independence

By: Steven Maikowski

It is obvious that our nation has been losing its appreciation of Independence Day. Most people refer to July 4th, instead of the reason for the event. Several internet videos show citizens who cannot identify what country the United States declared independence from; a few didn't know July 4th was Independence Day. Our public education system is NOT doing its job.

Next year will be our nation's 250th birthday, so it is up to us to educate the ignorant on the value of our Independence and the costs of that great event.

Let's start at the beginning, the Second Continental Congress. It met in Philadelphia in 1775 under what it referred to as The United Colonies of America, then changed it to The United States of America, signifying a break from British rule. During that time, the delegates approved a Declaration of Causes that outlined the reasons for taking up arms against the British.

The energy and commitment required to get this far deserves to be acknowledged. Travel between the colonies was difficult, dangerous and costly; often taking weeks on horseback or carriage. Their travels to Philadelphia show the resolve of the times and the States.

On June 11th, they took a giant step, creating a committee of five to draft a Declaration of Independence for the United States. Thomas Jefferson was selected to write the first draft of the Declaration, which was then reviewed by the Committee. The committee of five knew that their Declaration must be something that all the States would approve, so they omitted Jefferson's criticisms of slavery, creating the finished Declaration. It was an eloquent statement on the abuses of the Crown that necessitated a severance from British authority.

Here are a few reasons (all tyrannical in nature) cited in the Declaration. The "He" listed here is the King of England, George III.

• He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

• He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.
• He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

• He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

• He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers.

• He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

• He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, the amount and payment of their salaries.

• For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of Trial by Jury.

• For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

By signing this Declaration, every man knew that he was declaring war on the most powerful force in the world. Many of them ended up losing their lives and fortunes by war's end. The combatants paid a heavy price, some 6,800 killed, 6,100 wounded, and over 17,000 died from disease (such as smallpox), starvation, and exposure.

The cost of fighting established tyranny is heavy.

It is up to us to explain the importance of Independence Day to as many people as possible. Ready yourself for the year ahead, and promote the history of Independence as much as you can. Our nation and our children deserve it.

Quartzsite Independence Day Celebration

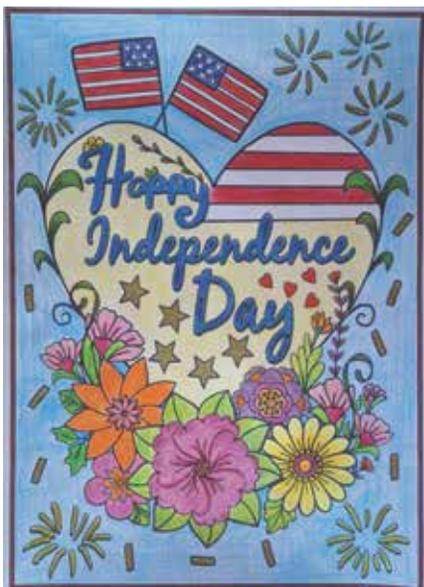

By: Leesa Bolden, TFP Editor

Quartzsite did a good job of celebrating the Independence of our Nation. The 5pm opening of the new Splash pad was a bit untimely in my opinion. I would have liked for the opening to have been more in the heat of the day allowing more time for people to gather at the Community Center at 6pm to celebrate our Independence. None-the-less, it was a good presentation. Jewel and her team did a good job.

The celebration began with a brief lesson on the history of Independence Day presented by Steven Maikowski, the author of the above article. He told jokes and made the history lesson entertaining and informative. Most listening learned or remembered something about the writing of The Declaration of Independence and appreciated his presentation.

Steven presented Mayor Simpson with a beautiful copy of the Declaration of Independence for the town to display.

It will be framed and placed in the Town Hall very soon. Mayor Simpson followed with reading some excerpts from the Declaration of Independence and did a good job of clarifying the meaning.

Then the party began. Music was provided by The Outback Pizza and there were hot dogs, watermelon, popcorn and refreshments. It was a fun event with the true spirit of Independence Day. At 9pm the fireworks started and the town did a spectacular display.

Constitution Day is September 17th and the Mayor assured me that we would partner to have a wonderful educational celebration for that.

NYC's Mamdani's End Goal: "Seizing the Means of Production"

By: R. Cort Kirkwood July 2, 2025
TheNewAmerican.com

Zohran Mamdani, the radical socialist who won New York City's Democratic mayoral primary, is very likely a full-blown communist. The evidence surfaced in Mamdani's speech (now going viral) to the Young Democrat Socialists of America in 2021. Mamdani said he and his Red gang would seize the means of production once they took power.

Law Professor Jonathan Turley zinged Mamdani as one of the hip youngsters who know nothing about the failures of 20th-century communism. Meanwhile, Mamdani has answered Trump's threat to arrest him if he interferes with Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) agents in New York to arrest and deport illegal aliens.

Seizing the Means of Production

To his credit, Mamdani is nothing if not honest. He doesn't disguise his goals, even if he dresses them up in his smiling face. "Right now, if we're talking about the cancellation of student debt, if we're talking about Medicare for all, you know, these are issues which have the groundswell of popular support across this country," he told the young lefties: "... then there are also other issues that we firmly believe in, whether it's BDS [the Boycott, Divest, and Sanction movement against Israel] or whether it is the end goal of seizing the means of production, where we do not have the same level of support at this very moment.

Soft socialists don't advocate "seizing the means of production."

Continued Mamdani: "It's critical, the way that we organize, the way that we set up our — you know, set up our work and our priorities, that we do not leave any one issue for the other, that we do not meet a moment and only look at what people are ready for, but that we are doing both of these things in tandem. Because it is critical for us to both meet people where they're at and to also organize for what is correct and for what is right, and to ensure that, over time, we can bring people to that issue."

When he was running for New York assemblyman (an office to which voters imprudently elected him) Mamdani offered a one-minute explanation of socialism on YouTube. "Socialism! Terrifying word," the Uganda-born Indian immigrant began: "A lot of people are afraid of the word "socialism," and a lot of people have misconceptions about what it means. I'm a Democratic Socialist and what socialism means to me is a commitment to dignity. A state that provides whatever is necessary for its people to live a dignified life."

Such matters as housing and health-care "are not things that should be up for debate," he said, "because we see what happens when we let the market be the sole determinant of the distribution of dignity." Mamdani didn't say who will define "dignity" and "whatever is necessary."

Add to this the list of priorities at Mamdani's campaign website. His site contains the craziest ideas ever to ooze out of the brainpan of a political candidate: freezing rent, "free" child care, "free" public transportation, and a minimum wage of $30 per hour. Mamdani also wants to raise taxes on "white neighborhoods." His primary triumph, which has moderate Democrats terrified, invited Trump to call him a "a 100 percent communist lunatic."

Turley: Not a Communist, but ...
Turley noted that he doesn't call

Mamdani a communist because he hasn't seen Mamdani advocate one-party control of the political system or "complete centralization of the economy under government control." Mamdani's clear warning about "seizing the means of production" shows that he is a "serious Marxist," Turley wrote.

The prescription does not sound like soft socialism, but fairly hardcore Marxism. It also contradicts Politifact's statement that "Mamdani's platform is not akin to communism, a system of government which calls for government takeover of private property and control of industry." Noting that Mamdani is the "perfect product of the extreme American left" and the "prototype" graduate of the far-left university system, Turley explained that such youngsters don't know history.

"Polls show increasing support among young people for socialism and even communism. Notably, Mamdani received significant support in the primary from wealthy and young college-educated voters," Turley wrote: "To put it simply, it is cool to be socialist among generations who did not experience the economic failures of socialist systems in the 20th Century in countries like Great Britain and France. They did not witness former communist countries turning to capitalism to rescue their failing economies." Nor did they witness communism's mass murders, the hundreds of millions who died under the Soviet Union's Joseph Stalin or Red China's Mao Tse-tung.

Trump Is a Fascist

Nor do the youngsters refrain from using communist propaganda terms to describe opponents, which raises Mamdani's answer to Trump's threat to arrest him. Speaking at the Alligator Alcatraz news conference yesterday, Trump warned Mamdani not to obstruct ICE in enforcing federal immigration laws.

During his post-primary victory speech, Mamdani said that New York City will be a place where public safety keeps us truly safe. It's where the mayor will use his power to reject Donald Trump's fascism; to stop mass ICE agents from deporting our neighbors; and to govern our city as a model for the Democratic Party.

Asked what he would do if Mamdani interferes with ICE, Trump said: "Well then, we'll have to arrest him. Look, we don't need a communist in this country, but if we have one, I'm going to be watching over him very carefully on behalf of the nation." Mamdani's reply meandered everywhere but straight to the point of his threat to obstruct ICE. Nor did he elaborate about why he feels entitled to break federal obstruction and harboring statutes.

"Donald Trump said that I should be arrested," Mamdani said: "He said that I should be deported. He said that I should be denaturalized, and he said those things about me. Someone who stands to be the first immigrant mayor of this city in generations, someone who would also be the first Muslim and the first South Asian mayor in this city's history. Less so because of who I am, because of where I come from, because of how I look or how I speak, and more so because he wants to distract from what I fight for."

Mamdani claims he is fighting for the same Americans for whom Trump said he was fighting. Maybe, but Trump has never mentioned "seizing the means of production," one of the first illegal actions of communists when they take power.

SCOTUS Blow to Indoctrination

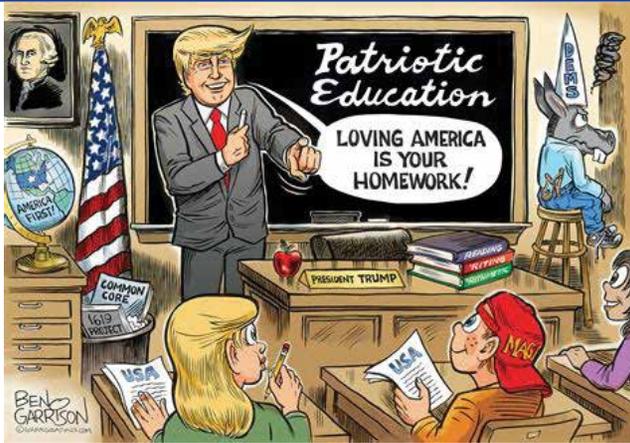

children “a new perspective not easily contravened by their parents,” as the MCPS Board admitted.

In 2020, MCPS reported a 500 percent increase in the number of black and Hispanic kids failing math thanks in part to pointless covid school shutdowns. But that was a trifle compared to the 582 percent increase in the number of kids self-identifying as “non-binary” in local schools. “Disrupting children’s thinking” has been so successful that school medical intake forms indicate that almost half of students identified themselves as non-binary. MCPS justifies keeping young kids’ gender transitions secret in order to protect children from their own parents.

No data has been disclosed on how many of those students have been swayed to take puberty blockers that will leave them barren for life—even though most kids who have gender doubts later accept what they were born with. There is no data on how many females have had double mastectomies or how many boys have had genital-altering surgery. Non-binary kids are far more likely to suffer mental illness, but the schools did not disclose any data on how their crusade boosted the use of antidepressants and other psychiatric drugs. One survey found that more than half of transgender and non-binary youth considered committing suicide in 2022.

No wonder the parents’ lawsuit complained that MCPS promoted “political ideologies about family life and human sexuality that are inconsistent with sound science, common sense, and the well-being of children.”

A few decades ago, supposedly only reactionaries objected to public schools providing sex education. If such “lessons” had been limited to how to avoid pregnancy and venereal disease, then there would have been little or no harm or controversy. But that became the camel’s nose in the tent. Sex education became obsessed with redefining gender and radically changing how kids viewed themselves and American society.

In order to mold kids’ values, Montgomery County schools destroyed the innocence of childhood by placing a massive focus on sex starting at age 3. Encouraging kids to doubt their gender and sexual orientation before puberty can blight their lives. Even the local association of school principals vehemently objected to the program, finding it “problematic to portray elementary school age children falling in love with other children, regardless of sexual preferences.” Principals also opposed books and programs that “support the explicit teaching of gender and sexual identity”; invite “shaming comments” toward students who disagree, and are “dismissive of religious beliefs,” according to a court brief. Pro-LGBTQ+ advocates have provided no evidence on the benefits of encouraging kids to torment themselves about their own gender for years before they reach puberty. It doesn’t take 10 years of indoctrination to sway teenage boys to lust for female bosoms.

This case epitomizes how “free” schools subjugate parents and other taxpayers. When the Supreme Court heard oral arguments on this case, Justice Jackson scoffed: “If the school teaches something that the parent disagrees with, you have a choice. You don’t have to send your kid to that school, you can put them in another situation.” But many of the parents objecting cannot afford either private schools or homeschooling their kids.

Justice Samuel Alito (writing for the court majority) declared, “A government burdens the religious exercise of parents when it requires them to submit their children to instruction that poses ‘a very real threat of undermining’ the religious beliefs and practices that the parents wish to instill... and a government cannot condition the benefit of free public education on parents’ acceptance of such instruction.”

Most parents pay taxes that could cover much if not all of the cost of their kids’ schooling. Parents’ rights vanish as soon as their tax dollar is deposited into government coffers. Paying for schooling indirectly turns parents from buyers into beggars. Public schools vivify how control over financing for a service leads to political controls over people’s lives. Justice Alito scoffed at the three Justices who opposed the opt-out: “According to the dissent, parents who send their children to public school must endure any instruction that falls short of direct compulsion or coercion and must try to counteract that teaching at home.” As long as government officials don’t strap children into their chairs and directly use electronic mind zappers, progressives assume officialdom hasn’t gone too far.

The Supreme Court made the right call in upholding parents’ right to opt-out their kids. But how did government schools ever become so arrogant as to claim a right to determine what each child thought about personal, moral, and religious issues? The power of government schools remains a dire threat to parents, children, and to the future of liberty.

Things They Didn't Teach You in Church: Tired of Winning Yet?

By: Jim Brouillette
CCHW Real News HQ
(Rumble and YouTube)

In a November 2022 CNN article trying to bash Trump, CNN reminded readers of Trump's 2016 campaign statement. "We're going to win so much, you're going to get tired of winning..." I'm not saying I am tired of Trump winning, but I bet CNN and the rest of the lame-stream media is! The latest big win for Trump was with SCOTUS, where the court came down 6-3 in favor of the Constitution and Presidential Powers. This decision will curb judicial attempts to block Presidential Orders nationwide. Some of Trump's orders effect: birth-right-citizenship, immigration, tariffs, wildfire prevention, strengthening national cybersecurity, airspace sovereignty, lowering drug prices, protecting religious liberty, strengthening law-enforcement, deporting criminal aliens, school discipline, unleashing American energy, improving the electric grid, reducing government waste and abuse, keeping men out of women's sports, school choice, protecting children from chemical and surgical mutilation, protecting parent's rights, designating drug cartels as terrorists, withdrawal from the World Health Organization, and much more.

The Supreme Court victories came on the heels of what could be the most successful military operation since WWII. The U.S. took out Iran's nuclear program in a single 20-minute strike. Israel had been pounding Iran's nuclear sites for several days, but with one strike by U.S. B-2 bombers they were "obliterated". The Israelis' operation Midnight Hammer was impressive, but the obliteration of Iran's 3 nuclear production facilities, buried deep below mountains, was spectacular. What I found amazing was how it all came together. Last month I wrote an article entitled

The Abraham Accords and in it I outlined the trip Trump took to the Middle East in May, where he met with several of its leaders. I pointed out that Trump asked the leaders of Saudi Arabia and Syria to join the Abraham Accords. A few weeks later what has come to be known as the 12-Day War between Israel and Iran erupted, when Israel began attacking Iran's nuclear facilities. Guess who decided not to back up Iran; everyone! Israel's air force met no resistance from any Iran proxies like Hamas, Hezbollah, or the Houthis, and Russia and China were silent.

None of the Arab states supported Iran, and Syria said nothing. In fact, CNN reported that President Trump was on billboards all over Syria's capital city; thanking him for trying to "Make Syria Great Again." MSN reported that an American Flag was hoisted into the sky above the embassy in Damascus. The Washington Post reported Abdulkhaleq Abdulla, a political scientist in the United Arab Emirates, said "...A weakened Iran was "good for the region..."

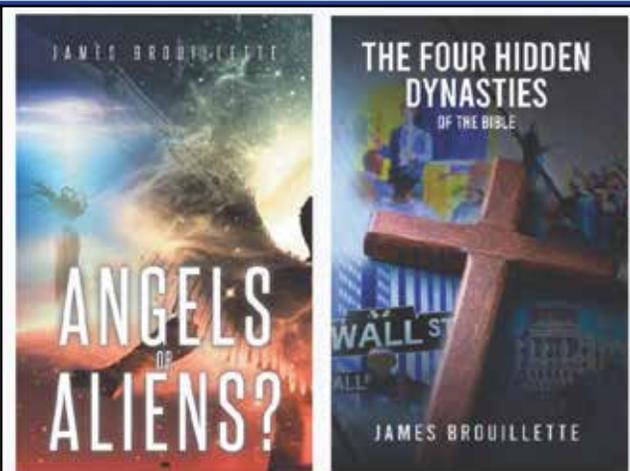

THE TIMES OF ISRAEL reported "Gulf nations quietly applauding Israel...", and several analysts worldwide said that despite public condemnation of Israel, they wanted to see Iran weakened. EurAsia Daily reported, "Turkey... according to political analyst Vladimir Avatkov (as part of its allied obligations) is going to help Israel and the West shoot down what will fly from Iran to Israel." In fact, on the first night of attacks (according to Middle East Eye) "Tehran (Iran) launched 170 drones, 30 cruise missiles and 120 ballistic missiles, with five countries sharing credit for successful interceptions... Iran's drones and missiles were intercepted by Israel, the US, the UK, France and Jordan." Iran received no support from anyone. How much of that, do you think, had to do with Trump's Middle East visit a few weeks earlier?

On June 27th, a peace agreement brokered by the Trump administration (meant to end the bloodshed between the eastern Democratic Republic of Congo and Rwanda) was signed in Washington D.C. by officials of the two African nations. Don't forget, Trump convinced all the members of Nato (except Spain) to increase their contributions from 2% to 5% of their GDP. Peace is breaking out everywhere. Russia and Ukraine will be next. World peace would be wonderful, but what does the Bible say about all this, especially in view of the parable of the fig tree?

We are told in both Mark 13:28 and Matthew 24:32, by Jesus Himself, "Now learn the parable of the fig tree..." Do you understand what this parable teaches? Jesus told us to be watchmen, to know the season of His return by recognizing the signs and events He gives us in Mark 13 and Matthew 24. We should be familiar with them, especially considering the time frame specified by this parable; the clock began ticking when God returned the nation of Israel to the Holy Land. Matthew 24:34 ...This generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled. What things? What Jesus tells us will be happening just before He returns. Let's see what Jesus said in Matthew 24. Beginning

There is one thing absolutely necessary for this Beast to exist: World Peace. Only then can the Deadly Wound occur.

The US State Department Officially Shuts Down USAID—The Democrat Slush Fund for Kickbacks

The official shutdown of USAID was announced by Secretary Rubio.

By: Diamond and Silk, 07/02/2025
DiamondAndSilk.substack.com

The United States Agency for International Development has formally closed its doors. As part of President Trump's effort to cut unnecessary spending, USAID discontinued over 80% of its projects in March; the State Department has since taken over the remaining operations.

In their efforts to reduce the size of the federal government, billionaire Elon Musk and the Department of Government Efficiency set this transition as one of their first goals. Former Presidents George W. Bush and Barack Obama have most recently heavily criticized the closure of USAID, which was established to deliver aid globally. In the past, USAID employed about 10,000 workers, many of whom worked abroad, according to BBC reporting. Along with U2 singer Bono, Bush and Obama participated in a video farewell for USAID employees on Monday, expressing gratitude for everyone's work.

is No More!

The official shutdown of USAID was announced by Secretary Rubio. The State Department now oversees all essential programs and funding. Elon Musk and the DOGE team swiftly characterized the left's preferred slush fund as an ideological infection that costs taxpayers more to operate annually than the CIA. The agency supported crazy initiatives that had no justification other than to give families of Democratic politicians and judges a work program, and it promoted radical gender ideology, DEI, and ESG.

Many people are asking whether the shutdown of USAID contributed to the current financial woes of the DNC, especially in light of its ironic timing. The revelation of USAID's money-laundering and political kickback practices alarmed many lawmakers. Since we as citizens are no longer supporting its insane funding of leftist ideology, these changes will eventually result in a decrease in our taxes.

Additionally, the shutdown of USAID follows additional damning disclosures of wrongdoing within the agency:

* April 29, 2025: A federal indictment led to the arrest of a former project director from a North Carolina non-profit organization for cheating USAID out of almost $240,000. While working on a USAID cooperative agreement in South Africa, this case featured false claims for housing allowances.

* June 13, 2025: Four men entered guilty pleas to a ten-year bribery scam involving more than $550 million in contracts, including three corporate executives and a USAID government contracting officer. At least 14 prime contracts were impacted by this plan.

How much will this impact the Democrats' financing of anti-American ideology, waste, fraud, and DEI funding? Will there be another name on the check coming forward?

After Nearly 62 Years, CIA Finally Admits a Psychological Warfare Agent from the Agency "Came into Contact" with Lee Harvey Oswald before JFK's Assassination

By Jim Hoft Jul. 5, 2025

President John F. Kennedy was assassinated 62 years ago while riding in a presidential motorcade through Dealey Plaza in Dallas, Texas, on November 22, 1963. Thanks to President Trump the American public is finally discovering the real story behind the assassination. For years Americans have been holding their own investigations into the death of our 35th president.

Robert Kennedy, Jr. told Tucker Carlson back in August 2023 that he has had discussions with CIA and mob hitmen who were assigned to the JFK assassination. Robert Kennedy, Jr. told The Gateway Pundit's Jim Hoft in May 2023 that his father's initial impulse was to call the CIA and ask about their involvement. Kennedy is convinced of CIA involvement in his uncle's assassination. Robert's father, Robert Kennedy, was later assassinated in Los Angeles during his campaign for US president.

Now, according to AXIOS, for the first time since President Kennedy's assassination, the CIA has admitted that an officer specializing in psychological warfare ran an operation that "came into contact with"

Lee Harvey Oswald before the assassination in Dallas. The newly released documents reveal CIA operatives got into a scuffle with Oswald in a New Orleans' bar. The DRE was an anti-communist group and Oswald was reportedly handing out pro-Castro propaganda. The CIA was covertly funding the DRE.

From the report: A year before Oswald became known as pro-Castro, the Pentagon formulated a plan called Operation Northwoods to stage a false-flag attack in the United States, blame Cuba and then attack it. AXIOS has more. How much more on the Kennedy assassination is out there that we still don't know about?

Will we EVER learn more about Thomas Matthew Crooks – the young man who nearly took out President Trump in July 2024 in Butler, Pennsylvania?

Chemtrails Task Force Busts DARPA Plot to Spray mRNA Bioweapon Across US

By: Baxter Dmitry, 07/05/2025
ThePeoplesVoice.tv

Robert F. Kennedy's covert Chemtrails Task Force, operating out of the Department of Health and Human Services, just pulled off another high-stakes intervention. According to insiders, the team uncovered and dismantled a classified operation that was preparing to release an aerosolized mRNA bioweapon across the United States.

This wasn't some last-minute scheme. The plot had been in motion for years—carefully war-gamed in a scenario eerily similar to Event 201. The goal? Mass casualties, chaos, and cover-up on July 4. The projected death toll was staggering: 280,000 Americans dead within hours, with countless more to follow in the months and years ahead. The public was never supposed to know the truth. The event would have been blamed on a foreign adversary (likely Iran) triggering global shockwaves and possibly World War III. Thanks to a stream of classified intel from deep inside the system, the Chemtrails Task Force moved in just in time and stopped the operation before it could begin.

Now the question is... who was really behind it and how close did we come to catastrophe?

Earlier this year, we broke the bombshell story: Robert F. Kennedy Jr. had quietly formed a covert Chemtrails Task Force—operating deep within the Department of Health and Human Services. While the mainstream media scrambled to dismiss it as conspiracy theory, and armies of social media shills flooded the zone with denial, we stood by the facts. Then came the moment they couldn't ignore. RFK confirmed it—on national television—during his interview with Dr. Phil and just like that, the narrative collapsed.

The fact-checkers went silent. The trolls retreated to the shadows. Our sources and reporting were vindicated. That was just the beginning. The Task Force has been hard at work, monitoring social media for geo-tagged information about heavy spray zones. Shadowy government departments and private foundations have been infiltrated and now, the results are speaking for themselves.

According to whistleblower Dr. David Martin, July 4th was meant to be the cover for a mass-casualty event unlike anything we've seen before: a coordinated aerial release of an aerosolized bioweapon across major cities in the United States. The death toll? Projected at 280,000 Americans—men, women, and children. Here's the kicker: it was never meant to look like an inside job. The blame, Martin claims, was to be pinned squarely on a foreign adversary. It doesn't take much to guess who the scapegoat was going to be — Iran.

This wasn't just about poisoning the air, water and soil we need for life. It was about global chaos and escalation. About lighting the fuse for a global conflict—World War III—engineered by the same elite interests that profit from destruction, division, and death. Because for them, war isn't tragedy—it's strategy.

So, while the mainstream media keeps you distracted with celebrity scandals and political theater, what have these shady operators really been up to—behind the curtain of silence and state-sanctioned anonymity? The answer is chilling. Your government (using your tax dollars) has been quietly funding research into the very kind of bioweapons we're warning you about. Not just aerosolized mRNA agents... but something even more disturbing. Self-spreading vaccines.

That's right—vaccines engineered to behave like viruses. To replicate. To evolve. To spread from person to person without consent, without control. This isn't speculation. It's not a theory. We have the documents. The grants. The patents. The contracts. They've been planning this for years. Now, they're trying to turn the key.

Those who play God are doing the devil's work and in the case of this plot against the people, that's not exaggeration—it's the cold, brutal truth. Anyone willing to release a bioweapon on innocent civilians isn't just corrupt... They're evil. To them, we're not citizens—we're test subjects. Useless eaters. Collateral damage. However, even the powerful have a weakness and that's exactly how the Chemtrails Task Force stopped the July 4th attack before it could unfold.

Summer has been hijacked—across the United States, the UK, and much of Europe. What should be a season of clear skies and warm light has been obliterated by relentless geoengineering and coordinated spraying operations orchestrated by globalist forces. Just look at Florida—the so-called Sunshine State. Instead of blue skies, there's a milky white haze, thick with aerosol. Summer fog that never burns off and a heavy, suffocating atmosphere that feels anything but natural. Reports are flooding in: headaches, fatigue, respiratory distress—and a mysterious "summer flu" sweeping through communities. Coincidence or fallout?

For those still clinging to the official narrative—here's a question you need to answer: How do you explain the footage? Video after video shows it—clear as day. The difference between ordinary jet condensation trails, which vanish quickly... and something else entirely. Thick, lingering trails sprayed from aircraft at high altitude... slowly spreading, expanding, and eventually forming that all-too-familiar milky white haze that settles on top of us and destroys life as we know it.

These criminals aren't hiding in the shadows anymore—they're operating in plain sight, poisoning our skies with impunity. The Chemtrails Task Force did everything in its power to stop the July 4th bioweapon plot but they didn't do it alone. The breakthrough came from the inside—an Indigo Pilot, part of the secret military unit behind daily aerosol operations, finally spoke out. He confessed he never truly understood the purpose of the missions. They told him it was for the greater good—classified, above his pay grade.

Something didn't add up. So, he dug deeper. Went undercover. Did his own research. What he discovered changed everything. He realized the operations weren't protecting anyone—they were poisoning the public. No amount of money (not even the premium pay for spray flights) could justify continuing. So he walked away.

That's why South Carolina Representative Lee Gilreath is making a bold appeal—directly to the insiders. He's calling on more Indigo Pilots to come forward. To break the silence. To form a critical mass and blow the whistle on this covert campaign of

Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene Introduces Bill to Ban Weather Modification Chemicals in Bold Push Against Geoengineering

By Jim Hoft, 07/05/2025
TheGatewayPundit.com

Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene (R-GA) introduced bold federal legislation on Saturday aimed at outlawing geoengineering practices and banning the injection or release of chemicals into the atmosphere intended to alter the weather, temperature, or sunlight. Her bill makes such acts a felony offense, targeting both private and government efforts to manipulate the climate through artificial means. Rep. Tim Burchett (R-TN) has signed on as a cosponsor.

for championing populist causes ignored by the political establishment, emphasized her concerns over the unknown long-term effects of weather modification on human health, agriculture, and God's natural order. "I want clean air, clean skies, clean rain water, clean groundwater, and sunshine just like God created it!! No person, company, entity, or government should ever be allowed to modify our weather by any means possible!!"

Greene's bill is modeled after Florida's Senate Bill 56, which prohibits all forms of geoengineering and weather modification aimed at altering Florida's atmosphere. SB 56 formally repeals all existing statutes governing weather modification licensing—dating back to 1957—and bans activities that inject, release, or disperse chemicals, compounds, substances, or equipment into the atmosphere with the intent to alter temperature, weather, climate, or sunlight intensity.

Violations are classified as a third-degree felony, punishable by up to five years in prison and finest of up to $100,000. Aircraft operators and controllers face fines up to $5,000. All collected fines will be deposited into the Air Pollution Control Trust Fund to support environmental efforts.

More from the press release issued back in May: Governor Ron DeSantis announced his support for two bills passed by the Florida Legislature aimed at protecting Floridians from unauthorized chemical exposure and atmospheric manipulation. "Today I was in Miami to support SB 700, which bans local governments from unilaterally adding fluoride to public drinking water," said DeSantis. "In addition to this, I also reiterated in Miami that Florida is not a testing ground for geoengineering. We already do not permit this activity, and I will be signing SB 56 to prohibit the practice in our skies. The Free State of Florida means freedom from governments or private actors unilaterally applying chemicals or geoengineering to people or public spaces."

Senate Bill 700, the Florida Farm Bill, includes a provision prohibiting local governments from unilaterally adding fluoride to public drinking water. The legislation follows a November 2024 advisory by Florida Surgeon General Dr. Joseph Ladapo cautioning against community water fluoridation due to potential health risks, particularly for pregnant women and children.

Senate Bill 56 repeals the state's ability to issue permits for geoengineering and weather modification. The bill prohibits the injection, release, or dispersion of chemicals or substances into the atmosphere for the express purpose of altering weather, temperature, climate, or sunlight intensity. Those who violate the law face third-degree felony charges, up to five years in prison, and fines up to $100,000.

The bill includes key enforcement provisions. Beginning October 1, 2025, all publicly owned airports must report the presence of any aircraft equipped with weather modification or geoengineering equipment to the Florida Department of Transportation. Additionally, the Department of Environmental Protection will launch a public reporting portal to identify suspected violations which will launch this summer.

These measures reinforce Florida's commitment to protecting public health, preserving individual choice, and ensuring no government or corporation can unilaterally impose environmental or chemical risks on the public.

The proposed legislation, if passed, would prohibit any person, corporation, or government agency from engaging in weather modification operations — including controversial programs linked to solar radiation management and cloud seeding.

In a post on X, Greene declared, "I am introducing a bill that prohibits the injection, release, or dispersion of chemicals or substances into the atmosphere for the express purpose of altering weather, temperature, climate, or sunlight intensity. It will be a felony offense."

The congresswoman, long known

RFK's Chemtrail Task Force contamination. Because the only way this ends is if the truth gets out.

Across the country, state legislatures are finally taking a stand—introducing bills and resolutions to disrupt the operations behind geoengineering and atmospheric spraying. Here's the catch: State law only goes so far. It doesn't reach the altitudes where these pilots operate—just outside the boundaries of state jurisdiction, but well within the line of sight. Still, the states are refusing to stay silent.

In Florida, officials are encouraging residents to report suspected geoengineering activity. They want evidence—photos, flight patterns, satellite tracking data, even lab results from rainwater or soil samples. The more documentation we gather, the harder it becomes for them to deny what's happening. If you see something... record it. If you can prove it... report it. This fight isn't just in the skies anymore—it's on the record. The elites are now so arrogant, they are longer hiding it. In fact, they're bragging. They now claim that geoengineering (what we've long called chemtrails) is so cheap and effective, they can afford to play God and reshape the entire planet in their own image. Block out the sun. Cool the atmosphere. Trigger a controlled climate collapse... even a mini Ice Age.

If this isn't the moment to wake up, then when is? They're counting on the public reacting just like they did during the COVID playbook—scared, obedient, and unquestioning. We've got news for them. That's never going to happen again. Robert F. Kennedy Jr has vowed to stop this crime and hold the perpetrators to account. It's our job to ensure he sees this promise through to the very end.

Japan's Dr. Murakami: mRNA Jabs Have Caused a Holocaust

By Tracy Beanz & Michelle Edwards
TheHighWire.com 06/24/2025

Since the end of last year, a team of concerned citizens across Japan have come together to request the disclosure of data regarding the experimental and destructive mRNA COVID-19 jabs. Due to their persistence, using data current as of June 11, 2025, a comprehensive database comprising over 18 million vaccinated and unvaccinated citizens has been released, and the results are nothing short of catastrophic. Dr. Yasufumi Murakami, a world-renowned professor at the Tokyo University of Science and Member of Japan's House of Representatives, summed up the revelations, which, by the way, are being ignored by the Big Pharma-controlled mainstream media here in the United States, declaring:

"The more doses you get, the sooner you're likely to die."

The team sharing this damning, yet not surprising, news includes prominent Japanese lawmakers, medical experts, and investigators. Dr. Murakami, who is vice director of the Research Center for RNA Science at Tokyo University of Science, led the analysis. Holding a Doctor of Pharmaceutical Science degree from the University of Tokyo and with over 100 scientific publications, Dr. Murakami highlighted a troubling trend: a correlation between the number of COVID vaccine doses administered and increased mortality rates.

Murakami and his team, known as "The United Citizens for Stopping mRNA Vaccines," have voiced strong opposition to mRNA vaccines, including the self-amplifying mRNA Replicon vaccine MRNA (sa-mRNA) developed by Arcturus Therapeutics, administered in Japan. "The Replicon vaccine is a self-amplifying, gene-engineered (mRNA) vaccine that mankind has never experienced before," stated Dr. Murakami in August 2024.

Since then and presently, despite global reports of vaccine-related harms and dire warnings from experts devoted enough to their patients to speak up, pharmaceutical companies, most government agencies, and the corrupt mainstream media have largely overlooked these concerns. To counter this, with the same steadfast persistence as our very own ICAN and attorney Aaron Siri, volunteers across Japan have been requesting vaccination history data from local governments since 2024. They have amassed a collection of over 18 million cases, revealing startling trends and severe risks through their transparent data analysis.

On June 15, 2025, Dr. Murakami and his team, including a Member of the House of Representatives, Kazuhiro Haraguchi, and the Information Disclosure Request Team, publicized their explosive findings. In addition to the stark finding that increased mRNA jabs led to sooner death, the data showed no significant death spikes among the unvaccinated. However, along with a sooner death, vaccinated individuals also demonstrated mortality peaks, particularly 90 to 120 days post-injection. Graphs revealed a clear trend: higher doses correlated with earlier deaths, with third-dose recipients showing the highest and earliest mortality spike. Dr. Murakami concluded that the vaccine's toxicity accumulates with each dose, driving adverse reactions and fatalities.

Indeed, "The timing is impossible to ignore," said Murakami, contending that the data strongly suggest toxic side effects tied to mRNA vaccination. Incredibly, one analysis of 35 municipalities found 241 deaths within a day of vaccination. Without the coalition's commitment to the truth, these cases may never have been officially attributed to the shots. To address the tragedy unfolding before their eyes in Japan, the mRNA Vaccine Cessation National Coalition launched an initiative to analyze vaccine lot numbers, identifying batches that may be linked to elevated death rates. Organizers explain that their goal is to address the government's lack of transparency in its investigation into vaccine-related harm. They aim to fill this gap and advocate for accountability.

As noted by the citizen-led initiative, the eye-opening findings contrast sharply with historical precedent. The group points out that in 1976, the United States halted the swine flu vaccine following the deaths of 53 individuals. Yet today, despite millions of reported deaths linked to the contaminated mRNA COVID-19 shots, the U.S.

continues to promote boosters, ignoring what critics have called a public health crisis. However, the independent voices in Japan, the coalition asserts, argue that the data points to a deliberate agenda, with some alleging population control motives rooted in pre-planned global strategies, such as Event 201.

The group's website declares: "The so-called Covid pandemic wasn't a surprise. It was a long-anticipated event meticulously rehearsed by the global elite. Their fingerprints are all over the crime scene. mRNA technology wasn't some miracle of modern science rushed into existence. It was quietly developed behind closed doors by DARPA — the Pentagon's shadowy research arm — then handed off to Moderna and Pfizer to slap their corporate logos on it. What the public was told was cutting-edge innovation... was actually a long-prepared weapon disguised as salvation. It wasn't just the science — it was the script. In eerily prophetic simulations like Event 201, key players (Gates, Fauci, and others) rehearsed every detail: the panic, the censorship, the lockdowns. The same tactics. The same lies. Practiced to perfection. Fast forward four years, and the world is waking up to the deception."

Will the U.S. catch up with Japan in its vehement push for the removal of the deadly mRNA jabs? Japan's healthcare system is less beholden to the powerful grip of Big Pharma, prioritizing prevention over profit. According to the group, only 7 percent of Japanese citizens are living with chronic disease, compared to 75 percent in the U.S. In a nation where the curtain has been pulled back after the COVID tyranny, U.S. citizens paying attention see clearly that the goal of the pharmaceutical industry in our country is to keep us unwell. Japan sees it, too. Demanding accountability, its citizen movement calls for the immediate withdrawal of mRNA injections and legal consequences for those responsible.

“Weathering the Agenda: Were Kerrville’s Deadly Storms Geoengineered to Push a $175M Gas Plant?”

By: “M.A. Langford” – Special Investigative Dispatch

Kerrville, TX. July 2025

In the wake of catastrophic storms that have left more than 80 dead and thousands displaced in Kerrville, Texas, new theories are emerging that question the origin of the deadly weather system. While state officials attribute the devastation to an unusually severe supercell, some residents and independent investigators are asking: Was this storm natural—or was it engineered to manipulate public perception?

At the center of the controversy is the recent approval of a $175 million natural gas plant by the Kerrville Public Utility Board (KPUB), just weeks before the storm unleashed its fury. With the region now in recovery and discussions of “critical infrastructure resiliency” dominating the airwaves, critics say the timing is just too perfect.

A Convenient Catastrophe?

The plant in question (a 122-megawatt gas-fired facility) was touted as a solution to Kerrville’s “grid vulnerability” during extreme weather. Approved in March 2025 and greenlit by Governor Abbott’s Texas Energy Fund just days before the storm, the project was originally met with mixed reactions from local environmental groups and residents concerned about pollution and water usage. That changed dramatically after the storm hit.

“We lost our neighbor, our grocery store is under water, and the power was out for days,” said Kerrville resident Monica Alvarez. “Suddenly, people are begging for anything that promises reliability—even if it means a gas plant in their backyard,” which (critics argue) may have been the point.

Radar Anomalies and Unanswered Questions

Meteorologist turned whistleblower Dr. Ian DeWitt has studied radar footage from the storm’s formation and claims red flags. “I’ve analyzed Central Texas weather patterns for 20 years,” DeWitt said in a livestream viewed over 500,000 times. “What we saw in Kerrville was a static cell—it just sat there and dumped baseball-sized hail for hours. That’s not normal behavior without external influence.”

Satellite imagery shared by independent weather trackers allegedly shows electromagnetic interference patterns in the upper atmosphere over Kerrville, similar to those seen in regions with known weather modification testing.

Adding to the intrigue, flight logs pulled from open-source tracking sites show unusual aircraft activity over the Hill Country in the days before the storm. At least two jets registered to private defense contractors flew repeated loops near the area between March 22–24 just as cloud cover began thickening unnaturally. “These weren’t commercial flights,” says aviation analyst Brent Norwood. “They were high-altitude, unmarked, and behaving like surveillance or geoengineering craft.”

A Pattern Emerging?

This isn’t the first time disaster has preceded development. A similar scenario played out in Paradise, California, where wildfires cleared land days before PG&E infrastructure expansion. In Florida, sudden flooding followed the delay of a controversial fracking project, only to have it approved days later.

“Disaster capitalism is real,” says investigative journalist Rina Chen, who’s currently researching weather-based manipulation. “These storms create trauma, and in that trauma window, the public is more pliable—willing to accept solutions they might’ve resisted a week before.”

The Missing FOIA Requests

So far, Freedom of Information Act requests to NOAA, the FAA, and Texas’s Department of Emergency Management have been met with delays or heavily redacted documents.

One request for aircraft emissions data over Kerrville between March 15–25 was returned with “No responsive documents,” despite radar logs showing flights in the air.

Even local emergency managers are asking questions. “We weren’t warned at the level we should’ve been,” said one Kerr County official under condition of anonymity. “There’s chatter about federal involvement, but no one’s talking on the record.”

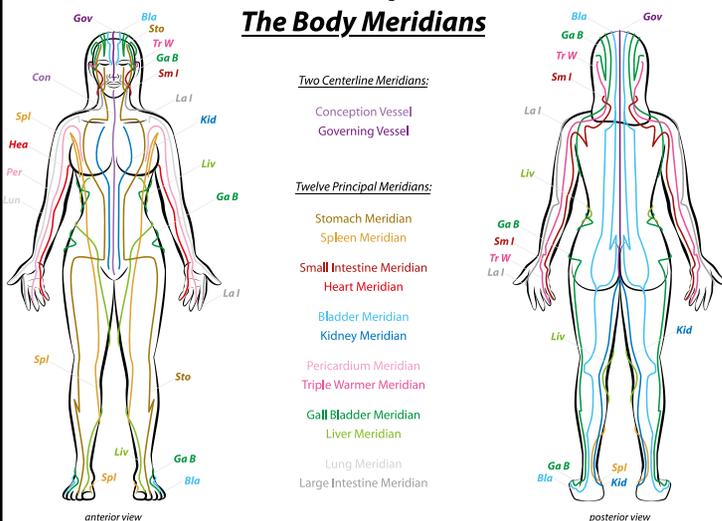

Conclusion: Coincidence or Calculation?

As the death toll rises and FEMA teams comb the wreckage, the official narrative remains one of natural disaster. However, for many in Kerrville, that explanation rings hollow. “People want to believe storms just happen,” Alvarez says. “But when a $175 million project gets fast-tracked right after dozens of people die—well, you start to wonder.”

Whether or not the Kerrville storms were geoengineered may never be proven. But in a world where data is withheld, skies are filled with unmarked jets, and crisis consistently precedes corporate expansion—the line between conspiracy and policy may be thinner than a cloud.

AI Kill and Control System by Palantir

The AI control grid has begun

By: Greg Reese 06/04/2025
GregReese.substack.com

In 2024, Palantir made a deal with Israel “to harness Palantir’s advanced technology in support of war-related missions.” We see part of that technology today as the Lavender AI System, which assigns Palestinians a numerical score of one to a hundred based on how likely they are to be an enemy. It has a 10% error rate, which has been acceptable for Israel and Palantir.

Along with the Lavender System, there is the Habsora AI System, which means, “the Gospel,” which is an AI tool created to address the human issue of running out of targets, Habsora generates up to one hundred targets per day.

Both these AI systems use Palantir’s advanced surveillance technology to track every person’s phone records, social media, and movement patterns. Palantir’s tech is used by the US military and local police departments. It is the premier tool for mass surveillance.

When running for his first term, Trump was saying he would implement a biometric tracking system. “We will finally complete the biometric entry, exit visa tracking system, which we need desperately. It will ensure that this system is in place, and I will tell you it will be on land, it will be on sea, it will be in the air. We will have a proper tracking system. Palantir co-founder, Peter Thiel, donated $1.25 million dollars to that campaign and he donated $15 million to J.D. Vance’s 2022 Ohio Senate campaign.

Palantir has significant ties to the CIA, starting in 2004, when the CIA’s venture capital arm, In-Q-Tel, gave Palantir $2 million dollars. Palantir’s Gotham platform was developed by and for the CIA. Initially, the CIA was Palantir’s sole customer for several years. Palantir is the CIA’s surveillance tool.

Now, Palantir is to create a system for the federal government that will monitor every American under an AI system. Linking Social Security, the IRS, and immigration into one centralized system. It will be using its Gotham software, developed by the CIA, to track and condition human behavior.

Most of yesterday’s alternative media support this. For those who can still think clearly, this is as dystopian as it gets, but there are many fools who are content that the fascist society being put into place will not be woke. Don’t be surprised if it comes with a carbon tax, and an American version of a social credit system, a freedom tax.

Letter to the Editor

Concerning HB 2501:

For at least the past 25 years Arizona Western College has taken more than 4 times what they have spent on La Paz County, In the last tax year, we the taxpayers have paid over 5 million dollars and received back from the college in services, that includes everything from utilities to staff and instructors, less than 1 million dollars.

This has been going on for over 25 years and out of that money the taxpayers of La Paz County built the AWC facilities in La Paz, as well as helped them build numerous facilities and sporting facilities and venues in Yuma. La Paz County has the oldest population and lowest income of all counties in Arizona and AWC Yuma uses those numbers in all the grants they receive, benefiting strictly Yuma. I was an Associate Dean and the Director of College Service for Arizona Western College in La Paz County for several years, and I know what I am talking about.

My question to you is; how can anyone think the facilities in La Paz County belong to anyone but the taxpayers of La Paz County? To be continued....

What Does the World Say?

Trust, or the belief that someone or something can be relied on to do what they say they will, is a key element of social relations and a foundation for cooperation. It is critical for romantic relationships, friendships, interactions between strangers, and social groups on a large scale, and a lack of trust in such scenarios can come with serious consequences. Indeed, society as a whole would likely fail to function in the absence of trust.

What Does the Bible Say?

Proverbs 3:5-7 Trust in the LORD with all your heart And do not lean on your own understanding. [6] In all your ways acknowledge Him, And He will make your paths straight. [7] Do not be wise in your own eyes; Fear the LORD and turn away from evil.

Psalms 37:5 Commit your way to the LORD, Trust also in Him, and He will do it.

Isaiah 26:3-4 “The steadfast of mind You will keep in perfect peace, Because he trusts in You. [4] “Trust in the LORD forever, For in GOD the LORD, we have an everlasting Rock.

Matthew 6:33 But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things will be added to you.

Philippians 4:6-7 Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. [7] And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

Hebrews 11:6 And without faith it is impossible to please Him, for he who comes to God must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of those who seek Him.

John 14:1 “Do not let your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in Me.”
