6G Will Expose Entire Populations to Largely Untested Terahertz Radiation, Enable AI Brain Chips, and Allow Through-Wall Surveillance

by Nicolas Hulscher, MPH, Epidemiologist and Foundation Administrator, McCullough Foundation, mcculloughfind.org 08/01/2026

I joined Finnerty on NEWSMAX to warn that 6G will not simply deliver faster internet—it will dramatically intensify EMF exposure while enabling AI brain chips and advanced surveillance systems.

HHS Secretary Robert F. Kennedy Jr. stated: "If you've got a kid, don't ever let him put a cell phone near his head, and don't let him carry it in one of his pockets. If it's a girl, don't let her carry the cell phone near her breast or anywhere near her ovaries. Also, the farther the cell phone is from your head when you're talking, the better off you are."

While 5G networks operate across frequencies ranging from approximately 0.6 to 48 GHz, 6G networks are expected to extend into terahertz (THz) frequencies. Under laboratory conditions, THz radiation has already been shown in human-derived cells and tissues to induce:

- DNA damage and DNA-damage signaling
- Genomic instability
- Impaired neural stem-cell proliferation
- Disrupted cell-cycle activity
- Altered gene expression
- Mitochondrial dysfunction
- Inflammation
- Apoptosis and cell death

One study found that THz exposure caused DNA damage, impaired proliferation, and apoptosis in human neural stem cells, with stronger effects at higher intensities and longer exposure durations.

The effects vary substantially by frequency, intensity, pulse structure, exposure duration, and tissue type. These studies do not yet prove that real-world 6G exposure will cause widespread disease, but they establish serious biological warning signals that demand rigorous long-term human testing before deployment.

Unfortunately, the multitrillion dollar telecommunications industry is unlikely to adequately test chronic 6G exposure in humans before mass deployment—just as 5G was rolled out without comprehensive human safety studies. Studies have since shown severe biological effects of 5G radiation exposure, including:

- Oxidative Stress – Increased production of reactive oxygen species, which can lead to inflammation and cellular damage.
- Immune System Effects – Potential impacts on immune function, raising concerns about biological responses to long-term exposure.
- Genotoxicity – Evidence of DNA damage in some studies, though findings are not universally consistent.

- Neurological Effects – Some research suggests possible changes in neuronal activity, warranting further investigation.

- Cellular Disruption – Increased cell membrane permeability, which may influence various biological processes, such as cancer, etc.

The concerns extend far beyond health. 6G is being developed to support AI brain chips and surveillance systems capable of detecting human presence, movement, and activity through walls. The CEO of Nokia stated: "I would say that by 2030, the smartphone as we know it today will not be the common interface. Many of these things will be built directly into our bodies." China just approved the world's first commercial brain chip. We have Neuralink coming, and this is going to be pushed heavily on the population and interface with the new 6G infrastructure, probably resulting in very severe deleterious health effects, as well as merging human consciousness with AI.

Letter from the Editor

Leesa Bolden, LAc
TFPP Editor in Chief

There is a real reason for gratitude and optimism in America today: young people are stepping forward with renewed seriousness about faith, family, liberty, and civic responsibility. A recent The New American report from the Young Americans for Liberty convention described nearly 1,000 young activists gathering around an America First, constitutionalist message centered on limited government, sound money, national sovereignty, peace, and opportunity for Americans.

We should welcome this energy. Faith cannot be manufactured by politics, and politics cannot replace faith; yet a generation that seeks moral grounding, personal responsibility, and service to its neighbors brings indispensable strength to public life. Young Republicans are also building practical pathways for engagement by recruiting, training, and encouraging new candidates and grassroots leaders across the country.

Many of these young citizens are not asking for empty slogans. They want leaders who will read the Constitution, defend civil liberties, question costly foreign entanglements, respect taxpayers, and place the well-being of American families at the heart of policy-making. That desire helps explain the enthusiasm many have shown for Rep. Thomas Massie of Kentucky, who has represented Kentucky's Fourth District since 2012 and is widely associated with a constitutionalist, independent-minded approach.

At the YALCON gathering, The New American reported visible support for Massie among attendees, including "Massie 2028" hats, and quoted young participants who saw him as an example of principle-driven representation rather than politics as usual. Whether every reader agrees with every vote or policy position, the larger lesson is encouraging: young Americans are looking for conviction, transparency, and leaders willing to explain their beliefs plainly.

The Republican Party is strongest when it earns trust rather than assumes it. The next generation can help renew it—not through bitterness or personality cults, but through patient organizing, honest debate, local service, and steadfast allegiance to constitutional government.

America First, at its best, means recognizing that the government's first obligation is to protect the rights, safety, livelihoods, and future of the American people. It means rejecting the false choice between loving one's country and treating others with decency. It means pursuing peace without weakness, prosperity without surrendering principle, and freedom anchored in responsibility.

We are thankful for young people who are choosing to learn, pray, organize, vote, and serve. May they carry forward politics worthy of the nation they hope to inherit—and may all of us give them the encouragement, truth, and room to lead.

P.S. To those of you who knew I was running for Quartzsite Town Council: I am deeply grateful to share that I won. Even more encouraging, Ray Barnett and Melody Chatelier were elected as well. Together, we are thankful for the trust placed in us, and we will work diligently to uphold these same ideals—faith, freedom, constitutional government, responsible stewardship, and putting our community and country first.

How to Honor the Dead US Service Members

by Ron Paul,
7/20/2026
ronpaulinstitute.org

Over the weekend the Pentagon announced that four more US soldiers have been killed in President Trump's war on Iran. That brings the total to 17, but many believe the real number of dead US servicemembers is much higher than that. The Pentagon has claimed it has no obligation to reveal how many military personnel have been injured, which suggests that number may be much higher than we are hearing. Many of these injuries will be horrific and life-altering.

Back on April 12th, President Trump told Fox News that Iran, "has no cards. Their navy is gone. Their air force is gone. Totally gone. They have nothing." Yet three months later, US bases in the region continue to be successfully attacked, US military equipment worth billions continues to be destroyed, and US servicemembers continue to be killed and injured.

This war was launched by President Trump without Congressional approval in February because the President believed that Iran, at 6,000 miles away, posed an existential threat to the United States.

At the same time, he believed that the Iranian government was so weak that after a couple of days of bombing the political system would collapse and a "US-friendly" government could be installed in its place.

This makes no sense. How can a country be strong enough to threaten the United States but be so weak it is about to collapse?

Now, five months later, we continue to attack Iran to open a Hormuz Strait that was open before the war and to end a nuclear weapons program that does not exist. And the American middle and working classes are hit with a price tag for this senseless war that could exceed one trillion dollars.

That is why our Constitution requires that war be declared by the US Congress after extensive deliberation. The Framers wanted to safeguard the new country from the whims of a King George or other monarch who could take the country to war at will. The patriots fought for independence from exactly the political system we have in place today because they understood how destructive endless and foolish wars can be to a country.

The Framers also assumed that Members of the Legislative Branch of government would be of sufficiently good character that they would not allow an executive to abuse power in such a way. They were given all the tools they needed to prevent this, but today Congressmembers remain silent, unwilling to perform the duty required by their office. Most would rather not have the burden of declaring war because they are afraid that an unpopular war might hurt their re-election chances.

A recent poll featured in the Washington Post reveals that nearly seven in ten Americans disapprove of President Trump's handling of the Iran war. Along with the economy, the Iran war is the most important issue concerning the American people today.

Over the weekend President Trump announced that "we hit (Iran) very hard again...in honor of the three" servicemembers who were killed in recent days. But hitting Iran again does not honor the dead US servicemembers. It only guarantees that more Americans will follow them. If the President really wants to honor our military, he will declare an end to this pointless war, bring all of our troops home from the region, and announce that the destroyed US bases will not be rebuilt. It is time to end the American empire and come home.

A few months ago, President Trump "I was a leader in 5G, getting that done" signed a directive to accelerate 6G deployment, with a stated goal to operate "implantable technologies." 6G infrastructure is expected to be operational in most major cities by 2030. Sadly, politicians appear to have little understanding of the potential consequences of blanketing entire populations in largely untested terahertz electromagnetic radiation not just with cell phone usage but exposure to the towers.

Dr. Deborah Davis, founder of Environmental Health Trust and the author of Disconnect, a scientist's solutions for safer technology, warns of cell phones near your head and encourages using an "old school alarm clock" by your bed and keeping your cell phone far away from you. She goes on to discuss headphone usage: "Our website ehtrust.org has information that shows you exactly what happens when you take the AirPods out of the cover. They're radiating. When you put them in the brain, the radiation stops going out and goes in." She recommends using air tube headphones. She also encouraged listeners to call or write to Senator Cruz right now and tell him that his bill to streamline spreading 5G and 6G around the country should not go forward.

Blythe Speedway ~ Celebrating the Partners Who Help Drive Our Success

Written by Kati Cusick

Blythe Speedway Gratitude Series – Part 3 Honors The Patriots Free Press and The Prime Leaf: Partners in Community

At Blythe Speedway, we often say that racing brings people together, but the truth is that it takes an entire community to make that happen. Every race night, every improvement to our facility, every family memory created in the grandstands, and every opportunity to welcome new visitors to Blythe is made possible through the generosity and commitment of those who believe in our mission. As we continue our Gratitude Series, we are honored to recognize two extraordinary community partners whose unwavering support has helped us grow both on and off the track: The Patriots Free Press, published by Leesa Bolden in Quartzsite, Arizona, and The Prime Leaf of Blythe, California.

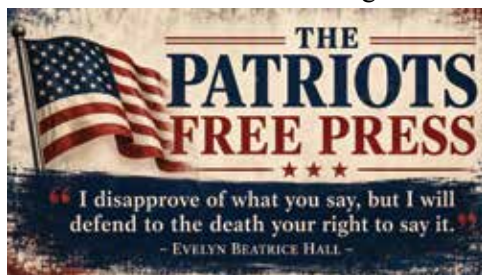

Community is built through connection, and few organizations understand that better than The Patriots Free Press. Under the leadership of Leesa Bolden, the publication has become far more than a monthly newspaper. It has become a trusted source of information, dedicated to bringing readers well-researched stories that matter at the local, state, and federal levels. Its rapidly growing circulation reaches communities throughout the Colorado River region and beyond, including Blythe, Quartzsite, Parker, Lake Havasu, Phoenix, Las Vegas, Huntington Beach, San Diego, and many others.

For Blythe Speedway, The Patriots Free Press has been an incredible advocate. Time and again, they have shared our events, celebrated our accomplishments, and helped introduce new audiences to the exciting family entertainment available right here in our community. Their willingness to highlight the positive impact of local organizations has given us an opportunity to reach families who may have never experienced a night at the races and to remind longtime supporters why community matters. The value of that kind of support cannot be measured simply in newspaper pages or readership. It is measured in the families who decide to spend an evening together at the speedway, the visitors who travel to Blythe and support local businesses, and the renewed sense of pride that comes from seeing positive stories about our community shared throughout the region.

We are deeply grateful to Leesa Bolden and The Patriots Free Press for believing in what we are building and for helping amplify the voices of organizations that work every day to make our communities stronger.

We are equally honored to recognize another remarkable supporter, The Prime Leaf of Blythe.

From the beginning of their partnership with Blythe Speedway, The Prime Leaf has demonstrated what it truly means to invest in the community they call home. Their sponsorship has never been simply about visibility; it has been about supporting an organization that brings people together across generations. They understand that local businesses thrive when communities have opportunities to gather, celebrate, and create lasting memories.

Our mission is for every race weekend to bring people into Blythe who visit restaurants, fuel stations, hotels, and local retailers. Families gather in the grandstands, children meet their favorite drivers, friendships are formed, and neighbors reconnect. The Prime Leaf recognizes that supporting these experiences helps strengthen the entire community, and we are incredibly thankful for their continued partnership and belief in our vision.

Although they serve different industries, The Patriots Free Press and The Prime Leaf share something incredibly important in common. Both understand that thriving communities are built by people and organizations willing to give back. Their support reflects a genuine commitment to seeing Blythe and the surrounding region continue to grow, prosper, and remain connected.

At Blythe Speedway, we never take that commitment for granted. We recognize that our success is not achieved alone. It is built through partnerships with businesses and individuals who believe that investing in local events creates opportunities for economic growth, family entertainment, tourism, and community pride.

To Leesa Bolden and everyone at The Patriots Free Press, thank you for sharing our story and for providing a platform that informs, educates, and inspires communities across the Southwest.

To the entire team at The Prime Leaf, thank you for standing beside Blythe Speedway and helping us continue creating unforgettable experiences for racers, fans, volunteers, and families.

Your generosity, encouragement and unwavering support reminds us that when businesses invest in their communities, everyone benefits. On behalf of the entire Blythe Speedway family, thank you for believing in our mission and for helping us continue building something that reaches far beyond the finish line.

Be sure to save the date for family fun at our next race on September 19th at 5pm. See you there!

Why MKULTRA Matters More Than Ever

By Jefferey Jaxen
thehighwire.com

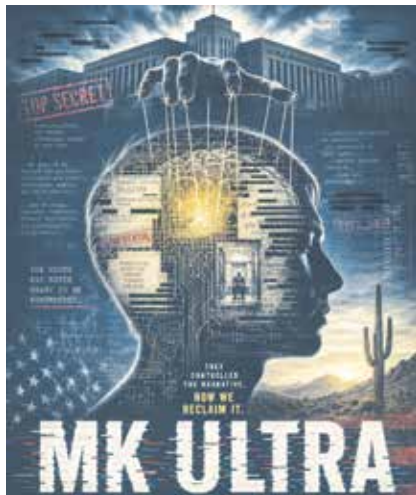

The CIA's MKULTRA program is one of the most secretive research programs that have existed involving mass experimentation on unwitting subjects.

Florida Congresswoman Anna Paulina Luna recently held a House Oversight hearing on MKULTRA Experiments and Its Impact on Public Trust. Its 'impact on public trust' may be the least of our concerns.

Allen W. Dulles authorized the clandestine program in 1953 as Director of Central Intelligence. In a speech delivered the same year at Princeton University's National Alumni Conference, Dulles remarked about understanding alleged Soviet mind-control techniques: "We, in the West, are somewhat handicapped in getting all the details... we have no human guinea pigs, ourselves, on which to try out these extraordinary techniques."

As history shows, a lack of 'human guinea pigs' wasn't going to stop the CIA when the American people would suffice. After at least two decades of unimaginable, inhumane, and unethical human experimentation centering around overarching behavior control, CIA Director Richard Helms ordered the destruction of all files related to the MK-ULTRA program in 1973.

The program was only made public because the CIA failed to destroy a number of financial records, the discovery of which led to a Joint Hearing Before the Select Committee on Intelligence and the Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research of the Committee on Human Resources before the United States Senate in 1977.

What was uncovered wasn't an isolated scandal, it was an operating system. The 1977 Senate Intelligence Committee document shows MKULTRA was divided into 149 sub-projects. The report states: "We are now in the possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with these 149 subprojects. There are also names of 80 institutions where work was done or with which these people were affiliated. The institutions include 44 colleges or universities, 15 research foundations or chemical or pharmaceutical companies or the like, 12 hospitals or clinics, in addition to those associated with the universities, and 3 penal institutions."

The CIA used philanthropic organizations as "cut-outs" for the MULTRA experiments related to the control of human behavior, which were carried out in 89 different institutions, including universities, according to the limited documents shown to the public. The psychological manipulation and behavioral control techniques tested during MKULTRA on the few arguably became streamlined and expanded to a greater portion of the population.

In 2020, the media gleefully boasted that the UK Army's 77th Psychological Operations Brigade was being unleashed upon the public for information warfare. Meanwhile, in 2022, a group of 40 psychologists warned Parliament of "grossly unethical" uses of its "nudge" tactics inflated fear among the public during the Covid pandemic, stating in their letter it was: "Highly questionable whether a civilised society should knowingly increase the emotional discomfort of its citizens as a means of gaining their compliance."

The works and writings of both Psychologist Mattias Desmet (the theory of mass formation as it applies to the COVID-19 pandemic) and Michael Nehls and his book The Indoctrinated Brain go deeper into the far-reaching effects of the behavior modification that was forced upon the public during the pandemic response.

When looking throughout history, the MKULTRA program appears not to be an outlier but a logical extension of the U.S. government's affinity for barbaric medical testing. From the well-known Tuskegee syphilis study (1932-1972) to the Willowbrook hepatitis experiment (1956-1971) where researcher Saul Krugman intentionally infected intellectually disabled children with live strains of Hepatitis in order to develop a vaccine. A pattern emerges along with the infamous 'Godfather of Vaccines', Dr. Stanley Plotkin's early research, where he admits to conducting vaccine experiments on babies born to incarcerated mothers, people with mental illness, and people with disabilities.

Even the genesis of the current human augmentation and transhumanism push was seeded within MKULTRA experiments. 1961 documents from CIA archives of subproject 94 state: "The purpose of this subproject is to provide a continuation of activities in selected species of animals. Miniaturized stimulating electrode implants in specific brain center areas will be utilized."

McGill University was a notorious center for MKULTRA experiments. A research journal chronicling medical discoveries writes: "Just over fifty years ago, psychologists James Olds and Peter Milner, working at McGill University in Canada, carried out their pioneering experiments which discovered that rats would repeatedly press levers to receive tiny jolts of current injected through electrodes implanted deep within their brains..."

Although MKULTRA's chapter has been buried in U.S. history, its tentacles continue to reach to the present. In 2025, Director of National Intelligence Tulsi Gabbard launched the Director's Initiatives Group (DIG), a temporary task force to operate as an independent declassification and oversight unit focusing on highly scrutinized topics and historical events like COVID origins, "Havana Syndrome" incidents, and declassification of records on the assassinations of JFK, RFK, and MLK.

In May 2026, CIA whistleblower James Erdman III testified at a Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee hearing regarding a cover-up of the federal assessment of the origins of the COVID-19 pandemic. During testimony, Erdman stated: "When the DIG ceased operations, the CIA also took back 40 boxes of JFK files and MKULTRA files to be processed for declassification by DNI Gabbard."

What else happened under this secretive program that has yet to be revealed? Will the public ever know the full scope of what happened and how it influenced the trajectory of society to this day? Will greater numbers of people be able to recognize and question the more subtle methods of behavior control now being employed in our daily lives through things like algorithmic behavior modification? Will this mind control be even easier with the roll out of 6G?

More Than 50K Moroccans Surge in Ceuta, Spain, as Social Media Critics Blame U.S., Israel, for Pushing Invasion

By R. Cort Kirkwood, July 31, 2026
TheNewAmerican.com

As many as 60,000 Islamic invaders have surged from Morocco into Ceuta, a Spanish outpost on the North African coast.

Video of the invaders — almost all military-age men, just like the Biden “migrants” who invaded the United States from 2020 through 2024 — shows them attacking homes and breaking into stores as police, and now the army, struggle to control the horde of conquering Muslims. Video also shows the army of North Africans’ attacks on police and civilians alike, which belies the far-left media claim that the invasion is a “migration crisis.”

On social media, observers are speculating that the invasion was encouraged by Israel and the United States. They point to a report from the House Appropriations Committee in April — when Spanish protesters burned Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in effigy — which claimed that Ceuta belongs to Morocco. As well, an X post in 2019 from Netanyahu’s son, Yair, encouraged “Arab and Muslims” to invade Ceuta.

War in the Streets

Ceuta is on the Alboran Sea, the westernmost waters of the Mediterranean, about 18 miles across the Strait of Gibraltar from mainland Spain. As The New American reported yesterday, the invasion began on July 29 and coincided with King Mohammed VII’s pardon of more than 1,500 Moroccan criminals. But not all the invaders are Moroccans. Some come from as far as Bangladesh. And 1,500 doesn’t account for what the New York Times reported today was a siege by at least 60,000 invaders — three to five times the size of a U.S. Army division. Another report put the figure at 80,000.

Almost three dozen of the invaders have died, and some have turned back because they are hungry, the Times reported. As well, the Times continued, the invaders don’t plan to stay in Ceuta. They’re headed for mainland Spain, possibly as part of a move to reconquer the nation, which Isabella I of Castile and Ferdinand II of Aragon freed from Islamic rule in 1492 at the Battle of Granada.

abs and North Africans sexually assaulted 1,200 women. “I’m scared, I’m surrounded and trembling,” a sobbing woman said on camera: “We need help. It’s catastrophic. Today it’s Ceuta, but tomorrow it’ll be the Canary Islands or Tarifa.”

Video showed trucks dumping invaders at the border to cross, outnumbered and overwhelmed cops trying to stop the Muslims from looting stores and entering homes. They invaders are setting ablaze cars and fighting police. The government of Spanish Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez deployed troops and he visited Ceuta.

Residents of the enclave booed him.

Trump Blames Open Borders. Did Israel, Congress Encourage Invasion?

A White House spokesman, the Times observed, blamed Europe’s “far-left, globalist policies, including enabling mass migration.” As well, the Times pointed to an X post from Stephen Miller: “The Democrats did this to America every single day for 4 years under Biden and will do it again instantaneously, but orders of magnitude greater, if they are given any form of national power. Democrats will see your home trampled and stolen by invaders and they will rejoice.”

True enough. The question is whether Israel and its lobby in Congress encouraged the invasion. Spain has repeatedly condemned Israel’s military occupation of Gaza and the West Bank. An effigy of Netanyahu was blown up and burned in Spain on April 5.

“Israel will not remain silent in the face of those who attack us,” Netanyahu said: “Spain has defamed our heroes, the soldiers of the IDF, the soldiers of the most moral army in the world. Therefore,

I have instructed today to remove Spain’s representatives from the coordination center in Kiryat Gat, after Spain has chosen repeatedly to stand against Israel. Those who attack the State of Israel instead of terrorist regimes will not be our partners regarding the future of the region. I am not willing to tolerate this hypocrisy and hostility. I do not intend to allow any country to wage a diplomatic war against us without paying an immediate price.

On April 30, the U.S. House Appropriations Committee’s 2027 bill to fund the State Department recognized Ceuta as Morocco’s: “The Committee notes the historic alliance between the United States and Morocco, as formalized in 1786 by the Moroccan-American Treaty of Peace and Friendship. The Committee notes that the Spanish-administered cities of Ceuta and Melilla are located in Moroccan territory and remain the subject of Morocco’s longstanding claim. The Committee supports efforts by the Secretary of State to encourage diplomatic engagement between Morocco and Spain on the future status of Ceuta and Melilla.”

However, long before that, one top Israeli encouraged Muslims to retake Ceuta and Melilla, another Spanish exclave about 140 miles east of Ceuta along Morocco’s Mediterranean coast. “Dear Arabs and Muslims. Want to free occupied Arab Islamic lands? Here’s a good start!” Netanyahu’s son wrote on X over a map of the region. “Let’s make a deal, we won’t fund NGOs in your country calling you to give away Ceuta and Melilla, and you will stop funding NGOs in our country that calls us to give away Judea and Samaria.”

“I don’t want to live in Morocco, I want to live in Europe,” said Zakaria Lahmer, 23, the Times reported: “Lahmer showed burns on his right leg and said Moroccan police had beaten him when he was trying to leave the country. “I want a job, I want happiness,” he said. He said he was starving but wanted to stay in Spain at all costs.”

The colony’s 83,000 residents are undoubtedly terrified, particularly given what happened to women on New Year’s in 2015-2016 in Germany. Ar-

Islam and Sharia: Inseparable, and Incompatible with Western Christian Civilization

by Mohamad Faridi
iranchristians.org 05/12/2026

Western leaders repeatedly draw a reassuring line: “We uphold freedom of religion, therefore Muslims and Islam are welcome. But Sharia is incompatible with our values and has no place in the West.” President Trump combined warm Ramadan greetings with a firm policy against immigrants who believe Sharia should replace American law. Governor Abbott has defended Muslims’ right to mosques and worship while declaring, “Sharia law is not allowed in Texas.”

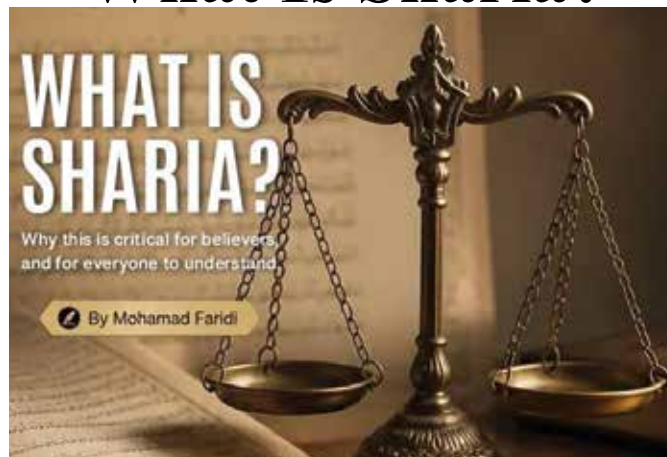

To Western ears, it may sound natural to separate Islam from Sharia. Many people assume Islam is simply a private religion, while Sharia is a separate legal system that only some Muslims choose to follow. But that distinction is wrong. Islam means surrender, but surrender to what? To the will of Allah. How is that surrender done? Sharia is the prescribed way of living that surrender. The confusion comes from viewing Islam through a Western lens, where religion is often treated as a private matter. Islam, however, is a complete system of belief, worship, law, morality, family life, and public order. When policymakers fail to understand that relationship, they can make serious mistakes with consequences.

The Western View of Religion vs. Islamic Reality

In the modern West, shaped by centuries of Christianity, the Reformation, and the Enlightenment, “religion” is often understood as a personal, private matter of conscience. It concerns one’s relationship with God, moral values, and voluntary community practices. Most who are born Christians in the West today treat their faith as a matter of individual belief. One can identify as Christian while living a largely secular life. Church and state are distinct. Faith is protected but does not dictate every detail of civil law. Religious liberty means the right to believe, worship, and even change one’s faith without state coercion.

Islam operates on an entirely different paradigm. The word “Islam” itself means submission or surrender to the will of Allah. A Muslim is “one who has surrendered.” The will of Allah is not primarily a matter of inner spirituality or personal interpretation. It is explicitly and comprehensively revealed in the Quran — regarded as the literal, verbatim words of Allah — and in the Sunnah, the example of Muhammad preserved in Hadith literature.

Sharia simply is the practical embodiment of that surrender. It literally means “the way” or “the path to life,” derived from four main sources:

1. The Quran
2. The Sunnah/Hadith (especially Sahih Bukhari and Sahih Muslim)
3. Consensus of scholars (ijma)
4. Analogical reasoning (qiyas)

Sharia is not limited to prayer, fasting, and charity (the Five Pillars, which are themselves part of Sharia). It is a total system regulating family law, diet, dress code, inheritance, criminal justice (hudud punishments), finance, governance, warfare, and social relations with non-Muslims. In orthodox Islamic theology, there is no separation between “religion” and “law,” or between “private belief” and “public order.” To be Muslim is to accept Islam and its Sharia as the guide for life.

This is why praising Islam while condemning Sharia is incoherent and self-contradictory. It is like welcoming Christianity while rejecting the teachings of Christ and the apostles.

Many politicians and citizens project their own secularized, individualized understanding of faith onto Muslims and are shocked when reality does not conform.

This conceptual mismatch leads to several dangerous mistakes:

1. Misguided Immigration and Integration Policies

Western governments often assume that Muslim immigrants will treat Islam the same way most Europeans or Americans treat Christianity — as a private Sunday (or Friday) affair that can be compartmentalized. When Muslim immigrants instead seek to establish parallel societies, Sharia councils, or enclaves where Islamic norms prevail, officials are surprised. Sharia commands separation, the doctrine of (Al-Wala’ wal-Bara’ — loyalty to Muslims and enmity or hate toward non-Muslims) is not an “extremist” aberration but a mainstream teaching of the Islamic law rooted in the Quran and Hadith.

2. Failure to Defend Constitutional Supremacy

Liberal democracies assume all religious practices must yield to core civil rights: equality under law, freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and equal protection for women and minorities. When Sharia norms clash — on apostasy, honor killing, blasphemy, women’s rights, or inheritance — officials often hesitate, citing “religious freedom.” Yet Sharia is a competing legal and political system. Granting it space through accommodations (Sharia courts in the UK, blasphemy laws, religious arbitration, or no-go areas) effectively imports a rival sovereignty.

3. The Moderate Illusion

Policymakers and many comfort themselves with the existence of peaceful Muslims. These individuals exist, but they are often “Muslim” in a cultural or nominal sense — much like many nominal Christians who ignore core doctrines. True orthodoxy demands adherence to Sharia. Turkish President Erdogan rightly observed that the very concept of “moderate Islam” is a Western invention. Projecting Western fluidity onto a legalistic faith leads to underestimating long-term demographic and cultural disaster.

4. Security and Social Cohesion Blind Spots

Doctrines of jihad, mandated enmity toward non-Muslims, and supremacism are not peripheral. They flow naturally from the comprehensive nature of Sharia. When Western authorities treat Islam as “just another religion,” they downplay patterns of radicalization in mosques, parallel legal systems, honor killings, grooming gangs,

No Peace in the Middle East Until Israel Stops It's Killing Spree

By Rep. John J. Duncan Jr.
ronpaulinstitute.org 07/20/2026

On July 17, NBC News televised portions of a lengthy investigation proving that Israeli military forces had attacked medics at least 116 times in South Lebanon over the last several months. On that same day, Reuters reported that eight people were killed and 20 others were wounded when Israeli planes carried out an air strike against mourners attending a funeral in Gaza.

Most of the military equipment, guns, bullets, planes and tanks used to kill defenseless people over the last several years have been paid for by U.S. taxpayers. According to AI, Israel has killed over 4,200 people in Lebanon and over 1,100 in Gaza since the last so-called ceasefire began last October. Israeli Defense Forces killed at least 72,000 Palestinians in the two years beginning on Oct. 7, 2023 with about one-third being children ages 14 and under. Many were killed by forced starvation or amputations being done without anesthesia or in filthy conditions.

If this genocide had been carried out by any country other than Israel, both parties in Congress would have rushed to pass a resolution of condemnation and would have stopped sending American tax funds to support it. However, silence has been bought and paid for in Congress by the Israel Lobby and members of Congress in gratitude for huge contributions in their favor or fear of contributions against them.

Also, many Christians have remained silent, even though horrified by all the killing and starvation, because the Bible says to bless Israel. But it does not say to bless everything the politicians of Israel do. Almost every American Christian is grateful to live in this Country and sometimes has asked God to bless this Nation either in song or prayer or both. However, you certainly can ask God to bless this Country (or Israel) while still opposing some of what the U.S. Congress (or Israel Knesset) is doing or has done.

Also, some are afraid to criticize Israel for fear of being called anti-Semitic although Palestinians are Semitic, too. And, according to AI, God Himself “frequently and severely criticized Israel for turning away from Him, engaging in idolatry, and mistreating the vulnerable.”

While still a minority, a few million Jews around the world have criticized Netanyahu and/or all the bombing and killing his government has done in Gaza and surrounding countries. Thomas Friedman, the longtime Jewish columnist, wrote last year that “Netanyahu is not our friend” and added: “This Israeli government is behaving in ways that threaten hard-core U.S. interests in the region.” Now, Israel has dragged us into another war in the Middle East to which about 70% of Americans were opposed.

John Mearsheimer, a West Point graduate and longtime highly-respected University of Chicago professor, said this about the unpopular war in Iran: “Israel wants to continue the war. They want us to continue hammering away at Iran, to beat them into submission. And if we can’t beat them into submission, we’ll just destroy them and do what we did in Gaza to Iran.”

Many years ago, David Halberstam wrote in Harper’s Magazine words about Vietnam that I think we should apply to the Middle East today: “I do not think we are winning in any true sense, nor do I see any signs that we are about to win. That is why this is such a sad story to write.” He added: “I do not think our Vietnamese can win their part of the war, nor do I think we can win it for them. I think we will finally end up lowering our sights, encouraging our Vietnamese to talk to their Vietnamese, hoping that somehow they can settle what we cannot.”

No matter how many bombs we drop or how many billions we spend, there will never be peace in the Middle East unless and until we get out of the way and force the people there to talk to each other and work things out themselves. We cannot do it for them.

What is Sharia?

and polling data showing substantial support for Sharia in Muslim communities. The result is repeated policy failures across Europe and growing tensions in the United States.

5. Erosion of Western Christian Heritage

Christian civilization produced the very freedoms the West enjoys: the dignity of a person (imago Dei), equality before God and law, freedom of conscience, and limited government. By treating Islam as a private faith equivalent to Christianity, the West risks undermining the cultural soil that made its liberties possible. In some sense Christianity separates sin from crime like drinking at home can be morally wrong without being legally punishable. But in Sharia religious violations are also legal violations and are punishable.

Key Incompatibilities with the Constitution

Loyalty and Enmity: Quranic verses 60:4 and 3:28 form the scriptural basis for the Islamic doctrine of Love and Hate (Al-Wala’ wal-Bara’). They prescribe a framework of spiritual tribalism and supremacy, dissociation from non-Muslims, and perpetual enmity until conversion, while permitting pragmatic concealment of such attitudes when Muslims are weak.

Inequality: Dhimmi status for Christians and Jews; legal disadvantages for women.

Apostasy and Blasphemy: Severe punishments that negate freedom of conscience and religion. Jihad: Expansion and subjugation framed as religious duty.

Totalism: No realm of life outside Allah’s law as interpreted by Sharia. These are not some medieval relics. They remain embedded in mainstream Islamic sources and continue to shape behavior where Sharia influence is strong.

Conclusion

The West must stop projecting its privatized, post-Christian understanding of religion onto Islam. Sharia is not an optional “radical” accessory — it is the operating system of orthodox Islam. Recognizing this does require clarity: Western Christian law must remain supreme. Religious liberty cannot extend to practices that undermine the constitutional order, equality, or public safety.

True tolerance is not self-destruction. It is the confident defense of a civilization built on Christian-shaped values of dignity, justice, and ordered liberty. Until policymakers grasp the comprehensive nature of Islam and Sharia, immigration, integration, and security policies will continue to produce predictable failures.

The distinction between “Islam” and “Sharia” is a comforting fiction. Reality demands better.

Was the Drone Attack on US LNG Tanker in Egypt a False Flag?

by Larry C. Johnson | Jul 31, 2026
sonar21.com

Short answer... I think so.

On Wednesday July 29, 2026, at roughly 3:20 pm CET, a drone struck the Energos Winter — a Marshall Islands-flagged floating storage and regasification unit (FSRU) owned by US company New Fortress Energy — on its starboard side at Egypt's Mediterranean port of Damietta, in the northern Nile Delta. The fire spread to a nearby Bermuda-flagged LNG carrier, the Gaslog Salem. Both crews were evacuated, the blaze was brought under control, and no injuries were reported. Both vessels were subsequently moved offshore for assessment; the Energos Winter was pulled off the quayside before the fire was fully out.

Egyptian harbor responders got on scene fast from both the land side and with fire and rescue tugs, which several accounts credit with preventing a much larger disaster — a fire spreading to the terminal infrastructure or fully involving either LNG hull would have been catastrophic. Egypt's Petroleum Minister Karim Badawi traveled to the port personally to oversee the response.

CNBC and CNN framed this attack as part of a widening campaign on energy infrastructure, implicitly blaming Iran: Iran, the Houthis, and Iraqi militias have all broadened strikes, with Iraqi Iran-aligned militias launching drones at oil infrastructure in Riyadh and Saudi Arabia's Eastern Province this same week. The Damietta strike was viewed by many in the West as extending that campaign from Gulf oil into Mediterranean gas.

I think the attack at Damietta was an Israeli false flag that was intended to stir tensions between Cairo and Tehran. Iran inadvertently set the stage for such a narrative. Two days prior to the drone attack Iranian state TV ran a segment headlined about revenge against Ukraine, showing a multi-target map of European-energy-linked infrastructure, which included Damietta, marked with a pin, citing its LNG capacity (5.2M tons/yr) as a "gateway for gas exports to Europe" descriptor. Damietta was not the focus of the broadcast and was merely identified as one of several possible targets. Everything beyond that — i.e., that the map amounts to Iran claiming or committing the strike at Damietta — is inference layered on top. The critical point about the framing: the stated enemy was Ukraine, not the US or Egypt.

Many in the West were quick to point the finger of blame at Iran. Yet Egypt's Minister of Information, in an interview with Al Arabiya, denied the Wall Street Journal's claim that the Egyptian government considered Iran responsible for the drone attack on two ships in Damietta port.

Iran's Foreign Minister Aragchi issued a statement insisting that it wasn't Iran and that it was an Israeli false flag operation to try to drag Egypt into an anti Iranian coalition. I think Aragchi is correct.

Give credit to Mossad for monitoring Iranian media and taking advantage of the news broadcast to quickly create an incident that would cast the shadow of blame on Iran by virtue of the news broadcast that had listed Damietta as one of many possible targets for retaliation against Ukraine. It is very easy for an organization like Mossad to mount such a drone attack in two days... Guilt by association?

'Defend Israel or the Homeland': Top US General Issues Stark Warning to Pentagon Brass

Washington has greatly reduced its interceptor missile stocks, jeopardizing its ability to fight China, while prioritizing the protection of Israel

News Desk 08/01/2026
thecradle.co

The highest-ranking US general in Europe informed the Pentagon this week that he does not have enough naval units to protect Israel against potential Iranian missile strikes, according to a report by the Washington Post on August 1.

General Alexis Grynkeiwich, the head of US European Command (EUCOM), notified senior Pentagon officials in writing that without another navy destroyer, he will be forced to choose between defending the US "homeland" and defending Israel. Grynkeiwich's warning comes as US President Donald Trump continues to escalate the war on Iran.

The US Navy has shouldered a significant burden in waging the war, including responsibility for blockading Iranian ports in response to the Islamic Republic's closure of the Strait of Hormuz. US naval destroyers in the eastern Mediterranean have long been part of Israel's defense strategy. They are equipped with radar systems and missile interceptors capable of countering Iranian ballistic missiles and drones.

EUCOM is responsible for protecting Israel from the Mediterranean and deterring any Russian ground incursion into NATO member states. The US Navy has five destroyers deploying from Rota, Spain, with a sixth expected later this year. They face maintenance issues due to lengthy missions.

The US is also experiencing a shortage of missile interceptors, which are costly to manufacture and hard to restock. Pentagon assessments conducted earlier in the war showed that US forces have "shouldered the brunt of defending Israel from Iranian ballistic missiles."

Washington has used more of its defensive weapons, including the Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) and naval interceptors, to defend Israel from Iranian missile and drone attacks than Israel has used of its own interceptor stocks. US inventories of Patriot missiles have now fallen below 1,000 and THAAD inventories to about 250, according to the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS).

Israel has not participated in the war on Iran since Washington and Tehran signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) and ceasefire in mid-June. Trump resumed attacks on Iran three weeks ago. Last week, Israeli Finance Minister Bezalel Smotrich said Israel was content to remain out of the fighting and allow the US and its Gulf allies to fight the war on Tel Aviv's behalf. "Israel has no interest in joining the campaign - the current situation is the best for us," Smotrich said on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu visited the White House last week and lobbied Trump to escalate the war by imposing a land blockade on Iran. According to a CBS News report on Friday, Washington and Tel Aviv are planning to significantly escalate the war of aggression by targeting Iran's vital energy infrastructure.

Fauci's Big Money Awards Chicanery

ronpaulinstitute.org

In February of 2021, it was announced that Anthony Fauci (the United States government's highest paid employee, who was also its number one promoter of the coronavirus scare and associated crackdown) was chosen to receive the big money Dan David Prize associated with the Tel Aviv University in Israel. I wrote then a detailed analysis regarding why there should be concerns about the legality of Fauci being able to receive this third-party granted payment that was admitted to be awarded because of his work as a US government employee at the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

Fauci being able to receive the Dan David Prize, as I explained, was suspect even if there were no evidence showing that the money would not just be landing in Fauci's lap out of the blue. This month, that situation has radically changed due to the release of additional information by Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee Chairman Rand Paul (R-KY) suggesting layer upon layer of chicanery orchestrated by Fauci while he was a US government employee to ensure he would obtain the Dan David Prize as well as other monetary awards from third parties.

A one-page analysis accompanying 135 pages of documents provided by Paul argues that there was much funny business associated with Fauci's receipt of these monetary awards. The analysis states:

1. NIH's number two official personally assisted in ensuring Dr. Fauci received a $900,000 prize. In early 2021, NIH Principal Deputy Director Dr. Lawrence Tabak was tracking at least eight awards for Dr. Fauci at once, telling him his goal was "to support you in the strongest possible way" and mapping out how to get the cash cleared. The largest by far was the $900,000 Dan David Award from a foundation affiliated with Tel Aviv University.

2. NIH's leadership acted as Dr. Fauci's advocates, not neutral gatekeepers. Dr. Tabak and NIH's ethics lawyers argued Dr. Fauci's case up two levels, to HHS counsel and the independent Office of Government Ethics for getting the prize money approved, even drafting an escalation to the HHS Chief of Staff that leaned on Fauci's "visibility." When NIH ethics officers told Dr. Tabak that Dr. Fauci could not accept an award, Dr. Tabak told NIH Director Dr. Francis Collins, "We went all out, and failed." An NIH ethics official, Holli Jaffe, offered to "take the bullet" and break the news to Fauci, and noted the ethics counsel had been given "very specific orders" she felt she couldn't deviate from.

3. Dr. Fauci told the foundation he would accept the prize before the ethics review was finished. On January 30, 2021, more than two months before he was given the green light from counsel, he wrote, "I told them (the Dan David Foundation) that I will accept the award," citing a 2011 prior review and an assurance from "the Israeli person" that nothing had changed. Dr. Fauci's ethics compliance on this appears to be a case of asking for forgiveness rather than permission.

4. Dr. Fauci asked his accountant how his prize would affect his taxes. In a March 2021 letter to his personal accountant, Dr. Fauci wrote that he would receive the Dan David Prize from Israel in May of that year, asking, "do we need to figure this in my estimated taxes for 2021?" By that point, he had already told the foundation he would accept the money and was planning how to keep it.

5. Dr. Fauci authored his own award nominations and had other scientists sign them. Dr. Fauci supplied the material and colleagues submitted it under their names. Recruiting Duke University's Dr. Barton Haynes in 2018, Dr. Fauci wrote, "As usual, I will supply all of the material." His office ran a similar operation for the 2022 John J. Carty Award for the Advancement of Science, with NIAID staff working to line up outside scientists to nominate him and Dr. Fauci's own deputy suggesting names, and for the 2020 Dan David nomination, which his chief of staff, Dr. Greg Folkers, drafted and Dr. Fauci himself helped write.

6. The nominations were traded among elite scientists, with major cash prizes on both ends. Dr. Fauci nominated others for the same prize he later won, telling Dr. Haynes, "I nominated Zeke Emanuel... last year and he won." The favors came back around: after Dr. Charles Dinarello nominated Dr. Fauci for the $900,000 Dan David Award, Dr. Dinarello asked Dr. Fauci to nominate him for the Shaw Prize, another seven-figure award, and Dr. Fauci agreed. The records raise the obvious question of a quid-pro-quo given the large amount of prize money at hand.

7. Staff treated the prize payout as a team win, and Fauci wasn't the only one hoping to collect. When the approval came through, Fauci's assistant wrote, "Congratulations... you're rich!" and his chief of staff, Dr. Greg Folkers, said, "I want my 15%." The prize money was wired that May, with his personal passport and banking details provided by NIH staff on government email. In the same round, NIH National Cancer Institute's Dr. Steven Rosenberg also won a Dan David Prize, meaning two of NIH's most prominent figures each pocketed roughly $900,000 from the same foreign institution in the same year. With the new evidence and related allegations in hand, now seems like a good time for the US government to carry out an extensive review concerning all the third-party awards Fauci received, as well as concerning how widely corruption related to third-party awards has extended at NIH.

Anthony Fauci, the media, governments, and health officials led the greatest fear and manipulation campaign of all time. They coerced people into taking an experimental gene therapy with no long-term data that made pharmaceutical companies billions of dollars and held zero liability for anything that happened after that.

I couldn't even leave my own country because I wasn't allowed on a train or a plane at one point. People lost their jobs, their businesses, their

Here's what we know now: there is a ton of data in published medical journals on the negative side effects of it: cancer rates, immune suppression, paralyzation, autoimmune disorders, cardiovascular issues, menstrual disruptions, deaths, and we now have the data on lockdowns and school closures and masks and social distancing. They didn't work the way we were told, and in many cases, they made things worse.

We were also told that if you got the shots, you couldn't get it or transmit it. So not only was that not true, but pharmaceutical companies testified in front of Congress that they knew this from the beginning and chose not to tell us about it. And now Dr. Fauci, who led this entire campaign and shut down any debate of the science, got a pardon from Joe Biden and is now

Türkiye Pushing for ‘Post-War Role’ in South Lebanon

Lebanon’s president met with Erdogan recently and called for ‘more ambitious’ ties between Ankara and Beirut

News Desk, 08/02/2026
thecradle.co

Türkiye is looking to play a part in “post-war” security arrangements in south Lebanon upon the upcoming expiry of UNIFIL’s mandate in the occupied and war-torn Levantine nation, according to analysts cited by The New Arab on 2 August. This report comes days after Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan indicated as much in a meeting with his Lebanese counterpart Joseph Aoun.

The New Arab article said a Turkish role would be rejected by Tel Aviv. It claimed there has been “growing friction” between Ankara and Tel Aviv over Gaza and Syria, as well as offshore gas reserves in the eastern Mediterranean, adding that this would “cast doubt on any future Turkish role in southern Lebanon.”

Turkish foreign policy and security analyst Sinan Ulgen spoke with the outlet and said Israel was likely to “obstruct” a Turkish role in post-UNIFIL Lebanon. “It is indeed likely that Israel would veto such a role for Ankara. Yet this stance would complicate Israel’s position in the sense that it will then need to spend a sizable diplomatic capital to sideline Türkiye from this potential security arrangement,” Ulgen said.

Reports from earlier this year and the year before had also touched on Israeli frustration with Turkish ambitions to participate in post-war Gaza efforts. According to Ulgen, “Israel would need to demonstrate flexibility in other areas related to the different components” of the so-called security arrangements which are in the works for Lebanon as a result of the unconstitutional, US-brokered deal between Tel Aviv and Beirut. “It is unclear to what extent the current US Administration will actually promote Türkiye’s role,” he added.

Days earlier, Aoun and Erdogan met in the Turkish capital. “Türkiye wants to take part in all initiatives that will be launched to support security in the region and ensure Lebanon’s sovereignty” after the end of the UNIFIL mandate, Erdogan said during a press conference with Aoun on Thursday. He said the expiry of the UNIFIL mandate “will constitute an important development.”

During the conference, Lebanon’s president said he wanted to see Beirut’s relationship with Ankara become more “more present and more ambitious” at a “crucial moment in which we are restoring our region and reshaping its future.” Aoun’s government has signed an illegal deal with Israel allowing Tel Aviv’s forces to expand and prolong their occupation in Lebanon.

This has been openly described by Lebanese and US officials as a bid to sever the link between Lebanon and Iran – which is demanding a comprehensive ceasefire and full Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon.

Recent reports have said Iran is looking to form a Lebanon deconfliction mechanism to replace the 2024 US-backed mechanism including the US, Israel, and France, as well as UNIFIL – which has been repeatedly attacked by Israeli forces. This mechanism would include the Islamic Republic itself, sideline Israel, and potentially include other regional countries.

know about these studies. They don’t know Fauci is testifying right now, and if they do, their egos will never let them change their mind and apologize.

So the question is, what do we do about it? Well, here’s what successful people are doing. They’re accepting that anyone with a flying chance of waking up already has, and that most of society is asleep, and probably always will be. So we’re wishing them the best, and we’re getting as far away from them as possible, and we’re letting it remind us of who our real friends and family are, and then realizing that we live in times so abundant that we can live and work from basically anywhere. So we’re going where the most freedom is.

That’s what my network is doing.

UNIFIL’s role in Lebanon will end in late December 2026, following the one-year extension of its mandate for a final time in 2025. Turkish foreign policy has affected Lebanon significantly in the past. Throughout the 14-year war on Syria, Ankara-backed extremist groups occupied Lebanese territory and carried out deadly bombings against the country’s civilians.

Türkiye also heavily backs the new, extremist-led Syrian army – which are considerably hostile to Hezbollah and the Shia community in Lebanon. The report comes as Ankara has been seeking a general expansion of influence in Lebanon over the past several months.

Türkiye is actively moving forward with these plans, according to exclusive reporting by The Cradle last year. These plans aim to give Ankara a “governing” role in the northern regions and significant influence in the northern port city of Tripoli – under the model of Ankara’s expansionist policies in Syria.

‘Don’t Flock Me’: Thomas Massie Targets Federal Cash for Cities That Install Invasive AI Surveillance Cameras

www.naturalnews.com

Representative Thomas Massie of Kentucky is preparing legislation that would strip federal funding from any municipality or police department that deploys Flock surveillance cameras. These automated license plate readers photograph, log and network every passing vehicle into a searchable national database used by thousands of law enforcement agencies. His announcement, which included a Gadsden flag parody of a coiled rattlesnake wrapped around an ALPR pole with the words “don’t flock me,” marks the third Republican attack on the company in a single week and represents the most direct legislative assault yet on the fast-growing surveillance network that has mobilized and spied on roughly 6,000 communities across the country. The bill does not seek to regulate or litigate the cameras. It aims to strangle their business model by cutting off the federal money that flows to the local governments that buy them.

The company that photographs your car and shares it with 4,000 agencies Flock Safety, founded in Atlanta in 2017, has built the largest dragnet surveillance network in American history. Its cameras sit on poles, traffic lights and building corners in quiet suburbs, small towns and major cities. They do not just read license plates. They capture what the company calls a “vehicle fingerprint” that includes make, model, color, visible damage, roof racks and even bumper stickers. Every data point enters a searchable national network that local police, sheriff’s departments and state agencies query hundreds of thousands of times per month. The company now has more than 100,000 cameras installed nationwide.

Security researcher Benn Jordan found dozens of Flock cameras streaming publicly in June of this year. He documented AI features that zoom in on and follow individual people. He showed that plotting stored data amounts to putting a month-long GPS tracker on a car. Flock’s response has been that the system captures discrete points in time rather than tracking anyone. But those points, plotted on a map, reconstruct movements with precision.

Audit logs reviewed by journalists and officials reveal a darker pattern. Local police have run searches on behalf of federal agencies with reasons entered as “ICE” or “immigration.” Roughly 4,000 immigration-related lookups passed through a system whose vendor publishes a blog titled “Does Flock Share Data With ICE? No.” The ACLU’s assessment of that post was that the company knew ICE had indirect access the whole time. In this way, the surveillance system is used in a racist way, profiling individuals who are suspected of being “illegal” or foreigner, and it even goes after those who resist or speak out. To make matters worse, the same system used to hunt down illegal aliens for Republicans’ political benefit will eventually be used to hunt down liberty-loving Americans under a totalitarian Democratic regime.

Let’s take a look at some of the real life examples of abuse with Flock.

- Most recently, a Texas police department used the network to search across state lines including Washington state for a woman who had an abortion.
- In another case, a San Francisco class action alleges that out-of-state and federal agencies including ICE, CBP, FBI and ATF queried the city’s cameras more than 1.6 million times in seven months.
- Then there was a Dayton audit that turned up 7,000 immigration searches by outside agencies.

- Also, there was an Illinois audit that stripped access from 47 agencies.
- Moreover, small towns discovered the ATF, the Air Force and the GSA Inspector General rummaging through their feeds.

The system also misfires with dangerous consequences. Automotive journalist Joel Feder and his wife were boxed in by Minnesota officers with hands on their weapons and patted down in a parking lot after Flock’s system flagged a press vehicle’s manufacturer plate off a flawed partial match. Flock’s response was that the cameras performed as designed.

How Massie’s bill could actually work What makes Massie’s approach different from previous attempts to rein in Flock is both its simplicity and its ruthlessness. This legislative proposal should be assessed through four strategies: whether it targets the right mechanism, whether it accounts for incentives, whether it anticipates the opposition and whether it creates a path to implementation that the other side cannot easily block.

First, the mechanism. Massie is not trying to ban cameras outright or require warrants for their use. He is cutting off the money. Flock’s business model runs on local government contracts. Cities sign up, pay roughly $50 per household per year and get cameras that federal agencies then access without paying. By threatening federal grant money that flows to those same cities, Massie creates a direct financial disincentive. A city that takes Flock cameras eventually risks losing far more than it pays for the system. This targets the customer base rather than the vendor, which is harder for the company to fight because it cannot sue its own clients.

Second, incentives. Local politicians and police chiefs adopt Flock cameras for reasons that include genuine crime-solving, but they also implement them for grant money and the appearance of action. Massie’s bill flips that. Suddenly the calculus shifts from “get free cameras with federal money” to “lose federal money because of free cameras.” The company’s claim that it helps solve 700,000 crimes a year becomes irrelevant if the cost of participation is measured in millions of dollars of lost federal aid.

Third, the opposition. The coalition against Flock is already unusual. The left objects to ICE access to local cameras. The right objects to warrantless dragnet tracking of every driver. The Associated Press has noted that this is one of the few issues on which a divided country has found common ground. The Rutherford Institute’s John and Natasha Whitehead wrote that the danger is not the camera but the AI layer that turns a photograph of a car into the building blocks of a suspect society, an “electronic concentration camp” assembled one pole at a time. Massie’s bill appeals to both sides because it does not pick a cultural fight. It picks a fight against a federal government with too much power.

Fourth, implementation. This is where the bill may stall. Federal grant streams are numerous and overlapping. The bill must specify which grants are cut, how “surveilling law-abiding citizens” is defined and whether any Flock deployment triggers the penalty or only warrantless dragnet use. House leadership must give it floor time. Previous attempts from Perry, Burchett and the Massie-Boebert team have not advanced. Perry’s amendment died in committee. Neither the Burchett bill nor the Massie-Boebert bill has moved. The text is expected in the coming weeks. Until then, this is one issue that should rally all Americans, regardless of political beliefs, to fight against big government, big tech, and mass surveillance.

WhistleBlower News ~ The Evasive Truth About Data Centers

By Justin Reed, Columnist
TFPnews.com

The rapid expansion and secrecy of data centers across the US has been raising concerns across the board.

Why is 'global warming' suddenly irrelevant and the astronomical heat generation of data centers a 'non issue'?

How are they allowed to forcibly override the will of residents and build out their facilities without regard for the rights of the original landowners?

Why are the governmental agencies — including county, city and town entities, allowing them to move forward with virtually no research, in spite of the detrimental effects known to exist?

Why are they able to compete with everyone including farmers for land use, water rights and environmental protection issues without regard for the pollution — air, water and noise — now being reported everywhere they've been installed?

Most of the narratives make no sense under even cursory investigation. Artificial Intelligence (AI)—does not account for the massive scale, environmental impact, and secretive nature of these projects.

The US has over 5,500 data centers, significantly more than other developed nations, including China — a country with over a billion residents that has been known for massive surveillance over the last decade.

While all other countries hover at roughly 500 data centers each, the US has over 5,000 with plans to expand to over 11,000 in the immediate future — again, with no real explanation as to why.

Many projects move forward under strict non-disclosure agreements (NDAs) that keep local communities in the dark until construction begins even in spite of the massive environmental 'footprint' and extensive problems known to accompany their implementation.

Resource Consumption: These facilities

consume massive amounts of electricity and water, often straining local utility grids and exacerbating drought conditions for surrounding residents, businesses and farmers. Farmers report that they see ZERO live births in their livestock following the installation of a data center.

Environmental Impact: The noise pollution, the use of jet engine-like generators that produce detrimental emissions including the contamination of water and aquifer are widely known yet ignored by those pushing for more and ever expanding installations.

To further confound critics, there is a Space-Based initiative under development that includes controversial plans for "space mirrors" and massive satellite constellations that we are told is intended to power these data centers, which could disrupt the natural night sky and circadian rhythms. In short: they intend to put tens of thousands of 'mirrored satellites' into the night sky that will allow for 'them' to light any and all data center facilities with light reflected from the sun, making it possible for them to obtain 'daylight on demand' at any time — including the ability to use solar lighting to power the data centers.

Ultimately, few believe Americans are being told anything remotely resembling the 'truth' of the fast and unrelenting installation of data centers nationwide.

Instead, theories include:

1. Resource stockpiling: Funneling water/power for potential future cataclysms.

2. Underground facilities: Using the data centers as a front for deeper infrastructure projects.

3. Scientific/Experimental: Connections between the "Project Stargate" name and potential advanced physics or "parallel universe" experiments.

Through thermal drone footage and investigative reporting, the concerns now being highlighted regard not just the secrecy, pollution, but the weakening — if not complete eradication — of regulations designed to protect society from any power utilizing such incredibly overreaching techniques to allow any agenda to move forward.

One case en pointe is the "Stargate" Data Center, located in rural Texas. It's being touted as one of the world's largest AI data centers under construction.

It covers 4 million square feet and is projected to consume massive amounts of electricity (1.7 gigawatts) and water, while emitting incredibly significant greenhouse gases annually. Again, this is just one of the thousands now being planned and built in the US.

Despite corporate promises regarding sustainability, most of these facilities are powered by on-site, custom-built natural gas power plants and diesel generators, often bypassing the public electrical grid. They rely on the same fossil fuels that drive everything 'power' related.

Citizens are being prevented from having a voice in the installation and implementation of these centers, in spite of the well know and, in most cases, grievous ramifications of exposure.

Residents living near these facilities, such as those in Abilene, Texas, and South Haven, Mississippi, report being 'left in the dark' due to non-disclosure agreements, the lack of public meetings or open discourse including proper notification regarding the construction of major pollution sources happening — quite literally — in their backyards.

Further, virtually nothing is being said pertaining to the decimation of property values and, for many American families, their real estate is a large part of their financial portfolio.

Anything that negatively impacts the

If you LOVE this paper become a distributor in your area. Text or Call Cheryl (928) 575-0310 value of their real estate negatively impacts financial position including the ability to borrow against that value.

Once a data center is established in a specific region, all of the real estate values are affected.

While further investigation reveals that some data centers use "permit by rule" authorizations, which allow them to operate with minimal public input or environmental oversight, critics argue that environmental agencies are simply struggling to keep pace with the industry's rapid growth — an excuse citizens are no longer willing to tolerate.

There is a human as well as an environmental cost to the data center debacle.

Thermal imaging is used to reveal the "invisible" heat signatures and pollution being emitted by turbine stacks. Experts warn these emissions carry health risks, including respiratory and cardiovascular issues, for neighboring communities. Residents report grave effects on their ability to sleep — something that has immediate as well as long term health ramifications.

Add to all of this the well known and widely reported increases in utility bills — particularly electric bills — and the picture becomes increasingly dark. Not only are reports of electric bills doubling in the wake of data center installation, the data center builders and operators are given significantly discounted rates which are, of course, offset by those same increases previously discussed.

At present, there are few resources available to residents attempting to fight back against the installation of data centers but that is rapidly changing as greater numbers of citizens become aware of the far reaching implications of such an installation.

Mad King Moment: Alex Jones Calls for Trump's Removal

Alex Jones, one of Donald Trump's most prominent MAGA allies, is now calling for the president's removal from office, warning that Trump has become a threat to the country, the Constitution, and global stability. In a livestream on X, Jones urged Vice President JD Vance and the Cabinet to invoke the 25th Amendment or pursue impeachment "to get control of our country." He likened Trump to "Mad King George III," blasting the president's nuclear threats against Iran and accusing him of being "brainwashed" by neoconservatives and Israel into advancing a "Greater Israel" war agenda.

Jones pointed to the Selective Service System's work on draft mobilization simulations and Congress's move to automatic draft registration in the 2026 NDAA as evidence that a major ground war and potential conscription are being prepared. He warned that a wider Iran conflict, coupled with expanding AI-driven surveillance and a de facto merger of U.S. and Israeli military operations, could be used to censor dissent, centralize power, and "nationalize everything."

Jones is not alone. Former Trump defender Marjorie Taylor Greene has also called for invoking the 25th Amendment after Trump threatened to annihilate "a whole civilization," describing his rhetoric as "evil and madness." There is rising concern among medical experts and journalists over Trump's age, rambling speeches, and apparent fatigue, despite official claims that he remains in "excellent health."

Senate Draws Line on Maxwell Clemency

The U.S. Senate has unanimously adopted a non-binding resolution urging President Donald Trump not to grant any form of clemency to convicted sex trafficker Ghislaine Maxwell. Brought to the floor by Senator Jacky Rosen (D-Nev.), the measure passed by unanimous consent, formally declaring that a pardon or sentence reduction would be "inconsistent with the interests of justice and accountability."

Rosen said it was "horrifying" that the White House even entertained clemency, citing reports that Trump's counsel considered a deal in which Maxwell would praise Trump and clear both him and Bill Clinton of Epstein-related wrongdoing. The move comes amid scrutiny of Acting Attorney General Todd Blanche, who personally interviewed Maxwell in 2025 before she was transferred to a more comfortable prison camp, and as Trump's DOJ continues to limit disclosure of Epstein files in which Trump's name reportedly appears tens of thousands of times.

Oil Questions: Trump Says Venezuela Paid the Bill

President Donald Trump says the United States has made "more than" $13 billion selling Venezuelan oil — enough, he boasts, to pay for the U.S. military operation that ousted Nicolás Maduro "many times over" and help "run the country." Asked aboard Air Force One where the money goes, Trump replied that it funds government operations and "can go to the military," even though Congress has never authorized using Venezuelan revenues to reimburse the raid or the Pentagon.

Trump's own executive order defines the proceeds as Venezuela's sovereign property held by Washington in a custodial capacity, raising sharp legal and constitutional questions about treating the funds as de facto U.S. war receipts. While officials say KPMG and Citibank audit the program, the administration has not released a full public ledger, leaving billions in oil revenue unaccounted for and fueling concern that the accounts function as an opaque, off-the-books slush fund.

Trump's New Tool: Corporate Pardons Rewrite White-Collar Justice

President Donald Trump has quietly opened a new clemency frontier, issuing pardons and commutations that wipe away criminal penalties not only for executives, but for the corporations themselves. Since his return to the White House, Trump has granted clemency to nine companies, erasing nearly $200 million in fines, restitution, and other sanctions — money that in many cases was earmarked for victims.

Recipients include crypto giant HDR Global Trading, parent of BitMEX, which escaped a $100 million anti-money laundering fine the same week it came due, as well as Ozy Media, whose fraud convictions and multimillion-dollar restitution obligations were effectively nullified. Trump has also pardoned diesel shops and other firms tied to Clean Air Act violations, along with high-profile figures convicted of securities fraud, insider trading, and financial crimes.

These moves coincide with a broader pullback from white-collar enforcement and a clemency system now dominated by political allies and private intermediaries: a Reuters review found 96 percent of Trump's second-term clemency grants bypassed traditional Justice Department guidelines.

Europe Draws the Line: World Cup "Not for Sale"

European football's governing body, UEFA, has unanimously vowed to boycott all FIFA competitions if a controversial plan to privatize the World Cup goes ahead. FIFA President Gianni Infantino is pushing a $20 billion scheme to spin off commercial rights into a new entity, FIFA Forward Enterprise, and sell up to a 20 percent stake to private investors led by Joshua Kushner's Thrive Eternal fund.

UEFA's 55 national associations say the World Cup is a shared sporting legacy, "not FIFA's to sell," and accuse Infantino of secretly advancing the proposal and presenting it as an ultimatum. The group warns that once investors hold stakes, decisions on scheduling, formats, and the game's future will prioritize shareholder returns over football.

Kushner's involvement has added political heat, given his family ties to President Donald Trump and an existing complaint against Infantino for breaching FIFA's political neutrality rules through his public support for Trump.

Ukraine's War Edges Toward Wider Conflict

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky is warning that Russia's war is increasingly backed by an emerging axis of North Korea, Iran, and China, and that their support risks fusing the Ukraine and Iran wars into a single, wider conflict. In a Sky News interview, Zelensky claimed Pyongyang plans to send 30,000 additional troops to fight for Russia, while Iran supplies missiles and drones and China helps Moscow with satellite and targeting technology to improve the precision of its strikes.

His remarks came after Ukraine used long-range weapons to hit an Iranian vessel and a warship in the Caspian Sea, saying the ships were involved in sanctioned military cargo shipments between Iran and Russia. Tehran insists the targeted vessel was a commercial ship and has vowed the attack “cannot go unanswered,” accusing Kyiv of acting at Israel’s behest and violating the UN Charter.

Iranian officials compared Zelensky’s behavior to anarchists whose actions helped trigger World War I, while analyst Trita Parsi warned that Kyiv appears to be trying to merge the Ukraine and Iran wars so that “America will be a belligerent in the Ukraine war.”

Congress Moves to Embed Israeli Tech in U.S. War Machine

The U.S. House has narrowly passed a $1.15 trillion defense bill that would permanently fuse American and Israeli military technology and parts of the defense supply chain, raising sharp sovereignty concerns. The measure, approved 216–212, keeps Section 219 — the United States–Israel Defense Technology Cooperation Initiative — which tasks a Pentagon “executive agent” with building long-term industrial partnerships, joint R&D, testing, and information-sharing with Israeli firms.

Critics warn this would effectively embed Israeli companies inside the U.S. defense industrial base, making future disentanglement from foreign wars far harder and weakening Congress’s leverage over America’s own war-making capacity. They note the push comes as Washington is already fighting an unauthorized war against Iran and moving toward automatic draft registration in the existing NDAA framework.

In the Senate, a parallel provision (Section 1217) has helped stall the bill: a July procedural vote to advance the NDAA failed 50–46 amid opposition to deeper U.S.–Israel systems integration. Anti-war and civil-liberties groups are now urging senators to strip the Israel language before any final bill reaches President Trump.

Israel’s $700 Million Influence Blitz Targets U.S. Opinion

Israel is bankrolling a vast propaganda campaign to reverse collapsing American support for its wars in Gaza and Iran, pouring more than $700 million into AI-driven messaging, conservative media, and paid influencers in 2026. The Wall Street Journal reports tens of millions are going to former Trump campaign manager and registered Israeli foreign agent Brad Parscale under a $45 million contract to run digital operations, mass texting, and narrative “integration” across Salem Media’s Christian networks.

AI-written texts from “Friends for Peace” have flooded U.S. phones, while another group, Show Faith by Works, pitched a $3 million geofencing effort in megachurches and Christian colleges that explicitly linked Palestinians with “extremist factions.” Parscale’s teams also build pro-Israel sites intended to steer AI chatbots toward favorable narratives and report Americans’ concerns back to the Israeli government.

Ret. Gen. Flynn Warns Against “Complete Annihilation” Talk on Iran

urging President Donald Trump to ignore media calls for a total war on Iran after New York radio host Sid Rosenberg went on Fox & Friends to demand a “massive all-out attack” ending only in Iran’s “complete annihilation.” Rosenberg, who has never served in the military, argued U.S. troops “signed up” to die overseas and should be prepared to “rid the world of evil animals like the Iranian regime.”

Flynn responded on X that Rosenberg has “no idea” what an all-out war against Iran and its nuclear-armed partners Russia, China, Pakistan, and North Korea would entail, warning such rhetoric is “very dangerous talk.” He reminded Trump that most Americans, including his base, “want nothing to do with fighting a war of someone else’s choosing” and urged him to “fight for peace” instead.

Wisconsin “CRAZ” Blockade Follows Police Shooting

Protesters affiliated with Black Lives Matter and Antifa have seized two blocks of Madison’s trendy Williamson Street, declaring a “Corey Ruiz Autonomous Zone” (CRAZ) near the site where police fatally shot Ruiz on July 22. Officers say the 38-year-old homeless felon resisted arrest, injured an officer with a knife, and was then shot in the street, sparking days of demonstrations and demands for accountability.

Barricades now block access for residents and businesses, with the area described by locals as a “lawless zone and homeless encampment” cluttered with trash and graffiti. City officials have drawn criticism for providing portable restrooms and other support to the encampment even as the state homicide investigation into the shooting continues.

Cities Push Back on Flock’s Epstein-Linked Surveillance

Across the country, residents are vandalizing and demanding removal of Flock Safety’s license-plate cameras as concern grows over their role in building a nationwide mass-surveillance grid. The system stitches together tens of thousands of cameras into a searchable network that can track vehicles — and, in practice, people — far beyond local jurisdictions, with documented misuse by officers for stalking and immigration sweeps.

Critics also point to funding ties that run through Jeffrey Epstein’s investments into Peter Thiel-linked ventures, raising deeper questions about who ultimately benefits from this data dragnet. Watch the viral footage of Flock cameras being destroyed at TFPnews.com.

New Jersey Noncitizen Voter Blunder Draws Federal Scrutiny

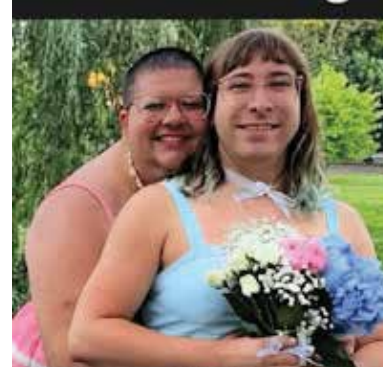

New Jersey Governor Mikie Sherrill admits 6,600 noncitizens were ‘mistakenly’ registered to vote and at least 400 cast ballots, blaming a “serious software error” in the state’s motor-vehicle system. The vendor, IDEMIA, counters that its software simply transmits data and that eligibility must be verified by New Jersey’s elections division.

Assistant Attorney General Harmmeet Dhillon has now demanded detailed records on the noncitizen registrants and voters within five days, saying the disclosure bolsters the Justice Department’s push to obtain the state’s full voter file in ongoing litigation. President Trump cites a Homeland Security figure of more than 35,000 noncitizens on New Jersey's rolls and is urging Congress to pass the SAVE Act, requiring proof of citizenship for federal voter registration.

California Judge Gives Under-5-Year Sentence in Triple-Fatal DUI Wreck

A California judge has sentenced 21-year-old Indian illegal alien Jashanpreet Singh to just four years and eight months in prison for a fiery October crash that killed three people on the Sunshine State Turnpike. Dashcam footage shows Singh's 18-wheeler plowing through stopped traffic, slamming multiple vehicles and bursting into flames; he later admitted to felony vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated.

Homeland Security records show Singh was caught at the border and released into the U.S. in 2022, yet California still issued him a commercial REAL ID license despite his needing an interpreter in court because he does not speak English. Critics warn he could be back on the road in his mid-20s, and sanctuary policies may even block deportation despite an ICE detainer.

Feds Warn of Cyberattacks on U.S. Water Systems

Federal officials are warning that hackers are increasingly targeting water and wastewater systems across the United States after more than 30

Minnesota utilities were hit in a coordinated attack on July 26–27. In one case, the water plant in Braham, Minnesota, was knocked offline for about two hours when unknown actors took over computerized controls, forcing crews into emergency manual operations.

CISA and the FBI say threat actors have been changing passwords, altering IP addresses, and forcing boil-water notices, and recently issued guidance urging utilities to disconnect operational control systems from the public internet and audit cellular modems and remote connections. A leading cybersecurity firm notes the pattern matches techniques used by CyberAv3ngers, an Iran-linked group tied to the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, though officials have not formally attributed the Minnesota attacks.

NYC Mayor Floats Tax-Funded Reparations

New York City Mayor Zohran Mamdani is signaling support for taxing residents to fund slavery reparations, telling The Root he “stands by” a campaign statement that the city must “repair this legacy of slavery, stolen wealth, and discrimination” and backing a commission now studying cash payouts. The process stems from Local Laws 91 and 92 of 2024, which created a Commission on Racial Equity to run a multi-year “truth, healing, reconciliation, and reparations” framework, with final recommendations due by mid-2027.

Mamdani, a self-described democratic socialist who once spoke of “seizing the means of production,” is also pushing a $22 billion “Block by Block” housing plan that would expand rent control, freeze increases for nearly a million units, and transfer distressed buildings from private landlords to tenants, nonprofits, and community land trusts.

Gates' Q Clearance

A DOE letter entered into the Congressional record by Senator Rand Paul shows Gates had Q-level clearance from June 2014 until December 2021, starting under President Obama and spanning the entire COVID-19 period. Q clearance is normally reserved for officials and scientists working on nuclear weapons design, national laboratories, and other highly classified energy programs, not outside businessmen.

The letter indicates DOE granted the clearance “reciprocally,” meaning another unnamed federal agency vetted Gates first and DOE simply honored it, but it does not explain the underlying role or justification. Once a Q clearance expires, regaining it is difficult without a clear change in circumstances, making the seven-year window even more notable.

~ Words matter: Lucky? Coincidence? Blessings! ~ What Does the World Say?

When asked, AI (artificial intelligence) responded:

The American Society often views luck as a significant factor in life outcomes, associating it with both positive and negative experiences. Coincidence is generally seen as a neutral occurrence without causal connection, while blessings are viewed as favorable outcomes often attributed to divine favor or good fortune.

What Does the Bible Say?

James 1:17

Every good thing given and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation or shifting shadow.

Deuteronomy 28:2

All these blessings will come upon you and overtake you if you obey the LORD your God:

Matthew 5:6-8

“Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they shall be satisfied. 7 “Blessed are the merciful, for they shall receive mercy. 8 “Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.”

Jeremiah 29:11

For I know the plans that I have for you,’ declares the LORD, plans for welfare and not for calamity to give you a future and a hope.

“ When a good thing takes the place of The Best thing, that is a bad thing.”

Before the SSRI: Common Sense Finally Reaches the WAR Dept.

By Tracy Beanz & Michelle Edward, 07/29/2026
TheHighWire.com

Marine veteran Chad Robichaux came home after serving our nation in Afghanistan in one piece, or so it seemed. Robichaux served eight deployments as a Force Recon Marine, and once he returned home, he did everything right to take care of himself. He ate a clean diet and trained hard enough to fight professionally. But something was still wrong. He was irritable, exhausted, plagued by depression, and unable to focus. He described feeling a real sense of doom. The VA's answer? A simple prescription for antidepressants.

Guess what? That was the wrong answer, and it wasn't until Robichaux sought bloodwork on his own that he found the answer. His testosterone levels were severely out of balance. Once he corrected that, he no longer needed the SSRIs at all, sharing, "I felt like I knocked 10 to 15 years off the way I felt." Simply put, a decorated Marine spent who knows how long medicated with dangerous SSRIs for a mental illness he may not have had, while the actual problem remained unchecked.

Robichaux's story is the driving reason to understand the reasoning behind Secretary of War Pete Hegseth's announcement on July 15 that every active service member 30 and older will now be screened annually for testosterone deficiency, with treatment optional and left up to the individual. Predictably, following Hegseth's announcement, the same mainstream medical and media class that celebrates hormones for every other purpose discovered an overnight cause for caution. Their reaction reveals far more about them than it does about Hegseth's new policy.

In reality, adding the screening makes perfect sense. Why? Because the military and VA reached first for the prescription pad for decades. When a soldier reported fatigue, a depressed mood, trouble concentrating, and so on, out came the antidepressant, with little to no questions asked about what was going on underneath the surface. Testosterone declines with age, and tanking levels produce those exact symptoms, along with muscle loss, weight gain, and links to diabetes and depression. Nonetheless, obvious upstream causes often went unchecked, with our service members instead being handed pills that treated an improperly given diagnosis. Checking a hormone level before prescribing an SSRI is common sense and should be the bare minimum of looking for a cause instead of medicating a symptom.

Along with Robichaux's compelling journey, there is a backstory to Hegseth's announcement. Congress flagged this new treatment protocol in the 2025 defense bill. Indeed, veterans serving in special operations have spent years describing what they call "Operator Syndrome," or the breakdown that comes with years of hard service, including wrecked sleep, endless pain, numbed emotions, and hormonal collapse. Men like Robichaux (who now campaigns to get providers to look for hormonal deficiencies before defaulting to psychiatric drugs) took matters into their own hands and built an awareness platform themselves because the system would not. And Hegseth listened.

As with many things political, the double standard is obvious. After Hegseth's announcement, the Endocrine Society warned there is "insufficient evidence" to screen men who feel fine. Sure, that advice may sound reasonable, but this is the same group that recommends cross-sex hormones to teenagers under the banner of "affirming care" and labels anyone not on board a bigot. Apparently, hormones to transition a fifteen-year-old are compassionate and hormones to restore a forty-year-old combat veteran are reckless overreach. Go figure. They cannot hold both positions honestly.

As should be the case with all medical procedures, the treatment following testing must remain voluntary, and a low testosterone reading should never negatively follow a soldier through his career, because that number will live in the same assessment that measures whether they can be deployed. Likewise, for anyone who genuinely cares about warrior strength, it is important to remember that low hormone levels, including testosterone, are often a symptom, not the root. The forces that flattened these service members—little to no sleep, high stress, injury, and a diet stocked with fake and ultra-processed foods—are the deeper cause.

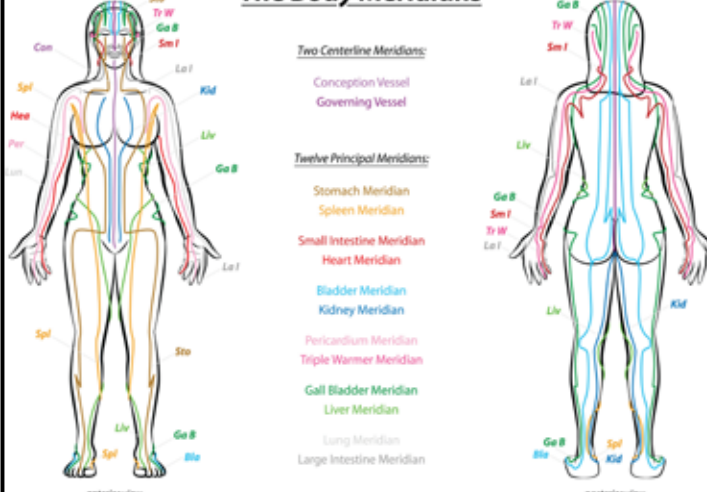

Is replacing an SSRI prescription with a testosterone injection just swapping Band-Aids on a lifestyle that must be fixed? Hopefully not. The screening is a good step, because it looks upstream. The task now is to keep going upstream to real food and real recovery.

Our dedicated warriors have, for years, been victims of a failed system that easily medicated them and never asked why (they are the ultimate experiment, after all, but that is another story). The sudden panic about testosterone testing from the usual quarters is selective to the point of dishonesty. Hegseth is right, the testing makes sense, but let's finish the job not with just a prescription, but with what their bodies need in the first place.

Things They Didn't Teach You in Church: Foreigners

By: Jim Brouillette

(Rumble and YouTube)

No matter your politics, you must admit that foreigners are currently a huge topic of interest and discussion nationwide and will probably drive the 2026 & 2028 elections. Foreigners in the Bible are anyone other than descendants of the 12 Tribes of Israel. I recently documented that if you are a white European or American Christian you are most likely a descendant of one of the so called 10 Lost Tribes, and if you are Jewish, you are descendant from one of the other two. Currently, the term foreigner has a slightly different meaning. According to the Merriam Webster Dictionary a foreigner is; "a person belonging to or owing allegiance to a foreign country or one not native to a place or community." Biblically, foreigners were considered "unclean" spiritually and were avoided until Jesus came along. In Luke 2:32, John 4:7, and Matthew 8:5-7 & 15:21 Jesus communed with gentiles and the biggest battles in the early Christian Church were over gentiles being welcomed into the Many Membered Body of Christ.

Spiritually, the birth of Jesus Christ into this dimension of flesh, was the greatest gift mankind (Israelite and Gentile alike) has ever received. It was the turning point of all time; Luke 21 speaks of it. Speaking of the descendants of Jacob, verse 24 reads; "And they...shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Jesus Christ's death on the cross fulfilled the times of the Gentiles; bringing salvation to all.

For several centuries, America welcomed foreigners into our country with the expectation they would assimilate into our culture and become Americans, but that isn't happening.

During the Biden presidency from 10 to 20 million or more illegal aliens entered this country and now we are experiencing the repercussions. In addition to the cost of supporting these people by providing free health care, food, overloading our hospital systems, increasing the cost of housing, and increasing the crime rate; this invasion caused an alarming escalation in child trafficking and sexual exploitation. According to a DHS audit, some 300,000 or more unaccompanied foreign children were lost by the federal tracking systems while Biden was president, and thousands upon thousands are still unaccounted for. Foreigners' refusal to assimilate has also led to several communities across the country trying to form their own little countries inside ours. We have Muslim communities instituting their own court systems using Sharia Law, we have a huge amount of fraud occurring in detached communities that rivals the Somali childcare fraud in Minnesota, and we are seeing the death rate growing from highway accidents caused by illegal foreign drivers allowed to drive commercial and non-commercial vehicles on our highways by multiple states such as California.

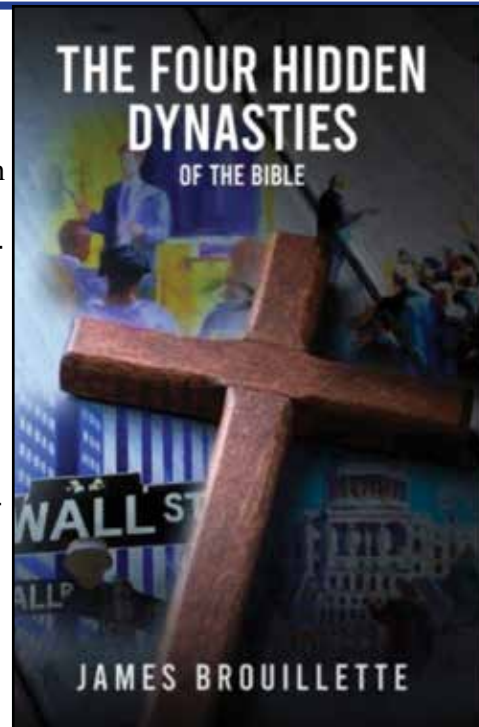

Perhaps the most frightening result of this invasion of America by foreigners, legal and illegal, is the infiltration of our political system. In the 119th U.S. Congress (2025–2027), there are 20 voting members who are foreign-born naturalized U.S. citizens; 2 in the Senate and 18 in the House. Here in Arizona, there are 3 U.S. Representatives who are elected federal officeholders that are foreign-born naturalized citizens;

U.S. Rep. Juan Ciscomani (R-Ariz.) – born in Mexico, U.S. Rep. Abe Hamadeh (R-Ariz.) – born in Syria, and U.S. Rep. Yassamin Ansari (D-Ariz.) – born in Iran. Some of the foreigners holding federal elected offices are ok, some are not so good, for example U.S. Rep.

Ilhan Omar (D-Minn.), the Queen of Somali Fraud in Minnesota. Fraud schemes in Minnesota involving individuals of Somali descent include alleged $4.6 million in daycare reimbursement scams and broader Medicaid and food-aid fraud, including a $90 million Medicaid scheme and SNAP fraud exceeding $1 million. This is only the tip of the iceberg, and the Bible is clear about this type of activity. Leviticus Chapter 6; 2 If a soul sin...and lie unto his neighbour in that which was delivered him to keep, or in fellowship, or in a thing taken away by violence, or hath deceived his neighbour; 3 Or have found that which was lost, and lieth concerning it, and sweareth falsely... sinning therein: 4 Then... he shall restore that which he took violently away, or the thing which he hath deceitfully gotten, or that which was delivered him to keep, or the lost thing which he found, Investigations have begun and some indictments have been filed.

On another "foreign front", we recently witnessed amazing foreigners' reactions to America while attending the FIFA World Cup soccer games played across the country during June and July. I can't think of anything (especially a sporting event) that has united this country more since the "Miracle on Ice" where our American hockey team defeated the Soviet Union team, in the Winter Olympics on 2/22/1980. From the Scotland kilt wearing fans playing their bagpipes and drinking the city of Boston dry, to the viral videos of Norway's fans, mimicking rowing a Viking ship and shouting "Row!", excitement was ignited across America. Foreign fans from all over the world raved about how great America is, and how they had been misled concerning the USA. Then America played Bosnia.

I'm not a big soccer fan but even I knew the "Red Card" penalty in America's game against Bosnia was a terrible call and I admit I suspected it may have been political. The American team played the entire 2nd half short a player and still won the game! Trump went to the FIFA and appealed the "Red Card" which would have caused the USA team to play without their star player in the following playoff game. FIFA overturned the ruling. Then Team America, with their star player, lost to Belgium 5 days later. This might sound crazy, but I believe Trump saved soccer in America! Why? Imagine how Americans would have reacted to this foreigners' game if America lost 4-1, and it happened with America's star player on the bench for the entire game, because of the "Red Card" penalty called by a foreign official!
